VISITORS CAUTIONED

Outbreak Of Flu Gaining Ground In Many States

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Hospitals begged friends of flu sufferers to stay away from the patients Saturday as an influenza outbreak gained ground in 21 of the 50 states.

Birmingham, Ala., hospitals asked that only members of the immediate families visit flu patients and that others "send a card or write a note" instead.

The same plea came from the South Carolina Baptist Hospital at Columbia, and Dallas hospitals cut their visiting hours. The hospitals said they wanted as few visitors as possible because strangers might bring in more flu bugs.

EPIDEMICS

Government health officials said flu outbreaks had occurred in 21 states. Some of the outbreaks rated as epidemics and health authorities isolated the dangerous Asian flu strain in 11 states.

One of the latest states to be hit was Alabama, where more than 4,000 cases of flu were reported last week and schools in three counties were closed. Lubbock, Tex., reported 200 cases in three days.

The first flu death of the year was reported in Michigan, where the number of flu sufferers was estimated at 30,000. There were three flu deaths in Kentucky and the death of a sailor on a tanker off Key West, Fla., was blamed on Asian flu.

Two Pittsburgh parochial schools were closed, not because so many students were ill but because the teachers couldn't make it to classes. Other school closings were common and some made no announcement on when they would be able to open up again.

A price fight in Portland, Maine had to be called off because one of the fighters was fighting the flu.

Flu On Rise Here; More In Hospitals

Patient Influx Increase Noted; Isolation Starts

The flu bug took a bigger bite of northeast Louisiana Saturday, and the patient influx at Monroe hospitals increased.

The Georgia Street Nursing Home imposed a 10-day to two-week restriction on visitors due to the outbreak.

Business manager Harold Smith said he had word from New Orleans that the flu swept through a nursing home there and that some of the patients died.

He said the restriction applies also to church groups who visit on Sunday. Smith said that patients could be seen in emergencies but added that otherwise there should be no visitors for the protection of the patients there. He said the public would be notified when the restrictions are lifted.

Ouachita is the third northeast Louisiana parish hit by the illness. Already numbered are Jackson, where one school has been closed, and Union.

E. A. Conway Memorial Hospital was "overcrowded," according to officials.

Wright - Bendel Clinic reported six patients with the flu, or 20 per cent of bed capacity. Two employes were out due to the illness. Officials reported most cases were not serious enough yet to be hospitalized, but that the illness appeared to be getting worse.

One doctor reported treating about 25 flu patients daily — another 15 daily.

St. Francis Hospital reported its staff was much busier than usual. Four flu patients were admitted Friday night.

GOP Convention Is Jarred By Uproar Between Units

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — A stormy fight between party regulars and conservatives jarred the state convention of the California Republican Assembly on Saturday.

President Fred Hall abruptly called off the business session until today after an uproar over the seating of challenged delegates at the opening meeting.

Boos and shouts of "Railroad!" greeted the action.

Hall told newsmen that the furor was caused by conservatives trying to disrupt the meeting as part of their drive to capture control of the volunteer party organization.

"I am speaking of Birch and Birch-supported people," he said.

The assembly president, a former governor of Kansas, declared the credentials argument involved only a few delegates from San Diego County and Palo Alto.

The new units seeking accreditation generally supported Harry Waddell of Salinas, a retired Navy commander, for president. He is opposed by William J. Nelligan of San Francisco, the favorite of party regulars, and Fred Nagel Jr. of Susanville.

Waddell and Nagel, both self-styled conservatives, said they do not belong to the John Birch Society but that they welcomed its backing.

'SMEARING'

The convention hassle broke out before former Sen. William F Knowland, in a prepared speech to an assembly banquet, urged Republicans to beware of 'smearing" every conservative leader as a Bircher.

Knowland told the divided Republicans that they "must pull the party together and not join in the prevalent pastime of tearing it apart."

The convention's opening session was punctuated by demands by challenged delegations to obtain immediate action by the Credentials Committee.

Hall told the delegates he had just officially named the group and that it couldn't make a report until Sunday morning. He was interrupted again and again by spokesmen for the dissidents.

The California Republican Assembly president finally refused to recognize a delegate who sought to move to overrule the chairman. Hall said the delegate could stand there all day and he wouldn't recognize him.

When others persisted, Hall announced, "This body will stand in recess until 9:30 a.m. tomorrow" and strode off the platform.

A short time later, Darven Paddock of Glendale grabbed the microphone and announced a caucus of conservatives to determine possible action.

He told reporters that the party "machine" was trying to maintain control and that it has been using the Birch Society as a whipping boy.

Hall accused his opponents of deliberately attempting to stir up a floor fight as a means of disrupting the convention. He called it a ridiculous performance.

Ex-Senator Offers New Cuban Plan

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP)—An air-naval blockade and a break in diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union were proposed by former Sen. William F. Knowland Saturday night to force Soviet troops out of Cuba.

"I refuse to accept the doctrine that we are helpless, short of armed conflict, to act in a decisive manner to get Soviet troops out of Cuba," he said.

Knowland, in a prepared speech to the California Republican Assembly, said this country, acting in conjunction with the Organization of American States, could:

1. Announce that if the Soviet troops weren't all out by April 1 a tight naval and air blockade would be thrown around Cuba.

2. Notify the Soviet Union that diplomatic relations would be suspended and all U.S.S.R. embassies closed until the last Soviet soldier left Cuba.

CENTERS

"I doubt the Soviet Union would want this to happen," Knowland said, since Soviet embassies are centers of Soviet espionage and Communist propaganda in Latin America, as they are elsewhere in the world."

Knowland told warring California Republicans they "must pull the party together and not join the prevalent pastime of tearing it apart."

At the same time Knowland, 1958 candidate for governor, urged Republicans to beware of smearing every conservative leader as a member of the John Birch Society.

Knowland coupled his plea with a strong attack against what he called the whiz kids and amateurs of the Kennedy administration.

In charge of the several hundred volunteers making the collections will be Heart Sunday co - chairmen Mrs. Jack Tarver of Monroe and Mrs. Jack Dew of West Monroe.

WHAT TO DO

The leaflet to be distributed by volunteers tells what to do in case of a heart attack. Contributions collected by volunteers will help expand the Heart Association's research, education and community service program.

For families away from home on Heart Sunday, volunteers will leave pre - addressed envelopes in which contributions can be mailed to the local Ouachita Parish Heart Fund headquarters.

In accepting a co - chairmanship for Heart Sunday, Mrs. Tarver pointed out, "More than 65 million Heart Fund dollars have been invested in research since the Heart Association became a national voluntary health agency in 1948."

Rainy

Raincoats and umbrellas will still be fashionable in the Twin Cities today as the weatherman predicts occasional light rain again tonight and Monday morning.

However, raincoats will suffice for overcoats with the high today predicted at 55-60 and the low tonight at 38-42 degrees.

Saturday's weather showed a high of 62 degrees and a low of 23. Light rain started at 6:48 p.m.

Chief Soviet Negotiator In Moscow

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet Union's chief disarmament negotiator flew to Moscow Saturday amid reports the Kremlin wants to generate a summit conference by entangling nuclear test ban talks here with the cold war issues of Cuba and Berlin.

First Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov presumably will consult with Premier Khrushchev and other Soviet officials. There was no word from Soviet sources here on when Kuznetsov will be back.

U.S. negotiator William C. Foster left the conference for Washington consultations last week and is due back today. Diplomatic sources said he had hoped to get Kuznetsov committed to real negotiations on a treaty for banning nuclear testing.

PREPARES SPEECH

Kuznetsov's departure, too, comes as Britain's new negotiator, Sir Paul Mason, prepared to make his first speech to the conference on Monday. Mason succeeds Sir Michael Wright, who has retired.

Britain and the United States have been working closely in the negotiations.

Kuznetsov's departure created disappointment but no surprise in Washington. It was viewed there as part of the declining pattern in the negotiations.

Kuznetsov has been following a hard line in the talks. He refused Friday to back down from the Soviet stand for a limit of two or three on-site inspections on Soviet soil against cheating on nuclear tests. He even threatened to withdraw that Soviet offer and refused to go any deeper into the mech-

U.S. Bars Soviet Soldiers In Berlin

BERLIN (AP) — Four busloads of Soviet soldiers were barred by U.S. authorities from entering West Berlin Saturday, delaying a wreath-laying ceremony with high-ranking Communists at the Soviet war memorial.

The Americans took the action at the request of British authorities, who had told the Russians that groups of military personnel going to the war memorial, near Brandenburg Gate, could not enter West Berlin at the U.S.-manned Checkpoint Charlie. Instead, a U.S. spokesman said, the Russians were told to use the Sandkrug Bridge British checkpoint, shortest and most direct route to the memorial.

The buses were held up more than one hour while American and Soviet officials negotiated.

Two other buses carrying a company of Red army soldiers and officers and a band passed through the British controls at the wall dividing this city without trouble.

CARS ENTER

A number of passenger cars carrying high-ranking officials, including Soviet Ambassador Pyotr A. Abrasimov and two Soviet generals, also were allowed to enter West Berlin.

While the buses were held up at Checkpoint Charlie, the ceremony in connection with Red Army Day was delayed and Communist officials were forced to wait in subzero weather.

Administration Action On Cuba Still Under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate minority leader, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, reportedly has told President Kennedy the Republicans will continue to pound away at the administration's handling of the Cuban situation.

Administration leaders in and out of Congress have accused some Republicans of making inaccurate, irresponsible and dangerous charges about Cuba for political purposes. And these Democrats have urged a return to what they call the tradition of bipartisanship in inter-nation affairs.

A gesture in that direction was made last Monday night when Kennedy called 17 congressional leaders of both parties to the White House to report on Soviet Premier Khrushchev's assurance that he will withdraw some of the Russian troops now in Cuba.

But one of those present at that briefing said Saturday Dirksen was not impressed and quoted the Republican leader as saying:

"Mr. President, I think you should know we're going to continue to pummel you about Cuba. There are going to be some brickbats thrown at you and not of the embroidered kind. We regard this situation as extremely critical and we are not going to be silent."

Long familiar with the ways of politicians, Kennedy was represented as taking this in stride. But Secretary of State Dean Rusk was said to have made it clear he was disturbed at the blunt language Dirksen had used.

Stock Show Queen Named By Judges

By JIMMY HATTEN

DELHI — Miss Beverly Sumrall of Lake Providence Saturday night was selected "Miss Stock Show" of 1963.

Miss Sumrall, a 36-23-36 stunner, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Deal of Lake Providence and a Northeast Louisiana State College sophomore. She did a dramatic reading from "Our Town."

Miss Sumrall was sponsored by the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce. She won the 1961-62 Forest Festival Crown at Winnfield, the Miss KEEL title for 1961-62 and is majoring in speech education at the Monroe college.

First runnerup was Miss Gail Sawyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Sawyer of Oak Grove. She also is a Northeast Louisiana State College student and did a reading titled "What Is a Husband?".

Using a toe-tap and baton twirl routine, Glenda Sue Young of West Monroe won the judge's nod for second runnerup. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Young of West Monroe and is also attending Northeast. She also is a gymnast and was head majorette while attending Louisiana Tech.

Rounding out the top five were Suzann Roy of Tallulah and Virginia Baberousse of Bastrop.

Miss Roy was named Miss Congeniality by vote of the 11 contestants.

The pageant, held at the Delhi High School auditorium, was a prelude to the 23rd annual Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show which will be held here Monday through Thursday.

Other contestants were: Johnny Ruth Beasley of Ferriday; Barbara Jean McCoy of Monroe; Carolyn Ann Oswalt of Lake Providence; Marty Guinn of Jonesville; Carole Lynn Woods of Columbia and Mary C. Woodard of Delhi.

The president of the Stock Show E. W. Schon, crowned the new Miss Stock Show.

Unions Propose Quicker Tax Cut

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The AFL-CIO proposed Saturday a much quicker tax cut than President Kennedy has recommended, plus a big boost in government spending, to avoid a feared new recession.

JFK'S 'MANAGING'

News Policies Lashed

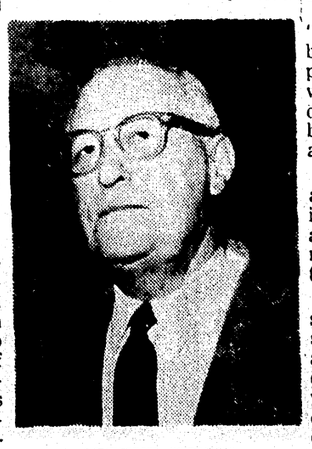
WASHINGTON (AP) — Arthur Krock, prize - winning newsman, accuses President Kennedy of managing the news with a cynicism, boldness and subtlety unmatched in peacetime history.

But, the veteran newsman says, if Kennedy has achieved any success in these efforts, "the principal onus rests on the printed and electronic press itself."

Krock, for 21 years chief of the Washington bureau of The New York Times and more recently a Washington columnist for the Times, levels his indictment in the March issue of a national magazine.

He cites, as an affront to Jeffersonian principles of a free press, "the 'informational directives' prescribed for the Pentagon and the Department of State when the crisis over Cuba began to harden." He said the "weapon" of news management has been improperly used to inflate success or gloss over error "in the aftermath of half-won showdowns — such as President Kennedy's with respect of the Soviet rearmament of Cuba."

Krock says Kennedy and high subordinates indirectly manage news by "social flattery" of Washington reporters and commentators, and by "selective personal patronage."



ARTHUR KROCK
. . . . Policy Critic

In the latter category he included exclusive interviews, attributable to the President, which he says have ceased to be a rarity.

"But Mr. Kennedy," he writes, "prefers the intimate background briefings of journalists, and their publishers, on a large scale, from which members emerge in a state of protracted enchantment evoked by the President's charm and the awesome aura of his office.

"The success of his efforts is attested by a continent wide glow in news reporting, editorializing, and comment, which otherwise might register the lower temperature of impersonal objectivity."

Krock accuses Kennedy also of spreading "a false first impression" last year that a budget balance was in prospect. And he charges administration officials with anonymous "prevarication" on such subjects as the balance-of-payments problem which, according to Krock, "is visibly growing worse."

BICYCLE IS REWARD

Youth's Alertness Helps Get Gunman

ATLANTA (UPI) — A cocked pistol pointed directly at patrolman G. P. Hicks and the man on the car seat beside him was growing frantic.

"Step on it! Faster! Faster!

The police radio kept crackling with car position reports that told Hicks his fellow officers were sealing off the area.

Suddenly up ahead Hicks saw a patrol car blocking his path.

"Stop this car and you're a dead man," his captor barked.

Hicks wheeled the police cruiser into a side street, but dead ahead stood another cruiser.

It was then or never.

With one lightning-fast motion Hicks hit the gunman's hand, whipped the car into a spin, wrenched open the door and tumbled out.

As he hit the pavement the guns of fellow officers rained a barrage of bullets into the careening police cruiser.

Minutes later the gunman—identified as Jerry Ambrose Cantu, 25, alias Jerry Lee Green—was pulled from the car, dead.

Cantu was under indictment by the county grand jury and was awaiting trial on a robbery charge.

The wild ride started when Hicks was summoned to investigate a hit-run accident report. An 11-year-old boy pointed out Cantu as one of the passengers in the hit-run car, but when Hicks attempted to question him, Cantu pulled a gun.

The boy, Terry Causey, saw Cantu force Hicks into the police cruiser, and sounded the alarm that put officers on Cantu's trail.

Police started fund to buy Terry a new bicycle as a reward for his alertness.

Chief Soviet Negotiator In Moscow

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet Union's chief disarmament negotiator flew to Moscow Saturday amid reports the Kremlin wants to generate a summit conference by entangling nuclear test ban talks here with the cold war issues of Cuba and Berlin.

First Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov presumably will consult with Premier Khrushchev and other Soviet officials. There was no word from Soviet sources here on when Kuznetsov will be back.

U.S. negotiator William C. Foster left the conference for Washington consultations last week and is due back today. Diplomatic sources said he had hoped to get Kuznetsov committed to real negotiations on a treaty for banning nuclear testing.

PREPARES SPEECH

Kuznetsov's departure, too, comes as Britain's new negotiator, Sir Paul Mason, prepared to make his first speech to the conference on Monday. Mason succeeds Sir Michael Wright, who has retired.

Britain and the United States have been working closely in the negotiations.

Kuznetsov's departure created disappointment but no surprise in Washington. It was viewed there as part of the declining pattern in the negotiations.

Kuznetsov has been following a hard line in the talks. He refused Friday to back down from the Soviet stand for a limit of two or three on-site inspections on Soviet soil against cheating on nuclear tests. He even threatened to withdraw that Soviet offer and refused to go any deeper into the mech-

Administration Action On Cuba Still Under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate minority leader, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, reportedly has told President Kennedy the Republicans will continue to pound away at the administration's handling of the Cuban situation.

Administration leaders in and out of Congress have accused some Republicans of making inaccurate, irresponsible and dangerous charges about Cuba for political purposes. And these Democrats have urged a return to what they call the tradition of bipartisanship in inter-nation affairs.

A gesture in that direction was made last Monday night when Kennedy called 17 congressional leaders of both parties to the White House to report on Soviet Premier Khrushchev's assurance that he will withdraw some of the Russian troops now in Cuba.

But one of those present at that briefing said Saturday Dirksen was not impressed and quoted the Republican leader as saying:

"Mr. President, I think you should know we're going to continue to pummel you about Cuba. There are going to be some brickbats thrown at you and not of the embroidered kind. We regard this situation as extremely critical and we are not going to be silent."

Long familiar with the ways of politicians, Kennedy was represented as taking this in stride. But Secretary of State Dean Rusk was said to have made it clear he was disturbed at the blunt language Dirksen had used.

JFK'S 'MANAGING'

News Policies Lashed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arthur Krock, prize - winning newsman, accuses President Kennedy of managing the news with a cynicism, boldness and subtlety unmatched in peacetime history.

But, the veteran newsman says, if Kennedy has achieved any success in these efforts, "the principal onus rests on the printed and electronic press itself."

Krock, for 21 years chief of the Washington bureau of The New York Times and more recently a Washington columnist for the Times, levels his indictment in the March issue of a national magazine.

He cites, as an affront to Jeffersonian principles of a free press, "the 'informational directives' prescribed for the Pentagon and the Department of State when the crisis over Cuba began to harden." He said the "weapon" of news management has been improperly used to inflate success or gloss over error "in the aftermath of half-won showdowns — such as President Kennedy's with respect of the Soviet rearmament of Cuba."

Krock says Kennedy and high subordinates indirectly manage news by "social flattery" of Washington reporters and commentators, and by "selective personal patronage."

ARTHUR KROCK
. . . . Policy Critic

In the latter category he included exclusive interviews, attributable to the President, which he says have ceased to be a rarity.

"But Mr. Kennedy," he writes, "prefers the intimate background briefings of journalists, and their publishers, on a large scale, from which members emerge in a state of protracted enchantment evoked by the President's charm and the awesome aura of his office.

"The success of his efforts is attested by a continent wide glow in news reporting, editorializing, and comment, which otherwise might register the lower temperature of impersonal objectivity."

Krock accuses Kennedy also of spreading "a false first impression" last year that a budget balance was in prospect. And he charges administration officials with anonymous "prevarication" on such subjects as the balance-of-payments problem which, according to Krock, "is visibly growing worse."

BICYCLE IS REWARD

Youth's Alertness Helps Get Gunman

ATLANTA (UPI) — A cocked pistol pointed directly at patrolman G. P. Hicks and the man on the car seat beside him was growing frantic.

"Step on it! Faster! Faster!

The police radio kept crackling with car position reports that told Hicks his fellow officers were sealing off the area.

Suddenly up ahead Hicks saw a patrol car blocking his path.

"Stop this car and you're a dead man," his captor barked.

Hicks wheeled the police cruiser into a side street, but dead ahead stood another cruiser.

It was then or never.

With one lightning-fast motion Hicks hit the gunman's hand, whipped the car into a spin, wrenched open the door and tumbled out.

As he hit the pavement the guns of fellow officers rained a barrage of bullets into the careening police cruiser.

Minutes later the gunman—identified as Jerry Ambrose Cantu, 25, alias Jerry Lee Green—was pulled from the car, dead.

Cantu was under indictment by the county grand jury and was awaiting trial on a robbery charge.

The wild ride started when Hicks was summoned to investigate a hit-run accident report. An 11-year-old boy pointed out Cantu as one of the passengers in the hit-run car, but when Hicks attempted to question him, Cantu pulled a gun.

The boy, Terry Causey, saw Cantu force Hicks into the police cruiser, and sounded the alarm that put officers on Cantu's trail.

Police started fund to buy Terry a new bicycle as a reward for his alertness.

MRS. JACK DEW, left, of West Monroe, and Mrs. Jack Tarver of Monroe have been named co-chairmen of today's Heart Sunday activities. They will supervise hundreds of volunteer workers who will canvass the Twin Cities, starting today at 1 p.m., on a door-to-door campaign to raise funds for the Ouachita Parish Heart Fund.

VICTORY OVER POLIO

'Army' Of 849 Worked In Drive

To secure victory over polio, a volunteer "army" of 849 workers in Ouachita Parish donated their services to administer parish residents with Type I of Sabin oral polio vaccine.

The mass polio immunization campaign in Ouachita Parish was sponsored by the Ouachita Parish Medical Society headed by Dr. F. E. McCarty and the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce headed by Edd Routt.

Combined with the help of other civic organizations in the Twin Cities they fed Type I of the vaccine to a total of 73,913 Ouachita Parish residents, or about 72 per cent of the parish's total population.

To make the parish safe from polio, a minimum of 80 per cent of persons in the parish were required to take the vaccine. An optimum number of persons in the parish was set at 85 per cent.

To treat sugar-cubes with the oral vaccine and dispense them, 50 doctors, 169 nurses, 30 pharmacists, 34 student pharmacists volunteered their professional services.

Dr. Roy A. Kelly and Jaycee Joe A. Maggio Jr. are general co-chairmen in the campaign to rid the parish of polio. Heading up manpower in the drive are Dr. Alton R. Irwin, in charge of doctors; Dr. J. Rolling Jones, nurses; Jaycee John Guerriero, pharmacists, Jaycee Whitney Broussard, student pharmacists; Jaycee Chuck Morgan, Jaycees; and Jaycee Jayne Mrs. David H. Masur, was in charge of other workers.

Prior to Feb. 10, some 3,744 parish residents had taken the vaccine-treated sugar cubes in doctors' offices and demonstration clinics.

VICTORY TOTALS

On Sunday, Feb. 10, Victory Over Polio Day, the sugar cubes went to 52,322 persons in the parish. Another 15,110 persons received the vaccine at make-up clinics Feb. 17.

During weeks of Feb. 11-16 and Feb. 18-23, mobile clinics visiting hospitals, nursing homes, the Children Home, jails and shut-ins immunized against polio 1,737 for the grand total.

Victory Over Polio Day saw 29 clinics set up in public schools in the parish. In charge of clinic sites were Dr. Dewitt Milam and Jaycee David Russell. Dr. W. C. Cookston and Jaycee Guy Jones were in charge of records and statistics.

Jaycee W. H. (Andy) Anders took responsibility for transportation and communications with Dr. M. A. Bodron and Jaycee Jack Murphy responsible for supplies in the central supply warehouse located at F. Strauss & Son, Inc.

Manning the highly efficient clinics were members of various civic groups. Junior Chairty League had 68 members working; Monroe Jaycee Jaynes, 49 members; B'Nai Israel Women, 21 members; Business and Professional Women's Club, 11 members; Monroe Junior Women's Club, nine members; Delta Rho Delta, five members and Boy Scouts of America, Ouachita Valley Council, 83 members.

Principals, parents and teachers of 11 Negro schools supplied 66 members for distribution of the vaccine.

For food and refreshments about 150 members of various parent and teacher groups of both white and colored school prepared and served food and refreshments to clinic workers.

The Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce furnished a total of 81 members to work at polio central, central supply and clinic coordination. West Monroe's Junior Chamber of Commerce and Jaycee Jaynes supplied 15 members for runners and transportation.

Also supplying members for runners and trasportation were the Louisiana National Guard, 51 members and Circle K Club, NLSC, 10 members.

Publicity for the polio immunization drive was headed by Dr. Edward J. Brown and Jaycee Edd Routt. Four civic clubs furnishing communications for clinics are Ouachita Parish Medical Auxiliary, 10 members; PBX Club, eight members and Altrusa Club, four members.

Fifteen members of the Monroe City Police and two members of Louisiana State Police, Troop F, were on hand to facilitate the mass immunization program.

Now that a beachhead has been established with administration of Type I of the vaccine, the forces again will swing into action for dispensing the second sugar cube treated with vaccine on Sunday, March 31, Type III oral vaccine will be given Sunday, May 19.

Others helping in the bid to rid Ouachita Parish of polio are the management, staff and personnel of the Monroe Morning World—News-Star Publishing Corp.; KNOE TV and radio KUZN, KMLB and KLIC; F. Mardi Gras Ball Court Is Selected

Five beauties have been elected by Northeast State students to form the royal court for the Mardi Gras Ball Tuesday from 8 to 12 p.m. in Gunby Dining Hall on campus.

The annual event is sponsored by Phi Delta Chi, national pharmaceutical fraternity. Music will be played by the Wheels of Lafayette.

THE COURT

Chosen to the court were Jan Hallmark, Monroe sophomore art education major; Sylvia Hayden, West Monroe junior elementary student; Betsy McBride, Davant junior speech education major; Shirley Nelson, Bastrop freshman elementary education student; and Pat Twiner, Sunshine freshman in medical technology.

From these five coeds, the fraternity will select the girl who is to reign as queen of the ball. Her identity will not be known until she is crowned at the dance by President George T. Walker.

Costumes and masks are expected to give additional gaiety, according to the response given to last year's dance. Prizes will be awarded to students wearing the most attractive or original costumes. The best dressed couple will receive an award of $10. The couple taking second place will win $5, and the best dressed individual will receive $5. Judges will be members of the college faculty and staff.

Reigning over last year's Mardi Gras ball was Judy Cathey of West Monroe. Winning first place for costume originality were Julia LeBlanc and Rodney Langlinais.

ROYAL COURT OF the Mardi Gras ball at Northeast Louisiana State College will include these coeds who were chosen in a campus-wide election. Day Is Quiet For Officers

Twin City law enforcement officers reported a relatively quiet Saturday, booking four persons on theft counts and investigating a number of minor accidents which involved minor injuries.

In spite of a steady rainfall from around 6 p.m. on, traffic remained on the quiet side.

Monroe police reported three accidents, state police investigated two and West Monroe officers recorded two collisions.

Monroe officers booked three persons for theft. Arthur Lee Hopkins, 19, Negro of 3506 Renwick St., was booked for theft after Negro Artis Mitchell of the same address, obtained a warrant for Hopkins charging him with theft of $15.

Later in the day, James E. Thomas, 21, Negro of 3625 Curry St., was booked for theft in a shoplifting. Monroe officers also filed two counts of theft by check against Johnny Ringo, of 1006 S. 9th St. Another Negro, Jimmie Oates, 67, of Bastrop was booked for theft in a shoplifting incident.

Monroe officers late Saturday cleared the burglary of a small store on Breard St. with the apprehension of three Negro juveniles ranging in age from 10 - 13. The boys were taken to the juvenile detention home until Juvenile court action. They wre allegedly caught in the act of breaking into the Hamilton's Grocery Store, 2400 Breard St., by the store owner, Robert Hamilton.

Late Saturday, Monroe police were investigating a vandalism report in which four handsets from pay telephones were cut from the booth and taken.

Charles H. Harley, 42, of 206 S. 1st St., West Monroe, was booked for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages, reckless driving and no driver's license by Monroe police. He was taken into custody at 9:25 p.m. in the 100 block of South Grand Street.

Two persons sustained minor injuries in a two-car collision on Thomas Road in West Monroe about 6:15 p.m. Saturday. Treated at Glenwood were Norma Massey, 22, and David L. Massey, of 201 Moreland Dr., West Monroe. Massey was driving south on Thomas Road when a vehicle operated by Jimmy Lamar Kent, 23, of 703 Wood St., West Monroe, turned off the hospital parking lot and collided with Massey.

73-Year-Old Man Ends Six-Month Hike Across U.S.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A leathery-skinned 73-year-old World War I veteran said Saturday he wore out 20 pairs of shoes in six months walking from New York to the West Coast. But he feels in enough to do it again.

In fact—

"Right now I'm looking for a wife," asserted John Michaelides, of Greek extraction and an ardent disciple of Socrates.

"I'd like a young blonde who doesn't mind being pinched and is full of life. My other three wives were brunettes."

He began the transcontinental hike Aug. 20 "to deflate the female ego." He'd been reading about the walking exploits of England's Dr. Barbara Moore.

21 Thefts Said Cleared

West Monroe police cleared a total of 21 thefts, three of which occurred in Monroe during the past two months, Friday and Saturday with the apprehension of three West Monroe youths.

West Monroe Police Chief Jeff Caldwell said a 15-year-old juvenile admitted taking gasoline from Myers Pump Station located on Wood Street, on four different occasions. The youth also admitted three different counts of stealing hubcaps in Monroe, which resulted in a total of six hubcaps taken and four of them recovered. The youth was released to the custody of his parents to await juvenile court action.

Late Friday, West Monroe officers booked two youths — James Deems, 18, of 133 Splane Dr., and Jon Walker, 17, of 117 Pinewood St., both for theft. The boys admitted during questioning Friday and Saturday, to 14 different thefts and the January burglary of Albright's Tenneco Station, located at North Seventh and Cypress Streets.

The following counts were cleared by the youths: three different hubcap thefts, occuring once at Gibson's Wholesale parking lot on Cypress Street, and twice at Western Lanes parking lot on North Seventh Street; two different soft drink machine breakins at Ridge Avenue Baptist Church; three counts of stealing gasoline from school buses at West Monroe High School; one gasoline theft at Unique Cleaners and Laundry; one shoplifting incident at Cannons Grocery on Cypress Street; and the theft of cases of soft drink bottles from Highland School on Wellerman Road, Highland Grocery Store, 1411 Wellerman Rd., Coulson's Grocery Store, 2600 N. 7th St., and Ridge Avenue Baptist Church.

Police recovered a total of four different hubcaps and various other loot taken during the two month period by the two boys.

Louisiana Tech Student Senate Posts Are Filled

RUSTON (Special) — Mary Lorraine Dunn of Grand Cane and Bette Stokes of Memphis, Mich., have been named to fill two Louisiana Tech Student Senate posts which were vacated at the end of the fall semester.

Miss Dunn will serve as junior woman representative in the place of Val Jean Banta of Shreveport, who resigned from the student governing body and is now married.

Miss Stokes replaces Alice Richards of Shreveport, who has transferred to another college, as second vice president.

Both were chosen to the offices because of a Senate ruling which stipulates that in the event of the resignation of a member, the runner-up to him or her in the previous election shall be appointed to his position.

Local Woman's Brother Dies; Rites Monday

BASTROP (Special) — Funeral services for Dickie Rogers, 41, of Bastrop, will be at 2 p.m. Monday in Blackwell and Golden Funeral Chapel here. He was the brother of Mrs. Lois Wynn of Monroe.

A lifelong resident of Morehouse Parish, Mr. Rogers died at his residence Saturday afternoon after an illness of about one year. He was employed with the state highway department as a maintenance man. Mr. Rogers was a WW II veteran.

The Rev. Harold Holland will conduct services.

Other survivors include his widow, Mrs. Willie M. Rogers, Bastrop; and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Davidson Rogers of Jones.

SECOND INAUGURAL

Campaign Promise Is Kept By Romney

ESCANABA, Mich. (AP) — Beaming as brightly as the February sun shining on him, Republican Gov. George Romney kept a campaign promise for a second inaugural Saturday and called upon Michigan to "pull itself together."

This inaugural was in this Upper Peninsula community of 16,000, to which hundreds of legislators, Republican leaders and ordinary citizens came to see Romney take his oath of office for the second time in two months.

And in a speech which followed, Romney promised his administration would pay heed to the special problems of the economically distressed, but resources rich Upper Peninsula.

Some of the 300,000 who populate the 16,500 square miles of Michigan above the Straits of Mackinac from time to time classify themselves as "forgotten citizens" as far as the more populous lower peninsula and state government at Lansing—500 miles away—are concerned.

"By cooperative actions, we can prove that we recognize our common interests as citizens of Michigan are far superior to our separate interests," Romney declared. "Michigan must pull together."

He said the Upper Peninsula had been a particular victim in recent decades of what he termed "the pitting of region against region, one economic class against another, citizen against citizen, for selfish partisan gain."

In spite of a steady rainfall from around 6 p.m. on, traffic remained on the quiet side.

Monroe police reported three accidents, state police investigated two and West Monroe officers recorded two collisions.

Monroe officers booked three persons for theft. Arthur Lee Hopkins, 19, Negro of 3506 Renwick St., was booked for theft after Negro Artis Mitchell of the same address, obtained a warrant for Hopkins charging him with theft of $15.

Later in the day, James E. Thomas, 21, Negro of 3625 Curry St., was booked for theft in a shoplifting. Monroe officers also filed two counts of theft by check against Johnny Ringo, of 1006 S. 9th St. Another Negro, Jimmie Oates, 67, of Bastrop was booked for theft in a shoplifting incident.

Monroe officers late Saturday cleared the burglary of a small store on Breard St. with the apprehension of three Negro juveniles ranging in age from 10 - 13. The boys were taken to the juvile detention home until Juvenile court action. They wre allegedly caught in the act of breaking into the Hamilton's Grocery Store, 2400 Breard St., by the store owner, Robert Hamilton.

Late Saturday, Monroe police were investigating a vandalism report in which four handsets from pay telephones were cut from the booth and taken.

Charles H. Harley, 42, of 206 S. 1st St., West Monroe, was booked for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages, reckless driving and no driver's license by Monroe police. He was taken into custody at 9:25 p.m. in the 100 block of South Grand Street.

Two persons sustained minor injuries in a two-car collision on Thomas Road in West Monroe about 6:15 p.m. Saturday. Treated at Glenwood were Norma Massey, 22, and David L. Massey, of 201 Moreland Dr., West Monroe. Massey was driving south on Thomas Road when a vehicle operated by Jimmy Lamar Kent, 23, of 703 Wood St., West Monroe, turned off the hospital parking lot and collided with Massey.

21 Thefts Said Cleared

West Monroe police cleared a total of 21 thefts, three of which occurred in Monroe during the past two months, Friday and Saturday with the apprehension of three West Monroe youths.

West Monroe Police Chief Jeff Caldwell said a 15-year-old juvenile admitted taking gasoline from Myers Pump Station located on Wood Street, on four different occasions. The youth also admitted three different counts of stealing hubcaps in Monroe, which resulted in a total of six hubcaps taken and four of them recovered. The youth was released to the custody of his parents to await juvenile court action.

Late Friday, West Monroe officers booked two youths — James Deems, 18, of 133 Splane Dr., and Jon Walker, 17, of 117 Pinewood St., both for theft. The boys admitted during questioning Friday and Saturday, to 14 different thefts and the January burglary of Albright's Tenneco Station, located at North Seventh and Cypress Streets.

The following counts were cleared by the youths: three different hubcap thefts, occuring once at Gibson's Wholesale parking lot on Cypress Street, and twice at Western Lanes parking lot on North Seventh Street; two different soft drink machine breakins at Ridge Avenue Baptist Church; three counts of stealing gasoline from school buses at West Monroe High School; one gasoline theft at Unique Cleaners and Laundry; one shoplifting incident at Cannons Grocery on Cypress Street; and the theft of cases of soft drink bottles from Highland School on Wellerman Road, Highland Grocery Store, 1411 Wellerman Rd., Coulson's Grocery Store, 2600 N. 7th St., and Ridge Avenue Baptist Church.

Police recovered a total of four different hubcaps and various other loot taken during the two month period by the two boys.

SECOND INAUGURAL

Campaign Promise Is Kept By Romney

ESCANABA, Mich. (AP) — Beaming as brightly as the February sun shining on him, Republican Gov. George Romney kept a campaign promise for a second inaugural Saturday and called upon Michigan to "pull itself together."

This inaugural was in this Upper Peninsula community of 16,000, to which hundreds of legislators, Republican leaders and ordinary citizens came to see Romney take his oath of office for the second time in two months.

And in a speech which followed, Romney promised his administration would pay heed to the special problems of the economically distressed, but resources rich Upper Peninsula.

Some of the 300,000 who populate the 16,500 square miles of Michigan above the Straits of Mackinac from time to time classify themselves as "forgotten citizens" as far as the more populous lower peninsula and state government at Lansing—500 miles away—are concerned.

"By cooperative actions, we can prove that we recognize our common interests as citizens of Michigan are far superior to our separate interests," Romney declared. "Michigan must pull together."

He said the Upper Peninsula had been a particular victim in recent decades of what he termed "the pitting of region against region, one economic class against another, citizen against citizen, for selfish partisan gain."

LETTER DECLARES

Red Boss Against Any Anti-Semitism

LONDON (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev in a letter released Saturday night declared himself against anti-Semitism. He said the execution of economic culprits in the Soviet Union is carried out regard to race, creed or nationality.

Khrushchev defended the Soviet Union against what he termed "malicious calumny" in the West in a five-page letter to British philosopher Lord Russell. The letter was dated Thursday and replied to a series of letters and private appeals by Russell and others, including Israeli philosopher Martin Buber.

"Among the persons punished by our courts for the so-called 'economic crimes', including those sentenced to capital punishment, there are Russians, Jews, Georgians, Ukrainians, Byelorussians and people of other nationalities," Khrushchev wrote.

"In short, these decisions of the courts are not directed against people of a definite nationality, but against crimes and those who commit them."

This has been the contention of Soviet spokesmen in the past. But this was the first time Khrushchev himself had stepped directly into the argument.

In his appeals, Russell also had brought up reports of other acts of anit-Semitism in the Soviet Union. He had cited such regulations as the designation of Jews on Soviet internal passports, and pinpointed one poster in Moscow that had shown a Jew caricatured as a weed in Soviet society.

Khrushchev did not reply to these specifics.

Citing the Soviet Union's theoretical guarantees against racial prejudice, Khrushchev told Russell: "There is not and has never been a policy of anti-Semitism in the Soviet Union. I assure you that the very nature of our multinational, Socialist state excludes the possibility of such a policy."

He said Soviet citizens have always been brought up in a spirit of "friendship and brotherhood for all peoples, and in a spirit of intolerance to national and racial enmity.

"You may have no doubt that in the future I will continue this with all presistence and consistency."

A good part of the letter was devoted to a denunciation of the capitalist system and a defense in classical Marxist terms of "Soviet morality."

"He who does not work, neither shall he eat — that is our morality," Khrushchev wrote.

He said Soviet citizens who live at the expense of the labor of others are punished severely for "encroaching on the economic basis of our system."

Khrushchev said the Soviet Union is trying to rid itself of such crimes by law and by social reform.

anics of how and when an inspection should be made.

The United States proposed 8 to 10 inspections but is willing to reduce that by one if the Soviets will negotiate the mechanics.

The Soviet position appeared to Western sources as an attempt to tighten the deadlock to force bargaining at a higher level—between President Kennedy and Khrushchev—on a wide range of cold war problems.

These diplomats said that Khrushchev, for example, may insist on getting some of his demands in Berlin before accepting the West's proposals for enforcing a nuclear test ban.

He also may want to use this conference as a counterweight to resist the thrust of American policy toward Cuba, the diplomats said.

Another possible explanation is that Kuznetsov was merely killing time until he received new instructions. This theory has one important weakness. The Russians during the past week have lost ground in a propaganda sense in the conference, diplomats said.

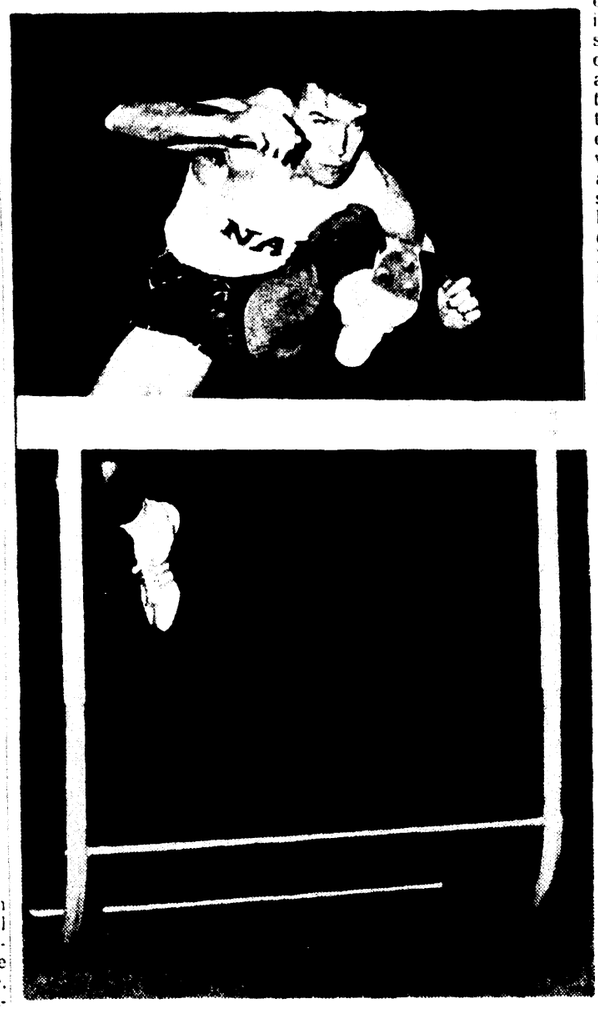
Kuznetsov's refusal to negotiate in detail on a test ban treaty has annoyed the eight nonnuclear, neutral countries represented around the table. The Russians have made a big effort to woo the eight—Brazil, Burma, Ethiopia, India, Mexico, Nigeria, Sweden and the United Arab Republic.

Courtland Gray Continues His Winning Ways

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (Special) — Midshipman Courtland Gray of Monroe, one of the best hurdlers ever to come out of Louisiana and who holds all kinds of hurdle records and medals, has resumed his friendly rivalry with teammate Roger Morgan during the Navy's indoor track season.

Young Gray, a pleasant and studious youth who is considered a "quality competitor," the ingredient of which champions are made, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. C. P. Gray Jr., who live at 1200 Fairview in Monroe, and the grandson of Mrs. C. P. Gray Sr. of 1408 Island Drive.

YOUNG COURTLAND Gray of Monroe, now a member of the U.S. Naval Academy track team, is shown while he was still at Neville where he set all kinds of state and southwide records as a hurdles man.



TAKING THE HIGH hurdles as a member of the Naval Academy track team, young Gray, one of the best hurdlers in the nation, tunes for his sophomore season with Navy. He is expected to set new collegiate records before he finishes.

Last year Gray and Morgan finished 1-2 in virtually every race they ran for the 1961-62 plebes both indoors and outdoors. Courtland had the edge during the indoor season and Roger took the lead when the two competitors moved outdoors.

"Gray and Morgan represent about as fine a 1-2 punch in the hurdles as any school could wish for," Navy track coach Tommy Thomson says. "Courtland is a real determined hurdler, who makes up for some physical drawbacks with his hard work. He's a real fine youngster and one we're proud to have on our track squad."

Gray started this season, his first on the Navy varsity, in grand style. In his first race of the indoor campaign, Courtland dashed to victory in the 60-yard low hurdles in a record time of seven seconds flat which is the fastest time the event has been run this year. He later came back to win the 60-yard high hurdles by edging, you guessed it, teammate Roger Morgan.

In the second meet, Courtland won a second in the 60-yard high hurdles and a third in the 60-yard dash. Morgan won the 60-yard high hurdles in Navy's latest outing (against Penn State) but Gray was a close second.

FOUR RECORDS

As a Navy plebe, Gray recorded four firsts and a second in the 60-yard high hurdles. He set a new plebe record in the event with a time of 7.6 seconds against the Maryland freshmen to shave 2-10th of a second off the previous best time. He lowered the mark to 7.5 seconds with a later victory in a meet against a team of area high school standouts. The only time Courtland finished second in the indoor hurdles it was to Roger Morgan, who tied his record of 7.5 seconds for the 60-yard hurdles.

During the plebe outdoor season, Gray was second in every one of his eight races over the 120-yard high hurdles and the 220-yard low hurdles. Roger Morgan garnered all of the first places.

Gray established a new Navy varsity record in the 60-yard high hurdles in last Saturday's triangular meet with Maryland and Pittsburgh.

The Louisiana midshipman dashed home in 7.3 seconds to nip Maryland's Bob Vermillion and Roger Morgan of Navy in the race. The time broke a record established by Morgan in the hurdle trials just a short time before. It also ties the Navy Field House record for the race set by Joe Friend of Pitt in 1961.

The Navy track team beat Pitt but lost to Maryland in the triangular meet. The Middie thinclads now have a 3-2 record for the season.

Young Courtland, who starred at Neville, ran the 120 high hurdles and 180 low hurdles, and a leg of the mile relay for the Tiger thinclads. He was also a halfback on the football team and was captain of the 1961 Neville track squad and won selection to All-City, All-District and All-State squads.

He was Louisiana's Double A champion in the 120 high hurdles and 180-yard low hurdles. In the two events in the state championship meet in the spring of 1961, he set new records, both of which still stand. In the low hurdles he established a new mark at 14.5 seconds and a 19.5 mark in the high hurdles. In so doing, he knocked three-tenths of a second off the old records. In that event he also was lead man on the Neville mile relay team which won the state championship.

That same year in the annual Memphis Jaycee Indoor Track Carnival in which he competed against the best in the South, young Gray set a new record of 7.9 seconds in the 60-yard high hurdles — a mark that still stands for that event, and he placed second in the 60-yard low hurdles.

In the Meet of Champions at New Orleans in 1961 in which he competed against the best in all high school division, he won both the 120-yard high hurdles and 180 low hurdles and tied the record at 19.5 in the low hurdles event.

The Monroe speedster also ran in the Florida Relays at Gainsville in 1961 in which more than 1,000 youths participated. In that meet, he placed second in the high hurdles and was leading the field by a wide margin until he accidentally glanced behind him and in doing so touched a hurdle.

Young Gray also holds all Twin City records in the high and low hurdles, and has won in various other events throughout the South. His rows of medals and honors in his room at home read like a list of "Who's Who" on track and field meets.

Young Gray also excelled in other field besides sports. He was president of his senior class, editor of the Sizzler, the Neville school newspaper, he was vice president of the student council, president of his junior class, president of his freshman class, a member of the Key Club and of the Latin and Letterman's clubs.

NEW DRUGS OFF

CHICAGO (UPI)—Fewer new drugs were marketed in 1962 than in any recent year despite drug industry research expenditures of $270 million, reports the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association. It said only about 30 important new drugs were made available to the public last year, down from 41 in 1961, 45 in 1960 and 63 in 1959. More than 100 new drugs are now awaiting clearance by the Food and Drug Administration.

Youth Caught After Escaping From LTI Here

WINNSBORO (Special) — A 15-year-old escapee of Louisiana Training Institute in Monroe was apprehended Saturday in Columbia by the Caldwell sheriff's department.

The young fugitive was taken back into custody after he was seen running from a Columbia church where he changed into clothes taken earlier from a clothesline.

The youth who escaped from LTI Friday night made his way to Mangham where a car was stolen.

Saturday morning the 1954 model car was found abandoned on Pine Street in Winnsboro and a 1961 model car owned by J. E. Godfrey of West Street was reported stolen.

The Godfrey car was recovered in Columbia early Saturday afternoon and later returned to him by Caldwell Parish sheriff's department.

Sheriff A. J. Stephens and Deputy Floyd Jones of Franklin Parish returned the vehicle found in Winnsboro to the Rodgers residence in Mangham.

CAR Slates State Meet Here Friday

Louisiana's Society of Children of the American Revolution will hold its 15th annual state conference at Hotel Virginia in Monroe March 1-2, Mrs. W. L. Alexandre, general chairman, announced Saturday.

At the second general session luncheon Saturday, guest speaker will be James A. Adkinson of Orlando, Fla., national president of the National Society of Children of the American Revolution.

The general conference Saturday will follow a dutch treat breakfast for state officers and state chairmen in the hotel dining-room from 7:30-8:30 a.m.

The conference will be called to order at 9 a.m. whem Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard will give a civic welcome and present the key to the city to the society's national president.

White And Zulu Married Again

KITWE, Northern Rhodesia (AP)—Old Etonian Wilfred Grenville-Grey and his Zulu fiancee, Edith Dhlamini, were married here Saturday for the second time in a month.

The wedding, held in the grounds of Greystone Park, near Kitwe, went off without a hitch despite a rainstorm which continued throughout the ceremony and the reception, held in an old English estate house near the park.

Edith, 30, and Wilfred, 32, were married first in Blantyre, Nyasaland, on Jan. 30 so as to be eligible for a marriage license officially. The reason for that wedding was that Northern Rhodesia marriage laws make no provision for weddings between white persons and Africans, although marriage between white and other races is legal.

The Earl and Countess of March represented Grenville-Grey's family. They had flown from London for the ceremony. The Countess of March is the bridegroom's sister.

Youth Caught After Escaping From LTI Here

WINNSBORO (Special) — A 15-year-old escapee of Louisiana Training Institute in Monroe was apprehended Saturday in Columbia by the Caldwell sheriff's department.

The young fugitive was taken back into custody after he was seen running from a Columbia church where he changed into clothes taken earlier from a clothesline.

The youth who escaped from LTI Friday night made his way to Mangham where a car was stolen.

Saturday morning the 1954 model car was found abandoned on Pine Street in Winnsboro and a 1961 model car owned by J. E. Godfrey of West Street was reported stolen.

The Godfrey car was recovered in Columbia early Saturday afternoon and later returned to him by Caldwell Parish sheriff's department.

Sheriff A. J. Stephens and Deputy Floyd Jones of Franklin Parish returned the vehicle found in Winnsboro to the Rodgers residence in Mangham.

CAR Slates State Meet Here Friday

Louisiana's Society of Children of the American Revolution will hold its 15th annual state conference at Hotel Virginia in Monroe March 1-2, Mrs. W. L. Alexandre, general chairman, announced Saturday.

White And Zulu Married Again

KITWE, Northern Rhodesia (AP)—Old Etonian Wilfred Grenville-Grey and his Zulu fiancee, Edith Dhlamini, were married here Saturday for the second time in a month.

The wedding, held in the grounds of Greystone Park, near Kitwe, went off without a hitch despite a rainstorm which continued throughout the ceremony and the reception, held in an old English estate house near the park.

Edith, 30, and Wilfred, 32, were married first in Blantyre, Nyasaland, on Jan. 30 so as to be eligible for a marriage license officially. The reason for that wedding was that Northern Rhodesia marriage laws make no provision for weddings between white persons and Africans, although marriage between white and other races is legal.

The Earl and Countess of March represented Grenville-Grey's family. They had flown from London for the ceremony. The Countess of March is the bridegroom's sister.

Colorado Cutting Taxes; Other States Seek More

EDITOR'S NOTE — Picture the pleasure on the face of a taxpayer upon learning that he's getting a 15 per cent cut in his state income tax! Well, its happening in one state this year. Other states, however, are either fighting desperately to hold the line or to dig up extra money somewhere for record budget requirements.

By RUSSELL LANE

CHICAGO (AP) — Colorado is this year's glamor queen in the realm of state taxes. Her charm is a beguiling 15 per cent cut across the board in the state income tax.

This beauty, which should fade after a gay season or two, did not blossom without some acute pain in the past among the lower-income voters.

John A. Love, Colorado's Republican governor, signed the tax cut bill Jan. 24, sitting comfortably on an $11 million cushion of surplus revenue.

Former Gov. Steve McNichols, a Democrat, may feel wistful about it. His 1959 legislature tapped the revenue gusher which financed this year's cut. Lower bracket tax rates were trebled, and the revenue brought in was much greater than had been foreseen. McNichols failed to win re-election last November. Love won on a tax cut platform.

The recent cut in Colorado was a one-year measure, but Love's administration hopes to extend it a year if revenue is sufficient.

In 46 other states legislatures are holding regular sessions. Most of them are wrestling with bigger state expenses and the need for more tax income.

No other major cuts in state taxes seem likely, and some states—instead of their taxpayers—may benefit if federal income tax changes proposed by President Kennedy are passed by Congress. Some states allow taxpayers to deduct federal taxes from their gross income before figuring state income tax. Less federal tax paid means more income taxable by the state.

Other states accept federal deduction formulae for state tax returns. In these cases, fewer federal tax deductions under proposed legislation would mean fewer state tax deductions also. In West Virginia and Alaska, however, a federal tax cut would bring a corresponding state cut because the state tax is computed as a percentage of federal tax.

Few states have gotten around to tax action at their current legislative sessions. But some indicators of climate are apparent.

Many new tax measures will hit the old favorite luxury habits — such as cigarettes, liquor and horsebetting. Most states with general sales taxes have measures under consideration to plug loopholes or broaden the bases of their levies.

Many governors have talked earnestly of holding the line against tax increases, but they also offer increased budgets. There is hope that the nation's economy will perk up and thereby loosen up more in the form of tax money. And some governors argue that their revenues will increase because their industrial development promotion will bring more business into their states.

Like Colorado, Maryland is doing all right financially. Gov. J. Millard Tawes was able to balance a record budget of nearly $604 million by using a $29 million surplus, and still have $9 million left over.

But other states which have been comfortably in the black are facing the choice of red ink or new taxes. Oregon's general fund balance dried up just as its budget jumped from a current $366 million to $405 million in Gov. Mark Hatfield's plan for the next biennium.

Oregon taxpayers have a final say on new taxes, and they've batted down cigarette tax proposals six times as well as a 10 per cent income tax boost. The lawmakers are talking more-or-less the same boosts again, but they'll have to do some selling of the need for more revenue among the voters. The state hasn't increased taxes since 1955.

In the West, both financial problems and income are related closely to growth of population and business.

In California, Gov. Edmund G. Brown's new budget of $2.2 billion is $300 million higher than the present one. He says the line can be held against new taxes by expected growth of private money in the state.

Nevada's proposed 1963-65 budget is up 29 per cent, but Gov. Grant Sawyer says needed money will come from "normal gains" in sales and gambling tax collections which provide 70 per cent of the state's revenue.

Illinois, where Gov. Otto Kerner banged into a legislative stone wall trying to get revenue reform during his first two years in office, is concentrating on patching its leaky sales tax collection system. There's a little subdued talk of need for a state income tax, but Kerner is for holding the line to meet an estimated $170 million jump in government costs for the next two years.

With next year's elections a factor in New York, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller is promising pay-as-you-go financing without a tax boost although the coming biennial budget will be up one billion dollars over that of 1959—to $2.8 billions. The administration's new college tuition plan and other fee proposals have been criticized by Democrats as tax boosts with other names.

Pennsylvania, with a record $1 billion budget and an expected $34.5 million deficit, is committed to drastic expense cutting. Gov. William W. Scranton says there won't be new taxes, but he won't submit his budget message until March.

Two states which claim to be the only ones with neither a general sales tax nor an income tax are hard pressed for revenue. A sales tax solution has been suggested in both—New Jersey and Nebraska. However, neither is likely to adopt a sales tax measure this year because of repercussions which might ensue at next year's elections.

New Jersey, which has taxed income of its commuters who work in New York but has no statewide income tax, will have to scrape up $30 to $35 million to meet expenses in the next biennium, says Gov. Richard J. Hughes. Property taxes, legislators feel, have reached the limit.

Nebraska's Gov. Frank Morrison, facing a 25 per cent boost in revenue fund requirements, sees higher taxes on cigarettes, liquor and pari-mutuel betting and plugging of loopholes as a possible solution. A state income tax bill probably will be introduced, but mainly as an ice-breaker among legislators.

Oklahoma, with its first billion-dollar budget proposed by Harry Bellmon, the new Republican governor, isn't raising taxes this year. Legislators are confident enough of a continued revenue uptrend to consider an increase in the depletion allowance for oil and gas property from 20 to 27½ per cent. If this measure is adopted, a drop in tax collections for the next two years may be something between $250,000 and $750,000.

West Virginia plans for meeting a $152.9 million record budget call for extending, and perhaps making permanent, a number of levies passed on a temporary basis. Gov. William W. Barron also is asking broadening of other current taxes.

Soft drinks may be taxed by Utah to help finance its $279.9 million budget - like virtually all state budgets in recent years, a record. Gov. George D. Clyde would slap a penny-a-bottle tax on soda water as part of a borad tax levy from 7.1 mills to 10 mills, and would add 2 cents a pack to the present 4-cent cigarette tax. Clyde has rejected bond funding, and Utah has no bonded debt.

The budget and tax pictures in a number of states, including Michigan, appears low in developing. In Indiana, Gov. Matthew E. Welsh offered a $1.2 billion balanced budget—and a $447 million appendix which he called a statement of needs, unbalanced. The only tax measure introduced early was a penny-a-pack boost proposal for the 3-cent cigarette tax. The governor has left financing to the legislature.

Some tax boosts are expected in a number of other states.

Maine's legislature has been asked by Gov. John H. Reed to raise the 3 per cent sales tax and approve bond financing for new institutional and educational buildings. Both proposals may run into trouble.

Arkansas, Massachusetts, Vermont and Montana are expected to resist pressure to raise taxes.

Georgia will consider a withholding measure to speed collection of corporation income taxes. The plan would bring in $18 million earlier than in the past, and that, with a $22 million surplus left by former Gov. Ernest Vandiver, would be about sufficient to handle a $124 million budget boost proposed by Gov. Carl E. Sanders without any tax increase.

New tax proposals in the Tennessee legislature include broadening the base of state sales tax laws to include graduated applications to utility bills (electric, gas, water, telephone); application of the 3 per cent sales tax to laundry and dry clearning bills; also to labor on such repairs as television, radio, electrical appliance, automobile; increasing the cigarette tax from 5 to 7 cents per pack, and placing a gross receipts tax on soft drink bottlers.

All these were proposed by Gov. Frank Clement to raise $61 million. They must hurdle the legislature and apparently will meet strong opposition. The Clement budget is approximately $1.62 billion, a Tennessee record.

'GOLDEN CHALLENGE'

Bright Governor's Picture Is Painted

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Former New Orleans Mayor de-Lesseps S. Morrison was in Lake Charles Saturday painting a bright picture of the "golden challenge" that awaits Louisiana's next governor.

But Morrison declined to state specifically if he will be a candidate in the December gubernatorial race.

Morrison, now serving as U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States, spoke at a news conference and, later in the day, met with area leaders at a closed luncheon.

Askel when he intended to make a formal announcement, Morrison said, "I have at least five or six months of real hard work ahead of me, and if I do run, I don't propose to conduct as long a campaign as last time.

"I feel this campaign could be shorter, saving time, money and patience."

Morrison added, "There is, of course, a question that I may not run. What I am doing now is important. But if conditions continue to be encouraging, it does look like victory is in sight."

If he is a candidate, Morrison said, he was sure he would have to resign his present position to make the race.

He said the state presents a great challenge and despite being in dire circumstances "it has more resources than any one could hope to have in addition to a large tax revenue.

"However, the state must also have a sound reputation, and this we do not have."

Morrison said Louisiana should seek the best qualified people for state office and seek unity and political leadership.

"With a good state political leadership, and our excellent representatives in Washington, we can move forward. We need personal salesmanship and I feel this is where I could be helpful as governor in bringing big business into the state."

Speaking of his efforts in the Morrison said Latin countries now have political unity, in addition to economic unity.

Betancourt Gets 'Big' Welcome From Mexicans

MEXICO CITY (AP)—President Romul Betancourt of Venezuela arrived from the United States on Saturday for an official visit to Mexico and received the warmest reception — and biggest guard — of his current tour.

Half a million Mexicans cheered, waved flags and showered the visitor, his wife and daughter with confetti along the avenues and streets from the airport to his hotel.

About 2,000 were at the airport, where President Adolfo Lopez Mateos and his wife welcomed the Betancourts.

Betancourt came from Puerto Rico, Washington, New York and Miami where he had denounced what he called a constant Communist threat to his and other governments directed from Cuba.

Lopez Mateos did not mention the terroristic Communist aggression against Betancourt in his speech of welcome, as President Kennedy had done at the White House. Instead they talked of their governments' concern for social progress to raise the living standards of their people.

There has been speculation that Betancourt will try to get Mexico to join with Venezuela and other nations in the Organization of American States to tighten the isolation of Cuba. Mexico has followed a hands-off policy toward Cuba.

Security safeguards here were far more in evidence than in the United States, where Betancourt seemingly did not run the risk of Communist demonstrations such as were threatened here.

Thousands of troops and uniformed police, virtually shoulder to shoulder, lined the eight-mile route from airport to hotel.

Police arrested 12 women dressed in black in downtown Mexico City 40 minutes before Betancourt's chartered jet airliner arrived.

They had gathered at the statue of Venezuela's liberator, Simon Bolivar, for a Communist demonstration. But there was no sign of hostility on his entrance into the capital.

'GOLDEN CHALLENGE'

Bright Governor's Picture Is Painted

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Former New Orleans Mayor deLesseps S. Morrison was in Lake Charles Saturday painting a bright picture of the "golden challenge" that awaits Louisiana's next governor.

But Morrison declined to state specifically if he will be a candidate in the December gubernatorial race.

Morrison, now serving as U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States, spoke at a news conference and, later in the day, met with area leaders at a closed luncheon.

Askel when he intended to make a formal announcement, Morrison said, "I have at least five or six months of real hard work ahead of me, and if I do run, I don't propose to conduct as long a campaign as last time.

"I feel this campaign could be shorter, saving time, money and patience."

Morrison added, "There is, of course, a question that I may not run. What I am doing now is important. But if conditions continue to be encouraging, it does look like victory is in sight."

If he is a candidate, Morrison said, he was sure he would have to resign his present position to make the race.

He said the state presents a great challenge and despite being in dire circumstances "it has more resources than any one could hope to have in addition to a large tax revenue.

"However, the state must also have a sound reputation, and this we do not have."

Morrison said Louisiana should seek the best qualified people for state office and seek unity and political leadership.

"With a good state political leadership, and our excellent representatives in Washington, we can move forward. We need personal salesmanship and I feel this is where I could be helpful as governor in bringing big business into the state."

Speaking of his efforts in the Morrison said Latin countries now have political unity, in addition to economic unity.

Betancourt Gets 'Big' Welcome From Mexicans

MEXICO CITY (AP)—President Romul Betancourt of Venezuela arrived from the United States on Saturday for an official visit to Mexico and received the warmest reception — and biggest guard — of his current tour.

Half a million Mexicans cheered, waved flags and showered the visitor, his wife and daughter with confetti along the avenues and streets from the airport to his hotel.

About 2,000 were at the airport, where President Adolfo Lopez Mateos and his wife welcomed the Betancourts.

Betancourt came from Puerto Rico, Washington, New York and Miami where he had denounced what he called a constant Communist threat to his and other governments directed from Cuba.

Lopez Mateos did not mention the terroristic Communist aggression against Betancourt in his speech of welcome, as President Kennedy had done at the White House. Instead they talked of their governments' concern for social progress to raise the living standards of their people.

There has been speculation that Betancourt will try to get Mexico to join with Venezuela and other nations in the Organization of American States to tighten the isolation of Cuba. Mexico has followed a hands-off policy toward Cuba.

Security safeguards here were far more in evidence than in the United States, where Betancourt seemingly did not run the risk of Communist demonstrations such as were threatened here.

Thousands of troops and uniformed police, virtually shoulder to shoulder, lined the eight-mile route from airport to hotel.

Police arrested 13 women dressed in black in downtown Mexico City 40 minutes before Betancourt's chartered jet airliner arrived.

They had gathered at the statue of Venezuela's liberator, Simon Bolivar, for a Communist demonstration. But there was no sign of hostility on his entrance into the capital.

LIGHT RAIN is forecast Sunday for the western Gulf coast region into the lower Mississippi valley. Light snow or snow flurries are likely from the eastern Ohio valley and lower Lakes region into parts of the North Atlantic states, the northern Rockies, the northern Plains and along the eastern shores of Lake Michigan. It will be warmer along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, across the southern Plains into portions of the central and southern Plateau and Pacific coast. It will be colder in the east-central Plains, the mid-Mississippi valley and the upper Lakes region. (AP Wirephoto)

Carrier May Be Floating Repair Shop

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army is considering use of an aircraft carrier as a floating repair shop to keep its helicopters flying in the war against Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam, by Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, Army chief of staff.

The proposal was advanced at the highest Defense Department level after a recent trip to the South Vietnamese fighting front here that "the problems of helicopter maintenance are large."

About a third of the craft are out of action for serving most of the time.

Army headquarters confirmed that the carrier repair shop plan was under study after the Army Times, a service journal, said the battle scarred U.S.S. Langley might be used for that purpose.

The 20-year-old, 11 - thousand ton carrier, under the name Lafayette, has been serving in the French Navy since 1951 but is being returned to the United States.

She is due back in Philadelphia March 5.

Gun Collectors Display Wares

By ED HOLLIDAY
World Staff Writer

An unexpectedly large collection of weapons and people appeared for the first session Saturday of the Louisiana Gun Collectors Assn.'s annual gun show in the Hotel Virginia.

Roughly 2,000 weapons of all types, sizes and sorts were displayed on 75 tables in the mezzanine of the Hotel Virginia, Buck Copeland, a director of the Monroe association, said.

The show to continue through 3 p.m. today is the local gun collectors' first annual exhibit in the Twin Cities.

Members, unsure of how the first show would be received, were pleasantly surprised at the number of persons interested in the show. By 5 p.m. Saturday about 1,000 people had come to the show.

A total of 41 gun collectors brought their wares from as far away as Columbus, Ohio, Odessa, Tex., Oklahoma City, Okla. and Illinois. A large number of collectors also were present from throughout Mississippi, Arkansas and Louisiana.

TOP COLLECTION

According to one local gun club member, a veteran of numerous gun shows, a collector from Odessa, Tex., brought one of the finest collection of Winchesters he had even seen. One of his Winchesters, a very rare model made in 1873, was valued at $3,000.

Another collector, Lonnie Lambert of Shiner, Tex., was the proud owner of a Henry rifle made in 1860. Lambert who said his Henry repeater was very rare and engraved was priced at $800.

Lambert explained the Henry rifle was the forerunner of most lever action repeating rifles and was a favorite of Union officers during the Civil War. The weapon which held 14 cartridges was the one Lambert said that Civil War soldiers exclaimed, "You could load it on Sunday and shoot it all week."

He went on to point out that Henry first had the patent on a lever action rifle which Winchester later bought.

A typical example of the 41 gun collectors, Lambert's collection numbered 120. A more modern weapon of Lambert's was a 7.26 calibre Russian automatic Tokarev rifle which he priced at $35. Lambert said the weapon was a type used by Chinese Reds against United Nations forces in Korea.

Collectors displayed guns and pistols dating from the very recent to the earliest of firearms.

Countless numbers of muzzle loading and flint-lock weapons were among the collectors' displays. Bill Coggins of Monroe has about 300 weapons, some dating back to the 1480s.

Oddities and ingenuity also were included among the collection of firearms. One double - barrel weapon was composed of a .58 calibre bore on one side, a .28 gauge shotgun bore on the other.

Many military weapons also were in evidence ranging from Japanese and German lugers on the one hand to a World War I .30 calibre drum-fed light machine gun and a Thompson submachine gun. The automatic weapons were welded to prevent functioning.

Although the bulk of weapons were "collectors items," modern guns for hunting and target shooting also were on display. One display consisted of a number of oddly shaped custom - made stocks for target shooting.

The collectors who hold their shows for increasing or decreasing their stock delight not only in exhibiting their wares to the curious, but also trade among themselves to get "new blood" in their weapons collections.

Accompanying exhibits of guns were many sidelines such as knives, bayonets and swords which included an original bowie knife, an Asiatic dagger and foils.

Odd-sized calibres of ammunition also was offered along with a large Nazi flag and numerous collections of coins and bills.

Lambert's collection also consisted of a gold knob-head black cane, reminiscent of Bat Masterson's baton. The cane sheathed a cold gleaming two - and - ond - half - foot steel blade.

The cane dated back to about the 1890's and came from England, Lambert said.

Aside from weapons another of Lambert's items was long rowelled spurs worn by Spanish Conquistadores in Mexico. Lambert explained the rowells could be locked by inserting a piece of wood into a hole preventing the rowell from turning.

"Spainards rode blood flanked horses," Lambert said, emphasizing the cruelty of the spurs and their users.

AMONG THE SIGHTS which visitors to Natchez Pilgrimage will see are the beautiful old homes. Some of them shown above are (1) The Briers, birthplace of Varina Howell. Here the "Rose of Mississippi" in 1845 married Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy. It is now the home of Mrs. W. W. Wall, member of Pilgrimage Garden Club. (2) Elmscourt, 1840, famed as the "House of a Thousand Candles." It contains many unusual and beautiful relics of the past. It is the home of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas H. MacNeil of Natchez and Princeton, N. J. She is a member of the Natchez Garden Club. (3) Monteigne, built in 1855 by Confederate General William T. Martin. The classic building is surrounded by century old live oaks and a superb collection of azaleas and camellias. It is the home of Mrs. W. J. Kendall and family. She is a member of the Pilgrimage Garden Club. (4) D'evereux, built in 1840, is a fine example of southern Colonial architecture, pure Greek revival. Henry Clay, close friend of the original owners, was entertained here. It belongs to the T. B. Buckles family, member of the Pilgrimage Garden Club. (5) Richmond, 1770-1832-1860, French plantation, Greek revival and Colonial, representing three periods of Natchez history. It is the home of the John Shelby Marshall family, who have owned and occupied it since 1832. They hold membership in the Pilgrimage Garden Club. (6) Hope Farm, 1774-1789, once home of Spanish governor, is charmingly furnished in antiques. It is the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Balfour Miller. She is the originator of the Natchez pilgrimage and a member of the Pilgrimage Garden Club. The picture shows rear of house. (7) Linden, built prior to 1790, was once home of Thomas B. Reed, first U.S. senator from Mississippi. It has been occupied since 1840 by the Conner family and descendants, and belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fauntleroy, who are affiliated with the Pilgrimage Garden Club. (8) Melrose, built in 1845, is a perfect example of the Old South's stately mansions. The house, furnishings and grounds are unchanged since antebellum days. Audubon's Natchez landscape hangs here. It is the home of Mrs. G. M. Kelly, a member of the Natchez Garden Club. In bottom row of picture, from left: Mrs. J. Balfour Miller, originator and permanent chairman of the Natchez Pilgrimage. VISITORS TO SEE

Fine Mansions And Pageantry

NATCHEZ, Miss. (Special) — The annual Natchez Pilgrimage, a 30-day display of fine homes and fond memories, opens Saturday.

That night, many notables, including Mississippi Governor and Mrs. Ross Barnett, will attend the first performance of the Confederate Pageant, which will be climaxed with the appearance of the Pilgrimage Garden Club's king and queen.

The pageant royalty are Miss Alma Dale Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Campbell of "Edgewood," a sophomore at Marymount College in Tarrytown, New York, and Albert Sidney Johnson, Natchez lumberman and business leader, son of Mrs. R. C. Murphy of Shreveport, and the late H. Ben Johnson.

TABLEAUX

The tableaux of "Days of Long Ago," will begin with commemoration of the raising of the first American flag in Natchez. Participants in the precision drill team's appearance will be cadets of Chamberlain Hunt Military Academy, established in 1879 at historic Port Gibson, Miss.

Other tableaux show life in the romantic period of great wealth just prior to the War Between the States.

The pageant has been a long time in the planning. Since early last September, 10 over - all chairmen of the pageant committee have held weekly meetings at Stanton Hall to work with sub-committee chairmen in formulating details.

Natchez, long a center of southern culture, is located on a high bluff overlooking the Mississippi River, a mighty link in the nation's water routes of commerce.

LOCATION

The Pilgrimage City is about 92 miles southeast of Monroe, but during its annual display of the peageantry of the old Confederacy, it becomes a focal point for visitors from many sections of the nation.

Visitors tour some of the homes that once looked down on some of the nation's great. Linden, built before 1790, once was the home of Mississippi's first U.S. senator, Thomas B. Reed. And the Briers is the spot where Varina Howell became the bride of Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederate States.

And behind a setting of water oaks is Springfield, where Andrew Jackson's turbulent marriage to Rachel Robards began.

There is an air of permancy about the structures which are opened to the pilgrims. There is stately Melrose whose red bricks stood the stresses of 100 years.

The shades of the past surround the visitors, as they recall events of a century past when cavaliers in gray uniforms swept low before their ladies.

COLORFUL

Traditionally, an abundance of color is provided by the array of natural beauty lining the driveways of the mansions. These range from pink azaleas to blood red camellias and cotton white buds of other flowers.

It was more than 30 years ago that Mississippi garden clubs assembled in Natchez to view the lovely banks of flowers, but a severe cold snap had withered the plants. The mansion owners then studied the problem and the Pilgrimage came into being.

Mrs. J. Balfour Miller, is the originator and permanent chairman of the Natchez Pilgrimage and has received recognition from many sources.

Thirty mansions are open to Pilgrims, or visitors, during the month of March. On an average day between 500 and 700 persons make individual tours which consist of visits to five homes.

Some mansions have original furnishings. An example of this can be found at Melrose, where great white columns stand out against red brick facade. There Mrs. G. M. D. Kelly points proudly to green drapes that were a part of the original furnishings when it was built in 1845. The upholstery of the graceful, curved chairs in the Green Room furnished the pattern that gave the name Melrose to silverware.

At Elgin visitors see a grandfather clock built in England more than 300 years ago, and a wooden fan that was used to shoo away flies at the planter's dinner table.

The main wing of Richmond was built in 1794. In its drawing room stands a Henry Herz piano, its metal strings no longer vibrant. But there is melody in its history. Jenny Lind, the Swedish nightingale of the 19th century, sang to its chords when muddy roads prevented her own piano from reaching the city.

The hero of the Union victory at Vicksburg, Gen. U.S. Grant, once had dinner at Richmond plantation. However the Marshall family gave three sons to the South during the War Between the States.

Wives Finish March; Hubbies To Keep House

ORANGE GROVE, Miss. (AP) — Three Orange Grove housewives were resting their weary feet Saturday after walking 50 miles so their husbands would do 50 hours of household chores.

"I don't regret it at all," Mrs. Earl Phillips, 43-year-old mother of one, said.

"But I wouldn't walk it again."

Also finishing the march Saturday that started in Gulfport and ended west of the Rigolets Bridge in Louisiana were Mrs. Bill Hayes 41, mother of four; and Mrs. Hudson Puckett, 32, mother of three.

Mrs. Hayes and Mrs. Puckett are sisters.

Mrs. Hope Wilson, who sprained an ankle and ran a temperature, dropped out three miles short of the finish.

FOR GETTING TICKETS

Paul Martin Day Deadline Is Set

Thursday has been set as the deadline for sale of advance tickets to the Paul Martin Appreciation Day banquet to be held Saturday night.

Tickets to the affair, in honor of the veteran executive sports editor of the News-Star — World, will be on sale at several locations in the Twin Cities and northeast Louisiana until Thursday, according to Tony Renfro, member of the Appreciation Day committee in charge of tickets.

The banquet will be held at 7 p.m. Saturday, March 2, at the Westminster Recreation Center off Loop Road. The banquet will not be a staff affair. Jack Fiser, former sports editor of the Shreveport Times, will be the featured speaker.

Places where banquet tickets may be purchased include Frenchy's Restaurant, Ouachita Bank, Silversteins, R&A Jewelry, Gay Clothing, Brown - Rivers - Scogin and Cassanova's Restaurant in Monroe, Colbert's Hardware in West Monroe, Sterlington Bank, Nichols Ford in Rayville and the mayor's office in Winnsboro.

Tickets may also be purchased by mail by writing "Paul Martin Appreciation Day, Ouachita National Bank, Monroe, La." The tickets are $3.00 each.

They may also be purchased from members of the Appreciation Day committee — Chairman Jack Hesketh, Jim Malone, Jack Rowan, George Luffey, Don Spargo, Bob Ellen, Buddy Foreman, Bert Hatten, Tony Lewis, Tony Embanato, Jack Gates, Bob Anderson, Saul Adler, French Thibeaux and Tony Renfro, chairman of ticket sales and donations.

Martin will be honored for his long service to sports in northeast Louisiana. He has been with the Monroe newspapers for 39 years, 35 in news and sports.

Sports editor since 1941, Martin was instrumental in the beginning of an athletic program in the Monroe recreation department. He has served as commissioner of recreation softball and is presently on the board of directors of Monroe Little League.

Martin was president of the old Northeast Louisiana League, a semi-pro baseball circuit that featured such stars as Joe Bill Adcock, Dave Madison and Milt and Frank Bolling, all of whom went on to the major leagues.

The veteran newspaperman served as president of the Louisiana Associated Press Sports Writers Association and vice-president of that organization's successor, the present Louisiana Sports Writers Association.

Ransom Ship Leaves N.O.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The cargo ship Priamos left New Orleans Saturday carrying 2,600 tons of food and medical supplies to Cuba as ransom for 1,113 prisoners taken in the Bay of Pigs invasion.

Longshoremen finished loading the $1.5 million shipment which, the Red Cross said, would bring to about $30 million in supplies sent to the Fidel Castro regime for the prisoners already returned to the United States.

Castro demanded a total of $53 million in supplies.

Various companies throughout the nation offered to meet the demand. The Priamos was expected to reach Cuba in 30 hours, or by daylight Monday.

Youth Week Services Set

Daily services will be held this week, starting today and running through Saturday, at First United Pentecostal Church on Montgomery Street in West Monroe, in observance of Youth Week.

The services, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. daily, will be presided over by various youth groups in the church. Mrs. Tom Fred Tenny is in charge of the overall activities for the week.

332 Viet Congs Reported Killed During Week

SAIGON (UPI)—A total of 332 Communist guerrillas were killed and 82 captured in American-backed South Vietnamese offensives during the past week, a U. S. military spokesman reported Saturday.

The spokesman said the Communist Viet Cong death toll, which appeared to be unusually high for such a period, was the result of 253 separate actions involving Vietnamese troops, supported by U. S. helicopters and American - piloted Vietnamese planes.

Government casualties were not given.

American helicopters had one of their worst days of the week Thursday when two out of 16 U.S. Army H21 troop-carrying helicopters were shot down by Communist ground fire during an assault against Viet Cong strongholds in mountainous Quang Ngai Province, north of Saigon.

The spokesman said four other helicopters were hit by enemy fire but continued flying. He said there were no American casualties, and the downed craft were repaired later and flown back to base.

A Vietnamese government spokesman, meanwhile, reported that five government soldiers were killed and 19 were wounded when two LCM landing craft in which they were riding hit a Viet Cong mine in one of the hundreds of canals in South Viet Nam's southern Delta region. One of the craft was sunk by the blast, the spokesman said.

Seattle Man Is Sought In N.O. Murder

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Police were looking for 20-year-old Seattle, Wash., man Saturday in connection with the death of a woman in a New Orleans apartment.

The woman, Patricia A. Carlton, 30, a native of Shelbyville, Ind., died from a broken larynx Thursday, an autopsy showed.

Wellborn F. Rounsaville, who occupied the apartment, said he let the victim and another man use the apartment while he was waxing funtiture there.

After the man left, Rounsaville told police he found the woman's nude body on the bed and called police. Capt. Myron Weysham of the homicide department said a lie detector test cleared Rounsaville.

A warrant notice for the unidentified Seattle man followed.

332 Viet Congs Reported Killed During Week

SAIGON (UPI)—A total of 332 Communist guerrilas were killed and 82 captured in American-backed South Vietnamese offensives during the past week, a U. S. military spokesman reported Saturday.

The spokesman said the Communist Viet Cong death toll, which appeared to be unusually high for such a period, was the result of 253 separate actions involving Vietnamese troops, supported by U. S. helicopters and American - piloted Vietnamese planes.

Government casualties were not given.

American helicopters had one of their worst days of the week Thursday when two out of 16 U.S. Army H21 troop-carrying helicopters were shot down by Communist ground fire during an assault against Viet Cong strongholds in mountainous Quang Nagai Province, north of Saigon.

The spokesman said four other helicopters were hit by enemy fire but continued flying. He said there were no American casualties, and the downed craft were repaired later and flown back to base.

A Vietnamese government spokesman, meanwhile, reported that five government soldiers were killed and 19 were wounded when two LCM landing craft in which they were riding hit a Viet Cong mine in one of the hundreds of canals in South Viet Nam's southern Delta region. One of the craft was sunk by the blast, the spokesman said.

MORNING WORLD

PROVIDENCE PORT

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — This town has "an opportunity to join the new and growing family of bustling river ports," according to Col. Warren S. Everett. U.S. Army Corps District Engineer of Vicksburg.

Everett, speaking to the Rotary Club spoke on the proposed harbor here. The Lake Providence Port Commission has been working a number of years to secure a port here. The overall cost of the project will be about $800,000 to dredge Haraman Chute and build minimum warehouse facilities.

Voters will ballot March 23 on a proposed port tax which would be set at two and one-half mills. Everett said that, "Already, Greenville, Vicksburg and Natchez are becoming thriving harbors." State aid has been promised but $550,000 remains to be raised.

Seattle Man Is Sought In N.O. Murder

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Police were looking for 20-year-old Seattle, Wash., man Saturday in connection with the death of a woman in a New Orleans apartment.

The woman, Patricia A. Carlton, 30, a native of Shelbyville, Ind., died from a broken larynx Thursday, an autopsy showed.

Wellborn F. Rounsaville, who occupied the apartment, said he let the victim and another man use the apartment while he was waxing funtiture there.

After the man left, Rounsaville told police he found the woman's nude body on the bed and called police. Capt. Myron Weysham of the homicide department said a lie detector test cleared Rounsaville.

A warrant notice for the unidentified Seattle man followed.

BOOKS

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

New Books Now In Local Library

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Several interesting new books of fiction have been added to the library collection during the past week. "The Birthday King" by Gabriel Fielding has its setting in Nazi Germany and is a story of conflict within a family. It is not a pleasant story, but is very well written. Alexander Solzhenitsyn is the author of a very unusual book called "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich." The unusual thing about this book is that it is the story of life in a Soviet Labor Camp and is one of the few books of this nature that the Russian Government has allowed to come out of the country. "The Centaur" by John Updike is a modern novel based on the analogy to the story of the Centaur from Greek Mythology. It is a sophisticated story which will not appeal to all readers, but will be especially read by some. "My Name Is Morgan" by William Woolfolk has its setting in Hollywood and is the story of a self-made man. It shows his rise by any means that he can find legal or otherwise. He is not a pleasant character, but the book is fast-paced and will appeal to some readers. "Triumph" is the title of the latest novel by Philip Wylie. This is the story of a group of people who survive the all out atomic war and their reactions when they were left in a contaminated world. It is not a pleasant book and it contains more preaching than plot, but it is a book to make one stop and think and should be required reading for those in a position to start World War III. "Seven Tears for Apollo" by Phyllis A. Whitney is a story of intrigue and mystery with a setting in modern day Greece. Frank Slaughter has written another of his interesting stories concerned with the medical profession, called "Devil's Harvest." It has its setting in Laos and is a very interesting and timely book.

The books of non-fiction added during the past week provide a variety of interesting information. "The Foreign Service of the United States" by William Barnes and John Morgan gives a very complete picture of the operation of the foreign service and the opportunities in this service for careers. "Repairing China and Glass" by William Klein is a book which will be widely used and appreciated. Three interesting books about the Huguenots who settled many New York were recently given to the Library by a patron who had purchased them and found that they were not related to his own line of research. He felt that there might be someone in this area who was vitally interested. Two of the volumes are concerned with the Hasbruck family in America and contain a wealth of genealogical information. These two books were placed in the genealogy section. The other book written by Kenneth E. Hasbruck is called "The Street of the Huguenots" and is a book of description of the houses and people who made the settlement of New Paltz in upper New York.

Medieval Tale Set In York

THE KING'S PERSONS. By Jeanne Greenberg. Holt, Rinehart. $4.95.

If you pick up this novel in the hope of finding an interesting narrative, you won't be disappointed. It is about an unusual period in history; it has an engrossing story to tell, and it is well written.

But this book also has merits on a higher level than mere narrative strength.

The setting is medieval England — specifically, York in the years from 1182 onward. Reduced to the simplest terms, the situation is this:

The medieval age had reached a point where finance was a major factor in the struggle between king and the land-owning barons. The king has given his protection to the money-lending Jews for the simple purpose of undercutting the power of the heavily taxed barons, then the king taxes the Jews for his own benefit. But the Jews, denied ownership of land, manage to hang on to some of the gold that is being drained away.

At first the Jews are tolerated by the Christians as necessary financiers. But inevitable there rises a hatred toward them, with tragic results.

The principal figures are Abram, the skeptical son of the wealthiest Jew in York; Ett, the little Christian who had become a girl-servant in the household of Abram's father, and Simon, the questioning young member of a hard-scrabble religious order, who for a time became Abram's friend.

The medieval story, ending in a mob massacre, has messages for the reader who remembers the genocide policy of the Germans in the 1940s.

It is written in a way that brings a savor of medieval concepts and Old Testament poetic expression to the telling.

Mrs. Greenberg became fascinated with the medieval period in her college years.

'Sound Of Music' Orchestra Coming

By JOHN CALE

With Little Theatre's "Annie Get Your Gun" drawing standing ovations at Strauss Playhouse and a traveling ballet troupe still evoking favorable comment from those who saw it here Tuesday, there's still more coming.

The Louisiana Tech Concert Association will take the wraps off the national company's presentation of the Broadway musical, "Sound of Music," Tuesday in Howard Auditorium. And the following week, Northeast Concerts will present the Dallas Symphony under the direction of Donald Johanos as an event of March 6.

Lest we reach the point of cultural saturation so that our receptors can't pick up the remaining features offered in the area, we might run a recheck on things that have happened in rapid succession over the past week.

We caught Little Theatre's "Annie" on opening night, and deadline caught us 45 minutes after the final curtain. This didn't allow for elaboration on many of the show's features which merited careful attention. But the Berlin tunes, color and movement of the piece, supported by good music from the pit, pointed to an ultimate success if not an outright hit. We predicted "smooth sailing," and the standing ovation Wednesday evening bears this out. There may be "No Business Like Show Business," but there's also nothing like several good melodies to put over a musical comedy.

Speaking of music, the orchestra with the San Francisco Ballet provided mood and motivation to a degree seldom heard for the "Fantasma" and "Caprice" numbers. It was not a large orchestra when compared to a full symphony, but there was absolutely no lost effort. The two men in the percussion section said they were taking the place of five as called for in the score. Think of the confusion it would cause if a passage calling for a few delicate taps on a triangle would come forward from a kettle drum. In such a scene as the "Witches' Sabbath" in the Prokofieff "Fantasma," this would cause the feathers and fur to fly — or flop. All a matter of mood.

By the way, that idea of an ordinary civilian getting himself caught among a dozen or so witches, beatniks or assorted freaks, has been good theatre fare since prehistoric days. Goethe inserted it in his drama, "Faust," and the highly romantic composer, Hector Berlioz, worked it into the last movement of his "Symphonic Fantastique." The Prokofieff number as danced by the San Francisco group here is a more modern work but showed definite Berlioz leanings.

What does one do where the plot places the hero in such an impossible position? The wanderer, he was the human being, in "Fantasma" fell in love with the leading witch lady. He was hopelessly outnumbered by supernatural characters to the extent that the choreographer accomplished a miracle when he arranged their dances so they wouldn't butt heads. Finally, the wanderer met with a merciful death.

This same problem is faced by the painter who finds he has painted himself into a corner. He can overcome the frustration by walking over his own work, or just standing there until it dries.

Following such an analysis, "Sound of Music," the story of an Austrian musical family, the Dallas Symphony should meet with highly receptive, open-minded audiences.

Martha Awash In Paris

MARTHA IN PARIS. By Margery Sharp. Little, Brown. $3.95.

There are small bypaths in contemporary letters, which sometimes lead into odd or droll fascinations. In this category fall the concoctions of Margery Sharp.

The heroine of this short novel is an 18-year-old, pudgy English girl whose stolidity is so great that she speaks only in brief sentences; a girl who eats like a horse, is built like one and has an equine immunity to lasting affection. It happens that she has a talent for drawing.

Martha has been raised by an aunt and uncle (this novel is a sequel to a story of Martha's childhood, called "The Eye of Love") and the uncle's boss, a Mr. Joyce, feels that he has found a talented protege in fat Martha.

So our heroine is packed off to Paris to study art. To most people such an assignment would have all sorts of bohemian connotations. Paris is supposed to be a naughty place, and art schools of course would be pretty daring.

But our plump, stolid Martha's interests, aside from drawing and food, are concentrated on nice hot baths. Not for Martha are the red wine and heady music of Paris, the standard formula for seduction.

Naturally, when she meets in Paris a prim young Englishman whose mother owns a superb bathroom, there are bound to be complications. In the end, the single-minded Martha solves the ensuing problem with characteristic aplomb.

Here we have a book without a ponderous message; in fact if it has any message at all, it is pleasantly obscure. Miss Sharp is supposed to be a sophisticated writer, but undoubtedly that is in the English sense, not the French. The suspicion rises that she is an expert puppeteer with a talent on the obverse side of life. So as you read this novel, relax and have a cruller. With a spot of tea.

SPEAKER ANNOUNCED

College Conference Slated For Tulane

Dr. Logan Wilson, president of the American Council on Education, will be featured speaker in the first general session of the Louisiana College Conference to be held at Tulane University in New Orleans on March 1-2. Dr. Clint Hanna, dean of instruction at Northeast State and LCC president, has announced.

The two-day meeting also will have The Very Rev. Andrew C. Smith, president of Loyola University, as second general session speaker, with the first session slated as a banquet at 7 p.m., March 1, in the University Center, and the second session slated for 9 a.m. on March 2, also in the University Center. Dr. Wilson's address will be "A Better Partnership for Government and Education."

Various sectional meetings will be held on March 1 from 2-4 p.m. on the Tulane campus.

Internationally known as an educator, Dr. Wilson probably is most noted for his work as president of the main University of Texas, then later as president of the entire University of Texas System. He also had been chancellor at Texas, and had taught at various other colleges and universities.

He was professor and head of the sociology department at Tulane University from 1941-43.

Well-known as a lecturer, he includes among his more notable assignments those of the Salzburg Seminar in American Studies, Harvard University Institute for College and University Administrators, Duke University, and the University of Connecticut.

The author of numerous articles and books, he is most noted for his collaboration with William L. Kolb for his book, "The Academic Man, Sociological Analysis."

He is prominently recorded in Who's Who in America, the Directory of American Scholars, Who Knows and What, World Biography, and American Men of Science.

A native of Huntsville, Tex., he received his B.A. degree from Sam Houston State College, his M.A. degree from the University of Texas, his Ph.D. degree from Harvard University, and has received honorary LL.D. degrees from Tulane University, Texas Christian University, the University of Rhode Island, and Washington University.

Tech Dormitory Open House Set For Thursday

RUSTON (Special) — Open house will be held at South Hall dormitory at Louisiana Tech Feb. 28, from 3 until 5 p.m. because of interest expressed by Tech students and faculty members since its recent conversion into a girls' dormitory.

Guests will be received in the parlor and punch and coffee will be served.

South Hall was built in 1947 by the federal government to meet the housing shortage expected at Tech because of the returning World War II veterans. It was erected as a barracks provided with folding cots.

In 1951 the building was partitioned to make rooms and turned over to Tech for use as a men's dormitory.

Because of the condition of Harper Hall, now undergoing demolition, freshmen girls were moved into South Hall at the beginning of the spring semester.

New Orleans Man Is Telephone Chief

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Charles Read of New Orleans was elected president Friday of the Southern Telephone Answering Association at the end of its third annual convention here.

Last year's president was Mrs. Aline B. King of Shreveport.

Mrs. Ruth Bearden of Nashville, Tenn., was named vice president and Mrs. King was elected to serve next year as secretary treasurer.

The convention is scheduled in Miami, Fla., in 1964.

CONCERT

— You would guess there is less desire for artistic restraint among eastern musicians than among western ones on the basis of recorded performances by a Russian chamber orchestra and a Yugoslav one. Their programs were somewhat similar in that both merge the classic with the 20th century.

One is that of the Moscow Chamber Orchestra, Rudolf Barshai conducting (London - 6332). The other belongs to the Solisti di Zabreb, Antonio Janigro conducting (RCA Victor - 2653). The Russians mingled two Vivaldi concertos with Bartok's Divertimento and the Yugoslavs combined pieces of Couperin, Corelli, Mozart and Benjamin Britten.

The musicianship displayed by both ensembles is of super refinement but refinement that is more of the technicalities of string instrument playing, particularly of intonation, and less of interpretative values. There is an evident assumption that all the compositions required emphatic statements — and that they get.

How long has it been since you heard Sibelius' 1st symphony — or any Sibelius symphny for that matter? The 1st especially has fallen into such disuse that a new recording of it by the Philadelphia Orchestra with Eugene Ormandy conducting sounds almost like a revelation, particularly as Ormandy unfolds it, with his deep sympathy for this composer, and with the beautiful string sounds of this orchestra which fit the Sibelius spirit so admirably (Columbia-6395).

And there is a sumptuous new recording of Dvorak's 4th, another pleasing symphony which isn't performed as much as it should be. This one is perhaps more tuneful and more unabashed in its plain emotions than the others of Dvorak, the "New World" not excepted. The recording is that of the Philharmonia Orchestra. Carlo Maria Giulini conducting (Angel-35847).

Still another lesser-performed symphony is Schumann's 4th, beautifully played by records by the Cleveland Orchestra, George Szell conducting, and coupled with Beethoven's 8th. You may suspect the neglect of this one is rather justified. By the time of his opus 120 Schumann was running out of creative gas — and the symphony reflects it (Columbia-1254).

POPULAR

— Forget about stereo and hi-fi and go back to the days when records sounded tinny and Eddie Lang and Joe Venuti were in their heydey.

This can be done by listening to "Stringing the Blues" Columbia C2L24), a repressing of numbers Lang and Venuti made with such comers as Bing Crosby, the Dorsey Brothers and Frankie Trumbauer.

It also includes some unforgettable numbers by Blind Willie Dunn's Gin Bottle Four.

Lang, who no longer is with us, was a fine jazz guitarist. And Venuti proved the violin could fit into the jazz picture, too.

One of the numbers, "In The Bottle Blues" by Clarence Williams' Novelty Four, was made in 1928 with King Oliver on cornet.

Recording techniques were not too keen in those days but just remember they were not very great in Caruso's day either. But good artists in poorly engineered recordings are still much better than bad artists in stereo.

So this packet, which consists of two 12-inch LP's, belongs in every jazz fan's collection.

Those who want top-rate sound with top-rate talent will enjoy "Our Man in New Orleans" by Al Hirt (RCA Victor LSP-2607). Hirt is in rare form blowing such standards as "Muskrat Ramble," "Panama" and "Ja Da."

Selected Singles — "Little Things" by Damita Jo (Mercury 72086), "The Boulevard of Broken Dreams" by Lill Jorgen's Trumpet and Orchestra (Capitol 4904), "Little Bird" by The Pete Jolly Trio (Ava C-116), "Days of Wine and Roses" by Pat Boone (Dot 16439), "Our Songs of Love" by the Love Notes (Wilshire W-200).

LP's of the Week — Mono: "Les Baxter's Balladeers" (Reprise R-6064). This group consists of seven men and two women, all adept on the guitar, singing a passel of folk songs, each of which is a delight to the ear. Stereo: "Bikinis and Bongos" by the Irving Fields Trio (Decca DL74323). The title conveys the meaning, a mixture of Hawaiian favorites played in a Latin rhythm.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

New Books Now In Local Library

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Several interesting new books of fiction have been added to the Library collection during the past week. "The Birthday King" by Gabriel Fielding has its setting in Nazi Germany and is a story of conflict within a family. It is not a pleasant story, but is very well written. Alexander Solzhenitsyn is the author of a very unusual book called "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich." The unusual thing about this book is that it is a story of life in a Soviet Labor Camp and is one of the few books of this nature that the Russian Government has allowed to come out of the country. "The Centaur" by John Updike is a modern novel based on the analogy to the story of the Centaur from Greek Mythology. It is a sophisticated story which will not appeal to all readers, but will be eagerly read by some. "My Name Is Morgan" by William Woolfolk has its setting in Hollywood and is the story of a self-made man. It shows his rise by any means that he can find, legal or otherwise. He is not a pleasant character, but the book is fast-paced and will appeal to some readers. "Triumph" is the title of the latest novel by Phillip Wylie. This is the story of a group of people who survived the all out atomic war and their reactions when they were left in a contaminated world. It is not a pleasant book and it contains more preaching than plot, but it is a book to make one stop and think and should be required reading for those in a position to start World War III. "Seven Tears for Apollo" by Phyllis A. Whitney is a story of intrigue and mystery with a setting in modern day Greece. Frank Slaughter has written another of his interesting stories concerned with the medical profession, called "Devil's Harvest." It has its setting in Laos and is a very interesting and timely book.

The books of non - fiction added during the past week provide a variety of interesting information. "The Foreign Service of the United States" by William Barnes and John Morgan gives a very complete picture of the operation of the foreign service and the opportunities in this service for careers. "Repairing China and Glass" by William Klein is a book which will be widely used and appreciated. Three interesting books about the Huguenots who settled upper New York were recently given to the Library by a patron who had purchased them and found that they were not related to his own line of research. He felt that there might be someone in this area who was vitally interested. Two of the volumes are concerned with the Hasbruck family in America and contain a wealth of genealogical information. These two books were placed in the genealogy section. The other book written by Kenneth E. Hasbruck is called "The Street of the Huguenots" and is a book of description of the houses and people who made the settlement of New Paltz in upper New York.

Medieval Tale Set In York

THE KING'S PERSONS. By Jeanne Greenberg. Holt, Rinehart. $4.95.

If you pick up this novel in the hope of finding an interesting narrative, you won't be disappointed. It is about an unusual period in history; it has an engrossing story to tell, and it is well written.

But this book also has merits on a higher level than mere narrative strength.

The setting is medieval England — specifically, York in the years from 1182 onward. Reduced to the simplest terms, the situation is this:

The medieval age had reached a point where finance was a major factor in the struggle between king and the land-owning barons. The king has given his protection to the money-lending Jews for the simple purpose of undercutting the power of the heavily taxed barons; then the king taxes the Jews for his own benefit. But the Jews, denied ownership of land, manage to hang on to some of the gold that is being drained away.

At first the Jews are tolerated by the Christians as necessary financies. But inevitably there rises a hatred toward them, with tragic results.

The principal figures are Abram, the skeptical son of the wealthiest Jew in York; Bett, the little Christian who had become a girl-servant in the household of Abram's father; and Simon, the questioning young member of a hardscrabble religious order, who for a time became Abram's friend.

The medieval story, ending in a mob massacre, has messages for the reader who remembers the genocide policy of the Germans in the 1940s.

It is written in a way that brings a savor of medieval concepts and Old Testament poetic expression to the telling.

Mrs. Greenberg became fascinated with the medieval period in her college years,

RUNNING THE SCALES

'Sound Of Music' Orchestra Coming

By JOHN CALE

With Little Theatre's "Annie Get Your Gun" drawing standing ovations at Strauss Playhouse and a traveling ballet troupe still evoking favorable comment from those who saw it here Tuesday, there's still more coming.

The Louisiana Tech Concert Association will take the wraps off the national company's presentation of the Broadway musical, "Sound of Music," Tuesday in Howard Auditorium. And the following week, Northeast Concerts will present the Dallas Symphony under the direction of Donald Johanos as an event of March 6.

Lest we reach the point of cultural saturation so that our receptors can't pick up the remaining features offered in the area, we might run a recheck on things that have happened in rapid succession over the past week.

We caught Little Theatre's "Annie" on opening night, and deadline caught us 45 minutes after the final curtain. This didn't allow for elaboration on many of the show's features which merited careful attention. But the Berlin tunes, color and movement of the piece, supported by good music from the pit, pointed to an ultimate success if not an outright hit. We predicted "smooth sailing," and the standing ovation Wednesday evening bears this out. There may be "No Business Like Show Business," but there's also nothing like several good melodies to put over a musical comedy.

Speaking of music, the orchestra with the San Francisco Ballet provided mood and motivation to a degree seldom heard for the "Fantasma" and "Caprice" numbers. It was not a large orchestra when compared to a full symphony, but there was absolutely no lost effort. The two men in the percussion section said they were taking the place of five as called for in the score. Think of the confusion it would cause if a passage calling for a few delicate taps on a triangle would come forward from a kettle drum. In such a scene as the "Witches' Sabbath" in the Prokofieff "Fantasma," this would cause the feathers and fur to fly — or flop. All a matter of mood.

By the way, that idea of an ordinary civilian getting himself caught among a dozen or so witches, beatniks or assorted freaks, has been good theatre fare since prehistoric days. Goethe inserted it in his drama, "Faust," and the highly romantic composer, Hector Berlioz, worked it into the last movement of his "Symphonie Fantastique." The Prokofieff number as danced by the San Francisco group here is a more modern work but showed definite Berlioz leanings.

What does one do where the plot places the hero in such an impossible position? The wanderer, he was the human being, in "Fantasma" fell in love with the leading witch lady. He was hopelessly outnumbered by supernatural characters to the extent that the choreographer accomplished a miracle when he arranged their dances so they wouldn't butt heads. Finally, the wanderer met with a merciful death.

This same problem is faced by the painter who finds he has painted himself into a corner. He can overcome the frustration by walking over his own work, or just standing there until it dries.

Following such an analysis, "Sound of Music," the story of an Austrian musical family, the Dallas Symphony should meet with highly receptive, open - minded audiences.

Martha Awash In Paris

MARTHA IN PARIS. By Margery Sharp. Little, Brown. $3.95.

There are small bypaths in contemporary letters, which sometimes lead into odd or droll fascinations. In this category fall the concoctions of Margery Sharp.

The heroine of this short novel is an 18-year-old, pudgy English girl whose stolidity is so great that she speaks only in brief sentences; a girl who eats like a horse, is built like one and has an equine immunity to lasting affection. It happens that she has a talent for drawing.

Martha has been raised by an aunt and uncle (this novel is a sequel to a story of Martha's childhood, called "The Eye of Love") and the uncle's boss, a Mr. Joyce, feels that he has found a talented protege in fat Martha.

So our heroine is packed off to Paris to study art. To most people such an assignment would have all sorts of bohemian connotations. Paris is supposed to be a naughty place, and art schools of course would be pretty daring.

But our plump, stolid Martha's interests, aside from drawing and food, are concentrated on nice hot baths. Not for Martha are the red wine and heady music of Paris, the standard formula for seduction.

Naturally, when she meets in Paris a prim young Englishman whose mother owns a superb bathroom, there are bound to be complications. In the end, the single - minded Martha solves the ensuing problem with characteristic aplomb.

Here we have a book without a ponderous message; in fact if it has any message at all, it is pleasantly obscure. Miss Sharp is supposed to be a sophisticated writer, but undoubtedly that is in the English sense, not the French. The suspicion rises that she is an expert puppeteer with a talent on the obverse side of life. So as you read this novel, relax and have a cruller. With a spot of tea.

The Cabots, with their three children arrived in Monroe Tuesday.

Teachers Set Meet To Hear Sas-Jaworski

The Fifth District Classroom Teachers Association will hold its tenth annual public relations dinner Monday at 7 p.m. at the Paragon Supper Club.

Teachers and other school personnel of the area and visting state officials will attend the banquet, Mrs. Irene Smith of Monroe, association president, said.

Guest speaker will be Dr. Alexander Sas-Jaworski, who is considered the most awarded foreign-born American. He has received numerous plaques and citations from international organizations for his accomplishments and oratorical ability and he holds forty honorary citizenships in the United States and Canada.

Official greetings at the event will be given by Mayor W. L. Howard of Monroe and Mayor Allen Norris of West Monroe, and Miss Alma Tompkins ,vice president of the Fifth District CTA, will recognize special guests and committees.

Speaking briefly will be N. B. Hackett, executive secretary of the Louisiana Teachers' Association, and Shelby Jackson, state superintendent of education.

Entertainment will include numbers by musicians from Ruston and Delhi.

Dr. Sas-Jaworski, a native of Ukraine, came to the United States in 1949 and became a citizen of this country in 1955.

Soon after his arrival here, he was invited to Southwest Louisiana to cope with the problem of sterility in cattle for that section. Since 1951, he has been practicing veterinary medicine in Abbeville. In 1953 he attended the first World Congress of Fertility and Sterility in New York as a member of the American delegation.

Four years later Dr. Sas-Jaworski won $136,000 on the $64,000 question television program because of his extraordinary knowledge of American history.

Former Governor Candidate Again

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) —Former Gov. A. B. Chandler filed Saturday as a candidate for the democratic nomination for governor. Chandler, elected governor in 1935 and 1955, is running for an unprecedented third term.

Chandler, one of four announced candidates in the May 28 primary, is running as a foe of the administration of Democratic Gov. Bert Combs.

Chandler, 64, also is a former U.S. Senator and baseball commissioner. He made an unsuccessful attempt for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1956.

Cunningham Services Today; Died Saturday

Funeral services will be held today for Bert F. Cunningham, 76-year-old building contractor, who died Saturday afternoon in a local hospital.

Mr. Cunningham had lived in Monroe for the past seven years and lived with his sister, Mrs. L.O. Alexander.

Services will be conducted at the chapel of Hixson Brothers Funeral Home at 4 p.m. Sunday. The remains will then be shipped to St. Louis, Mo., for burial.

Survivors other than his sister include two daughters, Mrs. Milan Heisel, and Mrs. Ted Reine, both of St. Louis, Mo.; one brother George Cunningham, Wichita, Kans.; and two grandchildren.

WEEKEND CHILLED

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Overcast skies put a chill on President Kennedy's weekend stay at this plush Atlantic resort Saturday.

Despite the cool weather, however, Kennedy and a party of friends set out on an afternoon cruise aboard the presidential yacht, Honey Fitz.

N.O. Police Say Worst Yet To Come

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Police, who were still booking Friday night's Mardi Gras celebrants when dawn broke, said Saturday that the worst is yet to come in the nation's wildest and wettest blowout before the privations of Lent.

Mardi Gras is not until Tuesday. But what New Orleans calls "carnival" — parades and limited celebrations with business as usual—started a week ago.

Friday night and early Saturday, happy but unruly crowds started acting as if Tuesday had already arrived. At least 50 were arrested for exceeding legal limits in making Bourbon Street live up to its name.

The trouble started with a fight at Pat O'Brien's, a night club on St. Peter Street, just off Bourbon Street in the French Quarter. Police found a big crowd watching the fun.

With squad cars, dogs and on horseback police started pushing the crowd six blocks up Bourbon and out of the quarter. It took two hours. Most of those arrested were out-of-towners, booked on charges of simple drunkeness or refusing to move on.

World News In Brief

95TH BIRTHDAY

ACCRA, Ghana (AP)—Prof. William du Bois, American Negro scholar who was granted Ghanaian citizenship recently, observed his 95th birthday Saturday. Winner of a Lenin Peace Prize in 1958, Du Bois has been living in Ghana since 1960.

PLANE BUZZED

TORONTO (AP)—The Toronto Star said Saturday two American interceptor planes buzzed a Mexico-bound Cubana Airlines plane about 100 miles out of Havana Friday. Among the passengers were eight Canadians, including the writer of the story, Mark Gayn.

He said the two planes flew below the airliner, rocking it with their backwash, after which the Cubana plane appeared to change course.

LEAVES FOR MOSCOW

GENEVA (AP) —First Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov, chief Soviet negotiator at recent disarmament talks here, left by plane Saturday afternoon for Moscow. He undoubtedly will have consultations with Premier Khrushchev and other high Soviet officials.

CORDIAL TALK

TOKYO (AP)—Communist China's chairman, Mao Tze-tung, had a cordial talk Saturday with Soviet Ambassador S. V. Chervonenko, Peking radio said. The Chinese-language broadcast monitored here said government Chairman Liu Shao-chi, Premier Chou En-lai and Wu Hsiu-chuan, chief Chinese delegate to the East German party congress, also were present. It gave no details of what was talked about.

POLITICAL FACES BANNED

NICE, France (AP)—Fantasy is fine but political aspects are out in costuming for the pre-Lenten carnival season. Masks of such personages as President Charles de Gaulle, President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev are banned in the interest of peace. Police report shops are featuring masks of clowns and jolly animals.

TRADE PACT SIGNED

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—Communist Poland has signed a 1963 trade pact in Tirana with Albania, ideological outcast of the Soviet bloc, the Polish press agency PAP reports. It said increased trade would result but gave no amount.

DECIDES ON ELECTIONS

CAIRO (AP) — Cairo radio reports Yemen's President Sallal has decided on general elections to choose 60 per cent of a Yemini House of Sheikhs Senate. The other 40 per cent will be appointed, it said, in a membership of 160 to 180. No date was mentioned.

NEGOTIATOR ARRIVES

MOSCOW (AP)—Ghulyam Mohammed Shirzad, Afghanistan's minister of trade, has arrived to negotiate a Soviet-Afghan pact for 1963.

RADIATION RISES

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Radioactivity in Belgium has risen considerably since last August, meteorologists report.

FIREMEN PERISH

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) —Eight firemen perished Saturday and several others were injured while battling a blaze in the Marhal Knoev Mine at Drinvo in the north Bohemian brown coal basin, the Czech news agency Ceteka reported.

All miners in the pit escaped injury, the agency said. It blamed the fire on an explosion sparked by a short circuit in the electric engine of a conveyor belt.

RECORD DEFENSE SPENDING

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—White-ruled South Africa is reported putting all its budget surplus into record defense spending to maintain security against African nationalists and Communists within and without the country. The Johannesburg Star quotes Defense Minister J. J. Fouche to that effect.

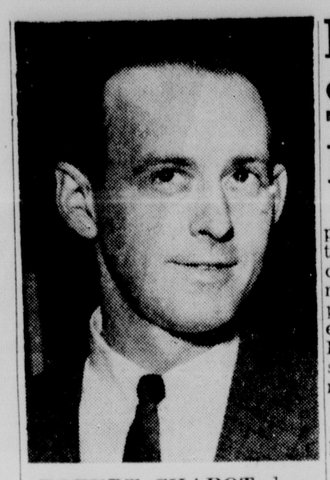
Former Governor Candidate Again

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) —Former Gov. A. B. Chandler filed Saturday as a candidate for the democratic nomination for governor. Chandler, elected governor in 1935 and 1955, is running for an unprecedented third term.

Chandler, one of four announced candidates in the May 28 primary, is running as a foe of the administration of Democratic Gov. Bert Combs.

Chandler, 64, also is a former U.S. Senator and baseball commissioner. He made an unsuccessful attempt for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1956.



ROBERT CHABOT, has been named manager of the Style Shop on De-Siard Street, according to an announcement by Meyer Glazer, owner. He comes to Monroe from Duluth, Minn. where he was buyer and merchandiser for one of its finest stores. He is also a former store manager there, The Cabots, with their three children arrived in Monroe Tuesday.

Teachers Set Meet To Hear Sas-Jaworski

The Fifth District Classroom Teachers Association will hold its tenth annual public relations dinner Monday at 7 p.m. at the Paragon Supper Club.

Teachers and other school personnel of the area and visting state officials will attend the banquet, Mrs. Irene Smith of Monroe, association president, said.

Guest speaker will be Dr. Alexander Sas-Jaworski, who is considered the most awarded foreign-born American. He has received numerous plaques and citations from international organizations for his accomplishments and oratorical ability and he holds forty honorary citizenships in the United States and Canada.

Official greetings at the event will be given by Mayor W. L. Howard of Monroe and Mayor Allen Norris of West Monroe, and Miss Alma Tompkins ,vice president of the Fifth District CTA, will recognize special guests and committees.

Speaking briefly will be N. B. Hackett, executive secretary of the Louisiana Teachers' Association, and Shelby Jackson, state superintendent of education.

Entertainment will include numbers by musicians from Ruston and Delhi.

Dr. Sas-Jaworski, a native of Ukraine, came to the United States in 1949 and became a citizen of this country in 1955.

Soon after his arrival here, he was invited to Southwest Louisiana to cope with the problem of sterility in cattle for that section. Since 1951, he has been practicing veterinary medicine in Abbeville. In 1953 he attended the first World Congress of Fertility and Sterility in New York as a member of the American delegation.

Four years later Dr. Sas-Jaworski won $136,000 on the $64,000 question television program because of his extraordinary knowledge of American history.

New Pharmacy Staffer Named For Northeast

Dr. Theodore H. Eickholt, a pharmacist and teaching assistant in pharmacology - pharmacognosy at the University of Minnesota, has been named assistant professor pharmacology at Northeast Louisiana State College, Ralph M. Wilson, dean of the school of pharmacy, has announced.

Dr. Eickholt has B.S. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Minnesota.

Included among his publications was "The Toxicity and Absorption Enhancing Ability of Surfactants" in Drug Standards. His doctoral dissertation was entitled "A Study of Iron Absorption in Mice as Modified by Various Agents."

He is a member of Kappa Psi Pharmaceutical Fraternity and the Minnesota Pharmaceutical Association.

Cunningham Services Today; Died Saturday

Funeral services will be held today for Bert F. Cunningham, 76-year-old building contractor, who died Saturday afternoon in a local hospital.

Mr. Cunningham had lived in Monroe for the past seven years and lived with his sister, Mrs. L.O. Alexander.

Services will be conducted at the chapel of Hixson Brothers Funeral Home at 4 p.m. Sunday. The remains will then be shipped to St. Louis, Mo., for burial.

Survivors other than his sister include two daughters, Mrs. Millan Heisel, and Mrs. Ted Reine, both of St. Louis, Mo.; one brother George Cunningham, Wichita, Kans.; and two grandchildren.

WEEKEND CHILLED

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Overcast skies put a chill on President Kennedy's weekend stay at this plush Atlantic resort Saturday.

Despite the cool weather, however, Kennedy and a party of friends set out on an afternoon cruise aboard the presidential yacht, Honey Fitz.

N.O. Police Say Worst Yet To Come

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Police, who were still booking Friday night's Mardi Gras celebrants when dawn broke, said Saturday that the worst is yet to come in the nation's wildest and wettest blowout before the privations of Lent.

Mardi Gras is not until Tuesday. But what New Orleans calls "carnival" — parades and limited celebrations with business as usual—started a week ago.

Friday night and early Saturday, happy but unruly crowds started acting as if Tuesday had already arrived. At least 50 were arrested for exceeding legal limits in making Bourbon Street live up to its name.

The trouble started with a fight at Pat O'Brien's, a night club on St. Peter Street, just off Bourbon Street in the French Quarter. Police found a big crowd watching the fun.

With squad cars, dogs and on horseback police started pushing the crowd six blocks up Bourbon and out of the quarter. It took two hours. Most of those arrested were out-of-towners, booked on charges of simple drunkeness or refusing to move on.

World News In Brief

95TH BIRTHDAY

ACCRA, Ghana (AP)—Prof. William du Bois, American Negro scholar who was granted Ghanaian citizenship recently, observed his 95th birthday Saturday. Winner of a Lenin Peace Prize in 1958, Du Bois has been living in Ghana since 1960.

PLANE BUZZED

TORONTO (AP)—The Toronto Star said Saturday two American interceptor planes buzzed a Mexico-bound Cubana Airlines plane about 100 miles out of Havana Friday. Among the passengers were eight Canadians, including the writer of the story, Mark Gayn.

He said the two planes flew below the airliner, rocking it with their backwash, after which the Cubana plane appeared to change course.

LEAVES FOR MOSCOW

GENEVA (AP) —First Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov, chief Soviet negotiator at recent disarmament talks here, left by plane Saturday afternoon for Moscow. He undoubtedly will have consultations with Premier Khrushchev and other high Soviet officials.

CORDIAL TALK

TOKYO (AP)—Communist China's chairman, Mao Tze-tung, had a cordial talk Saturday with Soviet Ambassador S. V. Chervonenko, Peking radio said. The Chinese-language broadcast monitored here said government Chairman Liu Shao-chi, Premier Chou En-lai and Wu Hsiu-chuan, chief Chinese delegate to the East German party congress, also were present. It gave no details of what was talked about.

POLITICAL FACES BANNED

NICE, France (AP)—Fantasy is fine but political aspects are out in costuming for the pre-Lenten carnival season. Masks of such personages as President Charles de Gaulle, President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev are banned in the interest of peace. Police report shops are featuring masks of clowns and jolly animals.

TRADE PACT SIGNED

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—Communist Poland has signed a 1963 trade pact in Tirana with Albania, ideological outcast of the Soviet bloc, the Polish press agency PAP reports. It said increased trade would result but gave no amount.

DECIDES ON ELECTIONS

CAIRO (AP) — Cairo radio reports Yemen's President Sallal has decided on general elections to choose 60 per cent of a Yemini House of Sheikhs Senate. The other 40 per cent will be appointed, it said, in a membership of 160 to 180. No date was mentioned.

NEGOTIATOR ARRIVES

MOSCOW (AP)—Ghulyam Mohammed Shirzad, Afghanistan's minister of trade, has arrived to negotiate a Soviet-Afghan pact for 1963.

RADIATION RISES

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Radioactivity in Belgium has risen considerably since last August, meteorologists report.

FIREMEN PERISH

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) —Eight firemen perished Saturday and several others were injured while battling a blaze in the Marhal Knoev Mine at Drinvo in the north Bohemian brown coal basin, the Czech news agency Ceteka reported.

All miners in the pit escaped injury, the agency said. It blamed the fire on an explosion sparked by a short circuit in the electric engine of a conveyor belt.

RECORD DEFENSE SPENDING

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—White-ruled South Africa is reported putting all its budget surplus into record defense spending to maintain security against African nationalists and Communists within and without the country. The Johannesburg Star quotes Defense Minister J. J. Fouche to that effect.

Trends of Latin Pondered

An area teacher who has been active in promoting Latin instruction in public schools takes note of a new interest growth in it in recent years, but wonders if the trend will continue, since many schools do not offer the subject.

BASTROP — Latin, though a dead language, exists in the world's vocabulary today. Even so, is it being forgotten?

Will the winds of time sweep this language of glorious cultures of the past under the rug of forgetfulness?

In Louisiana, though there is evidence of rejuvenation, there are signs also of withering among educators.

Mrs. Helen Kovacs, Latin teacher at Bastrop High School is fighting this withering trend. But she is not oblivious to the road signs of the future.

WONDERS ABOUT TREND

The driving force behind the formation of the Louisiana Junior Classical League, formed in 1951 with 75 members and now numbering more than 2,000, Mrs. Kovacs points with pride at the growth in interest in Latin in Louisiana in the past decade, but wonders if it will be allowed to last.

She mentioned that there has been a "state of lethargy" concerning Latin and the teaching of Latin in Louisiana. Also, Latin programs are not aided through the federal National Defense Education program which promotes foreign languages.

Many Latin teachers around the state are nearing the retirement age and there are not enough being recruited to fill the void.

Where, for instance, is there a college in the state north of Natchitoches that offers Latin in its basic curriculum?

A graduate of Bastrop High was interested in becoming a Latin teacher, but did not because it was not offered in the college of her choice. She settled for a second choice.

SIGN EXPLAINED

One of the signs of "taking Latin apart" was explained by Mrs. Lavinia McNeely, superintendent of English and Language Arts with the State Department of Education.

With the development of medical Latin and legal Latin on the college and university level, Mrs. McNeely pointed out, many feel there has "ceased to be a need for the study of Latin."

Even so, in 1961-62 Louisiana school systems had 4,689 students studying first year Latin, 2,756 in second year, 532 in third year, 244 in fourth year, 114 in grade seven and 288 in grade eight. A total of 105 Louisiana high schools offer Latin courses, 58 of them public schools, 39 white private schools and eight Negro private schools. There are no Negro public schools offering Latin.

RENEWED INTEREST

These figures represent a renewed interest in Latin. Why? "Educated people are looking to the humanities," and there is a "trend toward an interest in old things," explained Mrs. McNeely.

But can this interest be continued, with Latin teachers becoming fewer, and the emphasis on the subject as such, de-emphasized from what it once was?

Latin, in Louisiana schools is an elective, that is, students may take it, or take something else of their choosing.

Here then, is the key to Latin's rise or fall, possibly. Mrs. Kovac noted that emphasis has swung back to basic subjects, following a period in which the "study of the economic side" of life was in the forefront.

"The emphasis swung from languages, science and mathematics," Mrs. Kovac said. Now, with renewed interest in things cultural and basic, enthusiasm such as that expressed by Mrs. Kovac could be a guiding beacon on the Latin trail.

The 49-year-old Mer Rouge mother of two children thinks the important thing to get across to the public is that "Latin lives."

"All my work is built around this identification," she said.

BACKGROUND LANGUAGE

"Latin is a background for other languages. Sixty-five per cent of the words in your newspaper are of Latin origin or Latin derivitives," she said.

The importance of Latin? "The best medical schools are begging their students to take it," she said.

The cultural advantages are great, Mrs. Kovacs contends. Words in the English language take on new meaning when their Latin origins are known, she pointed out.

Too, it furnishes a brighter picture of ancient civilizations such as Rome and Greece, shows their beliefs and their history in much clearer context.

All these, Mrs. Kovacs believes, are needed in a modern world that needs to know the lessons of the past.

Mrs. Kovacs' long-range dream has been to furnish some of the enthusiasm for this higher education and identification with other great civilizations and cultures.

SMALL BEGINNING

She recalled that in 1951 when the Junior Classical League, an organization for the study and promotion of Latin and mythology, held its first meeting, there were four schools present with small membership.

Today, there are 50 clubs in the state. And this year, she introduced to the state meeting, an achievement contest, and mythology and derivitives events.

The Bastrop club published the first state newspaper in Latin. It was, and still is, entitled, "Nuntius Satinus," or "Latin News."

Mrs. Kovacs accompanied 36 students from Louisiana this fall to Bozeman, Montana, to a meeting of the National Junior Classical League.

She was the sponsor for the Neville of Monroe and Bastrop students. Her school has produced one national officer in the league and three state presidents.

Mrs. Kovacs pointed to some Latin mottoes and words in use in the United States today:

E Pluribus Eunum, or "one from many" is the motto of the United States; a legislative term, Sine Die, or "without a day (being set for convening again)," in Deo Speramus, or "In God We Trust," and Alma Mater, or "Dear Mother."

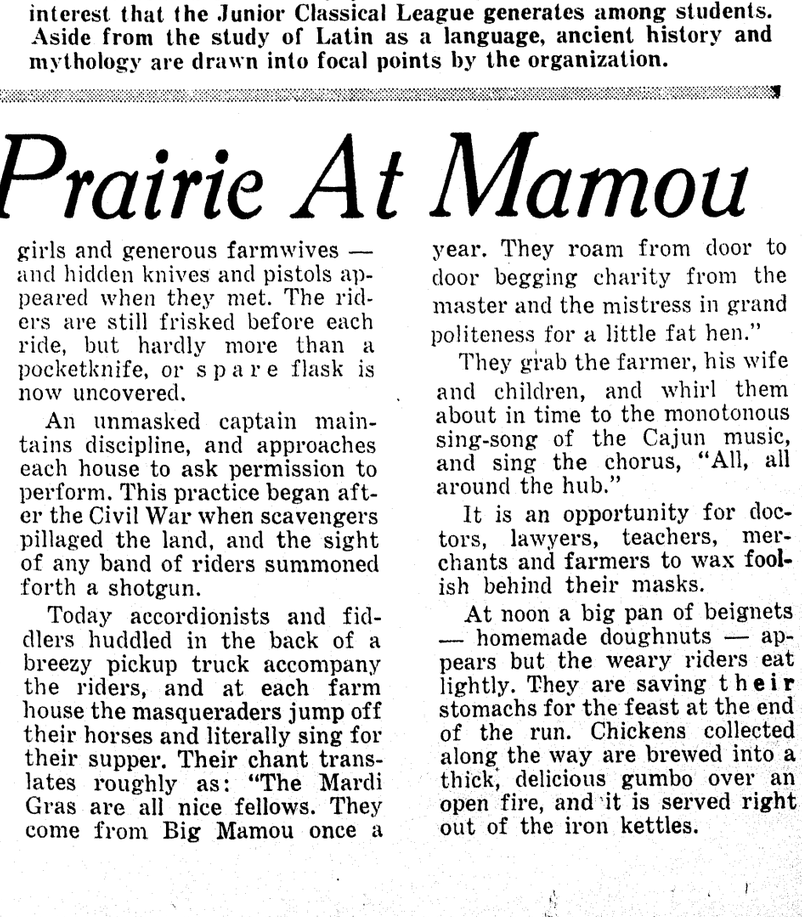
And some more familiar words:

Agenda, or, things that have to be done; data, or, things given; homicide, or killing of a man.

Will this language that was already classical in the first century before Christ gain stature in the Louisiana educational system?

The buildup in interest in Latin has been provided.

It remains to be seen whether the educational leaders of the state recognize and act upon it.



PORTRAYING Cleopatra and Mark Antony, Latin students Sara Jo Amoroso and Glenn Murphy of Bastrop High School, demonstrate interest that the Junior Classical League generates among students. Aside from the study of Latin as a language, ancient history and mythology are drawn into focal points by the organization.

Mardi Gras Is Ride On The Louisiana Prairie At Mamou

Masked horsemen take one of the wackiest rides since Don Quixote stalked the windmills in a special Cajun country observance of Mardi Gras at Mamou, which predates the one held annually at New Orleans

By JERRY BUCK

MAMOU, La. (AP) — What would you do if almost a hundred masked horsemen thundered up to your front door February 26 and sang a French ditty begging that you feed them?

If you lived in this prairie town in south central Louisiana you'd probably grab up the chicken thoughtfully plucked and dressed the night before, call the rest of your family, and run out to join in the fun.

That's just the way the Louisiana Cajuns celebrate Mardi Gras — dashing from farm to farm begging for food. The farm wife usually hands over a chicken, which will be dropped into a big iron kettle to simmer into a savory gumbo enjoyed by the whole town in one last burst of fun and feast before the 40 days of Lent.

Early each Shrove Tuesday the men of Mamou get up, costume themselves outlandishly, lace themselves well against the bitter winds across the flats, and take off on one of the wackiest rides since Don Quixote stalked the windmills.

FRENCH CUSTOM

The custom was brought from France — where it is no longer practiced — more than 200 years ago, and it has been followed more or less regularly since then. A Mamou lawyer and a high school teacher reorganized the run after World War II brought a brief interruption, and since then it has inspired a madcap renaissance across the land of Evangeline. Dozens of other towns have renewed the ancient rite.

Although the masked riders have participated in some folklore festivals, they are scarcely known beyond the borders of Louisiana. Absent are the elaborate floats and balls that draw hundreds of thousands annually to neighboring New Orleans.

Yet the Mamou Mardi Gras predates its big brother by many years, and great care has been taken to practice authentically the ancient mysticism of the Mardi Gras run.

Paul Tate, an attorney who has occasionally ventured into Louisiana politics, and R. J. Reed, a high school science teacher who is an amateur folklorist and writer, pored through hundreds of books, diaries, letters, newspapers and other sources in tracing the festival back to the late 1700s.

They hunted down references to the early costumes and mystic symbols clouded by the passage of a dozen centuries. Tate and Reed even prevailed upon friends visiting Europe to check on sources there.

ONCE MEANT FIGHTING

As for unbridled spirits, however, today's version is a pale imitation. Once, roving bands of masked riders competed for certain areas — coveted for pretty girls and generous farmwives — and hidden knives and pistols appeared when they met. The riders are still frisked before each ride, but hardly more than a pocketknife, or spare flask is now uncovered.

An unmasked captain maintains discipline, and approaches each house to ask permission to perform. This practice began after the Civil War when scavengers pillaged the land, and the sight of any band of riders summoned forth a shotgun.

Today accordionists and fiddlers huddled in the back of a breezy pickup truck accompany the riders, and at each farm house the masqueraders jump off their horses and literally sing for their supper. Their chant translates roughly as: "The Mardi Gras are all nice fellows. They come from Big Mamou once a year. They roam from door to door begging charity from the master and the mistress in grand politeness for a little fat hen."

They grab the farmer, his wife and children, and whirl them about in time to the monotonous sing-song of the Cajun music, and sing the chorus, "All, all around the hub."

It is an opportunity for doctors, lawyers, teachers, merchants and farmers to wax foolish behind their masks.

At noon a big pan of beignets — homemade doughnuts — appears but the weary riders eat lightly. They are saving their stomachs for the feast at the end of the run. Chickens collected along the way are brewed into a thick, delicious gumbo over an open fire, and it is served right out of the iron kettles.

Non-Secret Meetings

Everyone, except political connivers, accepts the theory that public officials using public money should act in public. It is an elemental part of democracy. Darkness and secrecy are for those who want to fool the public and thus take advantage of it.

The principle of open meetings shows up in the fact that 35 states have laws requiring that all state records be open to public inspection. More to the point is an 11-year campaign by Sigma Delta Chi, the society of professional journalists, for a model statewide law requiring public meetings of all levels of government, including state and local, and reaching school boards, police juries, city commissions and other bodies. Grand juries are, of course, excepted because of the necessity for secrecy. This law has been adopted in 25 states. Louisiana is among the 35 states requiring that public records be open to the public and among the 25 that require that all meetings of governmental bodies at all levels be open meetings.

As to the records, we may well wonder how the 15 states which do not have such a law manage to protect the public interest with secrecy. On the matter of open meetings, the question is why half of the states have failed to put the principle into the law books.

To take care of some peculiar circumstances which seem to require secrecy, governmental bodies are permitted to go into what is called executive sessions. This merely means that the public and the press are temporarily excluded while certain matters are discussed. There is no particular objection to this provision as long as it is not abused, inasmuch as the officials, if they wished, could huddle together on a street corner or in a back room and talk things over if they wished before going into regular session.

It has been pointed out that it would be a foolish waste of taxes to require public adoption of the route of a street or improved highway before the land has been bought. Purchasing plans that would encourage a sudden rise in prices of anything should be kept from the eyes of the speculators.

All too often this is not done. While the public is not told what is going on, some shrewd speculator often is given a tip-off, with the result that the price paid may be several times what it should be. This offers opportunity for graft, because the man who is given the "inside" information is willing to pay for it.

When personnel decisions, on firings, hirings and promotions are being discussed, it is unreasonable to expect real comparisons of abilities while relatives and the employes themselves are watching, pleading and commenting.

These are occasions when executive sessions may be justified, permitting the discussions to be held in confidence but requiring that any official action be taken in open session.

Advantage is often taken of such exceptions as these. Officials sometimes have some pet scheme they want to put across and are afraid to let the public know about it for fear public knowledge will mean defeat of the scheme. They therefore call for executive sessions when their only purpose is to defeat the will of the public.

Louisiana is more fortunate than some of the states in that if a member of a police jury or a school board or city council or some other public body wants to put his shenanigans across without public knowledge, the matter still must be brought up in open meeting before it can be officially adopted.

Any public official who wants to steer clear of suspicion should be slow to call for an executive session and should do it then only for some such reason as the purchase of property or the discussion of personnel problems.

Without public inspection, there is no safety.

Increasing Confidence

A measure intended to increase public confidence in charity fund drives has been introduced in the Tennessee legislature. Whether the measure would be wise may be subject to argument but at least it seems worth considering.

It is proposed that 10 per cent be the limit of the money donated for a charity purpose that can be diverted to promote the campaign. It is further proposed that the public have a chance to see certified accounts of how much was collected and how it was spent.

Present regulations allow promotors to benefit themselves. Because this is true, many who would like to contribute to worthy causes are afraid to do so for fear the charity itself won't get a very large share of the donation. This happens far less often than the public suspects.

Major community efforts seek to keep expenses below 10 per cent and some aim at about a seven per cent mark. Nevertheless, there are cases in which as much as 40 per cent is admittedly taken out before the charity begins.

Some organizations such as the Good Fellows, sponsored by the Monroe Morning World and News-Star and by many individual citizens, including B. B. Martin and Jack Hesketh, give 100 per cent to charity. Every cent taken in by the Good Fellows here goes to the charity, all necessary work, promotion and other outlays being donated or provided separately. Sponsors not only contribute everything free but add their donations to the others.

It is not to be expected, however, that most fund-raising institutions can operate on this kind of basis. Some of them must spend some money for a director, advertising and office expenses.

Public accounting on standardized forms would give some doubtful operations a hard time but their number would be few and such results would be secondary to clearing the air for organizations that send the money they collect to the announced beneficiaries.

Increased public confidence, from knowing that at least 90 per cent of their contributions will go to the proper cause, probably would make it easier for the more worthy organizations to collect funds.

FPC's Position Right

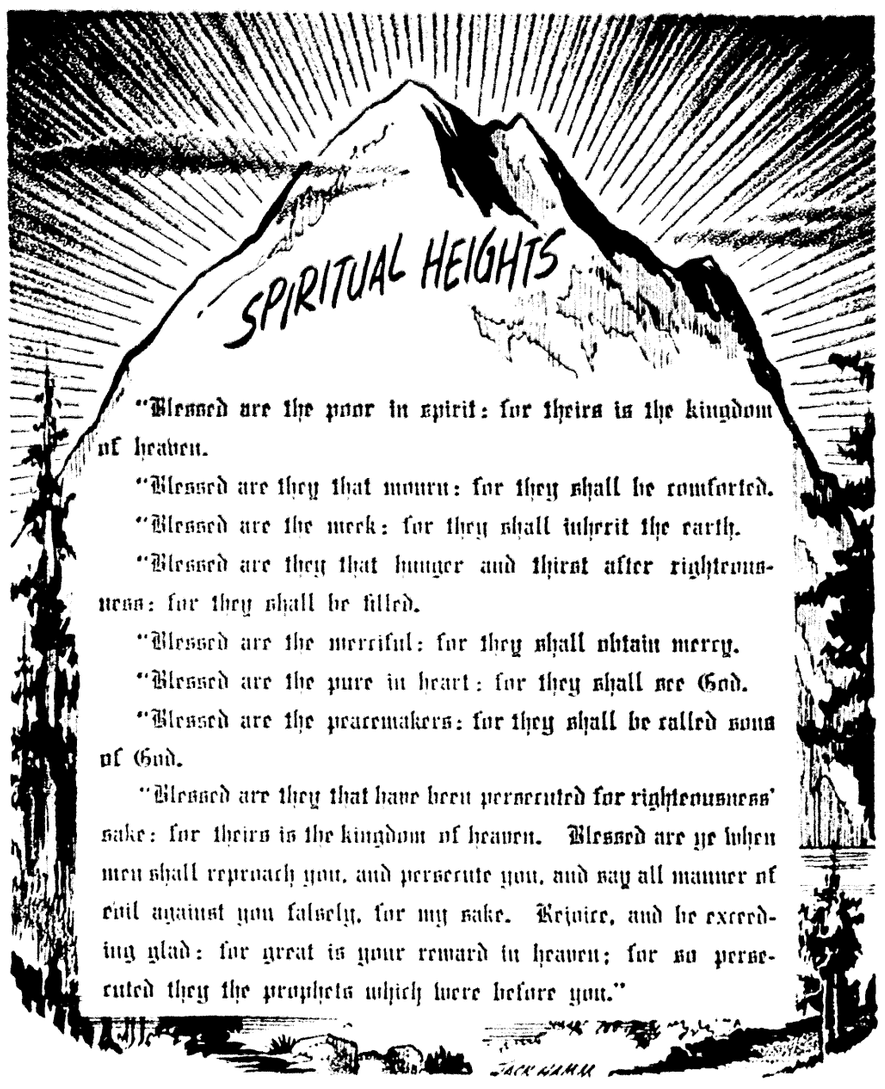
Advocates of socialism and government ownership of industry have proposed that only private electric utilities be required to obtain permission from the federal power commission to construct ultra high voltage power lines. Public power systems would be free to build these lines without FPC authorization.

Lines of this kind, thanks to advanced technology, make possible the most efficient, economical and dependable power transmission, based on interconnections between far - flung power systems.

To FPC's credit, it has gone on record in opposition to the scheme and its chairman has so notified the house of representatives committee which passes on legislation of this nature. Of the five members of the FPC, only one dissented from the majority view. He made the preposterous charge that private utilities want to use the lines to strangle public power projects, thus showing he wants government ownership of utilities.

Just how he thinks the private systems could crowd out the subsidized public systems remains unexplained, unless he thinks the private systems are so much more efficient than the public systems that they can overcome tax and other important advantages enjoyed by the socialized systems and still beat them in producing service.

The "Summit" On The Mount



ALLEN AND SCOTT

T. Moscoso Is On Way Out

Finding Top-Notch Successor And What To Do With Puerto Rican Present Two Thorny Problems

Teodoro Moscoso, head of the long - floundering Alliance for Progress, is on the way out.

While that backstage decision has been definitely reached, how soon he will be replaced depends on solving two thorny problems: 1: Finding a top - notch successor; (2) what to do with Moscoso.

The Puerto Rican is a close friend of Governor Luis Munos Marin, who has strong ties with the Kennedy administration. Marin "loaned" Moscoso to the President after his much - hailed Alliance for Progress got off to a boggled start. Moscoso is earnest and idealistic, but has done little better than his inadequate predecessor.

But to avoid offending Marin, and also because Moscoso is personally liked, the President is treading carefully in easing him out. But that is definitely in the works.

The man the President would like to put in this tough job is Thomas Mann, ambassador to Mexico.

An able, widely - experienced career diplomat who was Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs in the Eisenhower regime and was continued in that post by Kennedy until sent to Mexico, Mann has the drive and know - how that running the sagging Alliance urgently needs.

But he has let it be known he doesn't want this appointment. Whether Mann can be induced to change his mind, or someone else can be found, remains to be seen.

Meanwhile, in an effort to counter the rising chorus of congressional complaints against the Alliance, the White House is quietly putting out the word that Moscoso is no longer really bossing it. In other words, he is now little more than a figurehead.

SIGNIFICANT CRITICS —That was the import of what Ralph Dungan, 39 - year - old Special Assistant to the President, told a group of lawmakers when they protected Alliance mismanagement.

"Don't take your problems to Moscoso," Dungan advised them. "Bring them directly here to us. We will see to it that they are taken care of. Moscoso means well, but things just aren't working out satisfactorily."

Dungan ought to know. Of the inner White House staff, he is among the closest to the President. He plays a key role in filling vacancies, and lately has been increasingly occupied with foreign affairs. To their private astonishment, he lectured a group of ambassadors on "the requirements of new diplomacy." Dungan did not explain his qualifications for expounding on this subject.

A Princeton graduate, he is sometimes referred to by White House insiders as the "intellectual of the Kennedy Mafia."

Significantly, some of Moscoso's sharpest critics are leading Democratic senators who staunchly support the President's foreign policies.

Foremost among them are Senator Wayne Morse, Ore., chairman of the Foreign Relations Subcommittee on Latin America, Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Hubert Humphrey, Minn., and Senator Ernest Gruening, Alaska, who had extensive experience in South America during the New Deal. They have bluntly told the President that Moscoso must be replaced and without delay.

Morse asserted Moscoso "is over his head and hasn't got what it takes." He particularly assailed an Alliance rebuff to Mexican plans to rebuild its border cities. Morse blasted this stand as "silly and stupid."

Gruening went further, denouncing the policy of "mistakenly bailing out shaky and unstable Latin American regimes."

"We are told that we cannot support many urgent domestic needs because we cannot afford them," said Gruening. "Yet the administration continues to pour vast sums into unstable countries. It makes loans that are not loans at all, but give - aways. Actually, our money is not only being wasted, but the very result of trying to help countries in that manner is counter - productive. It prevents these countries from reforming themselves and getting on a stable basis.

"Unless restraint, vigilance and intelligence are exercised, the whole program will go down the drain. And the billion of dollars that we have spent and the billions more it is proposed to spend will be completely wasted."

Three members of a special Commerce Department advisory committee on the Alliance for Progress voiced a very similar warning.

David Rockefeller, head of Chase National Bank, Emilio Collado, Vice President of Standard Oil of New Jersey, and Walter Wriston, Vice President of the First National Bank of New York, in a detailed report concluded:

"The U. S. must change its role from one that emphasizes short run economic palliatives combined with recommendations for sweeping social and economic reforms, to one that places the greatest emphasis on the longer-run goals of creating an environment in which freedom of the market place is recognized for what it is, a major pillar of free and prosperous societies."

Letter To Passman

To the Editor:

Please print the following letter:

The Honorable Congressman
Otto E. Passman
House of Representatives
Washington, D. C.

Dear Congressman Passman:

Our State Department is on the verge of supporting another Communist, and doing away with an Anti-Communist. The Communist they intend to support is Romulo Betancourt, and, the Anti-Communist they plan on doing away with is Perez Jimenez.

Anti-Communist Perez Jimenez was overthrown as President of Venezuela on January 1, 1958 by the Communist Party. Later on in the fall of this year the Communist Party rigged an election for President of Venezuela and saw to it that Communist Romulo Betancourt was elected.

This same year Jimenez came to America to seek political asylum. The United States did grant him political asylum from the year 1958 to December 16, 1962. On this date the State Department saw to it that he was put in jail at Miami, Florida. They plan on returning him to Venezuela, where Romulo Betancourt and his Communist comrades can execute him.

I am asking that the Congress of the United States of America will see to it that Anti-Communist Perez Jimenez be again granted political asylum, and that he will be protected to the fullest extent.

Communism Cancer

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Communism seeks to eat away the internal mechanism which is necessary for the preservation of our traditional way of life as given us by our American forefathers. It is comparable to cancer in that it spreads destructively and is irreparable. It is subversive in that its goal is to cause destruction and downfall of our society.

I would not criticize the communists for wanting to spread their type of government since they may think it is the best, like we think ours is best. However, I wish to remind any American who may be leaning toward communistic thinking, that in our type of government we have a second choice and under communism there is no second choice.

The goals and aims of communism may be accomplished within by the apathetic attitude of the American people or by the influx of communistic teachings in our neighboring countries and eventually to our homeland. The communists leaders care not which method is used because they will take over when their goal is achieved.

A country makes a giant step toward communism when its people take on socialistic thinking.

There is a great clamor of socialism at work within our country and communism waiting at our gate. Will this cry of "Wolf" be heard in time or will we stand idle and wait until the enemy is within our gate and the time is 'too late'?

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U.S. Senator From Arizona

Around Washington these days, it is popular to downgrade French President Charles de Gaulle, not only for his veto of the British application for entry into the European Common Market, but also for his announced desire to establish France as an independent nuclear power.

I certainly don't agree with De Gaulle's adamant opposition to the British petition for Common Market membership. In fact, in this, I believe he is entirely wrong. But I find it very difficult to disagree with his nuclear position in light of the present administration's foreign and defense policies.

It strikes me that President de Gaulle, far from being the fossilized product of early European thinking that the liberal press is trying to make him, is looking far into the future. I believe his attitude is well in advance of that maintained by other European countries. And I believe it is compounded of conclusions reached on the basis of American actions.

To a farsighted man like President de Gaulle, the lack of an independent nuclear force in Europe raises serious questions, particularly in light of the fact that we are now in the process of putting all of our defense eggs in the missile basket. De Gaulle is looking ahead to the day when the United States might pull its troops out of Europe, and he is trying to imagine how, in the future, the United States might react to a Russian attack on Free Europe.

And what he sees, I suggest, convinces him that France must begin establishing its own nuclear force. He doesn't want his country to be caught defenseless if, at some future time, the United States decides to take its nuclear forces out of Europe for fear their continued presence might lead to a world conflict.

Can we blame De Gaulle, as a patriotic Frenchman, for not wanting to gamble on the future? Without United States nuclear forces, Europe becomes a conventional war area. And in this situation, the East is vastly superior. Russia has 125 divisions against 23 divisions for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. President de Gaulle unquestionably asks himself whether the United States would commit its nuclear weapons to defend Europe if the Soviets began to attack with those 125 conventional divisions.

You can see the choice such a situation would leave us: to see Europe overrun by the Communists or risk our own survival and the survival of the world by becoming the first of the great powers to utilize nuclear force in a new war.

This would be a difficult choice, and we might not make the one that would prevent the enslavement of Europe. And I believe this is what De Gaulle is thinking when he rejects the terms of the Nassau Pact which Britain accepted.

The whole example of Cuba and our failure to come to grips with the real issue in the Caribbean when we had the chance has done nothing but increase the doubts of men like De Gaulle who worry about the future safety of their nations. In the Cuban situation, we settled for a lot less than we demanded, and we left intact a Communist military base in the Western Hemisphere. The very existence of Soviet military presence 90 miles from the coast of Florida cries aloud to the entire world that our government does not have the will nor the determination to remove it.

In light of this, is it any wonder that nations like France do not want to depend entirely upon the United States to provide the nuclear defense they might need in a future crisis? Is it any wonder that Britain was reluctant to give up the independence of action which the Skybolt would have provided for the dependence it had to accept with the Polaris submarines?

How do you stand, sir?

Control Is Gone

Woman Is Frightened After She Mistreats Own Young Baby

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Please help me before it's too late. I feel I'm losing my mind. For the past few days I have been mistreating my three - week - old baby. I've spanked her, I've shook her, I've thrown her around while dressing her until she must be scared half to death. She even starts to cry at the sound of my voice.

And I'm scared, too. I know this isn't being normal. I'm scared also because I know God must be very angry with me, and yet I can't control my actions.

Where can I turn? My doctor has given me pills but they don't help me any more. We can't even pay our rent at times, let alone run up a lot of doctor bills. Shall I go to a psychiatrist? I couldn't stand being locked up in a mental hospital. What would happen to my other children? I have never treated them this way; why am I so suddenly hostile toward this one?

And above all, what have I done to the mind of this baby? Is it too late or can I still win her confidence? Please help me. I don't know where else to turn. I can't even talk to my husband about it. Thank you for your time. God bless you — Mrs. X.

Comment: God bless me — and just for listening? I'm nothing more than a stranger who can't possibly do you any good except try to give you some advice. I can't actually solve your problem. But I can't just turn you out to suffer hopelessly. Let's see where we can start. First things first. You must tell your husband; you must tell your doctor. Without their help and understanding you won't solve your problem. If you haven't the nerve to speak it, then cut out this clipping and show them what you have written to me. They will understand this is no simple matter.

I hold out some hope for you. A mental hospital is not necessarily the next stop. The fact that you have never mistreated your other children indicates that your recent abnormal reactions to your youngest child are something less than a psychotic strain in your makeup. But that is for your doctor to decide.

Perhaps you are just plain worn out with worry about financial problems and work; and you have developed this hostility towards the baby simply because she is an extra mouth to feed. Frankly, I don't know. But what I do know is that you must seek medical help right away.

You ask, "Is it too late or can I still win her confidence?" If you are really concerned about her future, you will do what I have suggested.

Many readers will think I have been lenient about the whole matter. They will say you are a "cruel mother" who deserves no sympathy. If doctors reacted that way they might just as well throw in their shingle. Your baby deserves sympathy, care and protection but so do you.

For Mrs. C.: Yes, it is true that anginal pains can also occur in the throat and jaw. Although the typical anginal pain is confined to the chest (after exertion or excitement), I have seen a number of patients whose only complaint was jaw pain on exertion.

One was sure (and I, too, was suspicious) that his trouble was due to a bad tooth. Only after repeated expressions of wonder that the "toothache" came on only after he walked fast, did I become suspicious of angina. Subsequent examinations and study proved the diagnosis without question.

For Mrs. S.: Fatty tumors are called lipomas. They don't turn into cancer. Operation? That can be considered at leisure.

Non-Secret Meetings

Everyone, except political connivers, accepts the theory that public officials using public money should act in public, It is an elemental part of democracy. Darkness and secrecy are for those who want to fool the public and thus take advantage of it.

The principle of open meetings shows up in the fact that 35 states have laws requiring that all state records be open to public inspection. More to the point is an 11-year campaign by Sigma Delta Chi, the society of professional journalists, for a model statewide law requiring public meetings of all levels of government, including state and local, and reaching school boards, police juries, city commissions and other bodies. Grand juries are, of course, excepted because of the necessity for secrecy. This law has been adopted in 25 states. Louisiana is among the 35 states requiring that public records be open to the public and among the 25 that require that all meetings of governmental bodies at all levels be open meetings.

As to the records, we may well wonder how the 15 states which do not have such a law manage to protect the public interest with secrecy. On the matter of open meetings, the question is why half of the states have failed to put the principle into the law books.

To take care of some peculiar circumstances which seem to require secrecy, governmental bodies are permitted to go into what is called executive sessions. This merely means that the public and the press are temporarily excluded while certain matters are discussed. There is no particular objection to this provision as long as it is not abused, inasmuch as the officials, if they wished, could huddle together on a street corner or in a back room and talk things over if they wished before going into regular session.

It has been pointed out that it would be a foolish waste of taxes to require public adoption of the route of a street or improved highway before the land has been bought. Purchasing plans that would encourage a sudden rise in prices of anything should be kept from the eyes of the speculators.

All too often this is not done. While the public is not told what is going on, some shrewd speculator often is given a tip-off, with the result that the price paid may be several times what it should be. This offers opportunity for graft, because the man who is given the "inside" information is willing to pay for it.

When personnel decisions, on firings, hirings and promotions are being discussed, it is unreasonable to expect real comparisons of abilities while relatives and the employes themselves are watching, pleading and commenting.

These are occasions when executive sessions may be justified, permitting the discussions to be held in confidence but requiring that any official action be taken in open session.

Advantage is often taken of such exceptions as these. Officials sometimes have some pet scheme they want to put across and are afraid to let the public know about it for fear public knowledge will mean defeat of the scheme. They therefore call for executive sessions when their only purpose is to defeat the will of the public.

Louisiana is more fortunate than some of the states in that if a member of a police jury or a school board or city council or some other public body wants to put his shenanigans across without public knowledge, the matter still must be brought up in open meeting before it can be officially adopted.

Any public official who wants to steer clear of suspicion should be slow to call for an executive session and should do it then only for some such reason as the purchase of property or the discussion of personnel problems.

Without public inspection, there is no safety.

Increasing Confidence

A measure intended to increase public confidence in charity fund drives has been introduced in the Tennessee legislature. Whether the measure would be wise may be subject to argument but at least it seems worth considering.

It is proposed that 10 per cent be the limit of the money donated for a charity purpose that can be diverted to promote the campaign. It is further proposed that the public have a chance to see certified accounts of how much was collected and how it was spent.

Present regulations allow promotors to benefit themselves. Because this is true, many who would like to contribute to worthy causes are afraid to do so for fear the charity itself won't get a very large share of the donation. This happens far less often than the public suspects.

Major community efforts seek to keep expenses below 10 per cent and some aim at about a seven per cent mark. Nevertheless, there are cases in which as much as 40 per cent is admittedly taken out before the charity begins.

Some organizations such as the Good Fellows, sponsored by the Monroe Morning World and News-Star and by many individual citizens, including B. B. Martin and Jack Hesketh, give 100 per cent to charity. Every cent taken in by the Good Fellows here goes to the charity, all necessary work, promotion and other outlays being donated or provided separately. Sponsors not only contribute everything free but add their donations to the others.

It is not to be expected, however, that most fund-raising institutions can operate on this kind of basis. Some of them must spend some money for a director, advertising and office expenses.

Public accounting on standardized forms would give some doubtful operations a hard time but their number would be few and such results would be secondary to clearing the air for organizations that send the money they collect to the announced beneficiaries.

Increased public confidence, from knowing that at least 90 per cent of their contributions will go to the proper cause, probably would make it easier for the more worthy organizations to collect funds.

FPC's Position Right

Advocates of socialism and government ownership of industry have proposed that only private electric utilities be required to obtain permission from the federal power commission to construct ultra high voltage power lines. Public power systems would be free to build these lines without FPC authorization.

Lines of this kind, thanks to advanced technology, make possible the most efficient, economical and dependable power transmission, based on interconnections between far - flung power systems.

To FPC's credit, it has gone on record in opposition to the scheme and its chairman has so notified the house of representatives committee which passes on legislation of this nature. Of the five members of the FPC, only one dissented from the majority view. He made the preposterous charge that private utilities want to use the lines to strangle public power projects, thus showing he wants government ownership of utilities.

Just how he thinks the private systems could crowd out the subsidized public systems remains unexplained, unless he thinks the private systems are so much more efficient than the public systems that they can overcome tax and other important advantages enjoyed by the socialized systems and still beat them in producing service.

T. Moscoso Is On Way Out

Finding Top-Notch Successor And What To Do With Puerto Rican Present Two Thorny Problems

Teodoro Moscoso, head of the long - floundering Alliance for Progress, is on the way out.

While that backstage decision has been definitely reached, how soon he will be replaced depends on solving two thorny problems: (1) Finding a top - notch successor; (2) what to do with Moscoso.

The Puerto Rican is a close friend of Governor Luis Munos Marin, who has strong ties with the Kennedy administration. Marin "loaned" Moscoso to the President after his much - hailed Alliance for Progress got off to a boggled start. Moscoso is earnest and idealistic, but has done little better than his inadequate predecessor.

But to avoid offending Marin, and also because Moscoso is personally liked, the President is treading carefully in easing him out. But that is definitely in the works.

The man the President would like to put in this tough job is Thomas Mann, ambassador to Mexico.

An able, widely - experienced career diplomat who was Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs in the Eisenhower regime and was continued in that post by Kennedy until sent to Mexico, Mann has the drive and know - how that running the sagging Alliance urgently needs.

But he has let it be known he doesn't want this appointment. Whether Mann can be induced to change his mind, or someone else can be found, remains to be seen.

Meanwhile, in an effort to counter the rising chorus of congressional complaints against the Alliance, the White House is quietly putting out the word that Moscoso is no longer really bossing it. In other words, he is now little more than a figurehead.

SIGNIFICANT CRITICS —That was the import of what Ralph Dungan, 39 - year - old Special Assistant to the President, told a group of lawmakers when they protected Alliance mismanagement.

"Don't take your problems to Moscoso," Dungan advised them. "Bring them directly here to us. We will see to it that they are taken care of. Moscoso means well, but things just aren't working out satisfactorily."

Dungan ought to know. Of the inner White House staff, he is among the closest to the President. He plays a key role in filling vacancies, and lately has been increasingly occupied with foreign affairs. To their private astonishment, he lectured a group of ambassadors on "the requirements of new diplomacy." Dungan did not explain his qualifications for expounding on this subject.

A Princeton graduate, he is sometimes referred to by White House insiders as the "intellectual of the Kennedy Mafia."

Significantly, some of Moscoso's sharpest critics are leading Democratic senators who staunchly support the President's foreign policies.

Foremost among them are Senator Wayne Morse, Ore., chairman of the Foreign Relations Subcommittee on Latin America, Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Hubert Humphrey, Minn., and Senator Ernest Gruening, Alaska, who had extensive experience in South America during the New Deal. They have bluntly told the President that Moscoso must be replaced and without delay.

Morse asserted Moscoso "is over his head and hasn't got what it takes." He particularly assailed an Alliance rebuff to Mexican plans to rebuild its border cities. Morse blasted this stand as "silly and stupid."

Gruening went further, denouncing the policy of "mistakenly bailing out shaky and unstable Latin American regimes."

"We are told that we cannot support many urgent domestic needs because we cannot afford them," said Gruening. "Yet the administration continues to pour vast sums into unstable countries. It makes loans that are not loans at all, but give - aways. Actually, our money is not only being wasted, but the very result of trying to help countries in that manner is counter - productive. It prevents these countries from reforming themselves and getting on a stable basis.

"Unless restraint, vigilance and intelligence are exercised, the whole program will go down the drain. And the billion of dollars that we have spent and the billions more it is proposed to spend will be completely wasted."

Three members of a special Commerce Department advisory committee on the Alliance for Progress voiced a very similar warning.

David Rockefeller, head of Chase National Bank, Emilio Collado, Vice President of Standard Oil of New Jersey, and Walter Wriston, Vice President of the First National Bank of New York, in a detailed report concluded:

"The U. S. must change its role from one that emphasizes short run economic palliatives combined with recommendations for sweeping social and economic reforms, to one that places the greatest emphasis on the longer-run goals of creating an environment in which freedom of the market place is recognized for what it is, a major pillar of free and prosperous societies."

Perhaps you are just plain worn out with worry about financial problems and work; and you have developed this hostility towards the baby simply because she is an extra mouth to feed. Frankly, I don't know. But what I do know is that you must seek medical help right away.

You ask, "Is it too late or can I still win her confidence?" If you are really concerned about her future, you will do what I have suggested.

Many readers will think I have been lenient about the whole matter. They will say you are a "cruel mother" who deserves no sympathy. If doctors reacted that way they might just as well throw in their shingle. Your baby deserves sympathy, care and protection; but so do you.

For Mrs. C.: Yes, it is true that anginal pains can also occur in the throat and jaw. Although the typical anginal pain is confined to the chest (after exertion or excitement), I have seen a number of patients whose only complaint was jaw pain on exertion.

One was sure (and I, too, was suspicious) that his trouble was due to a bad tooth. Only after repeated expressions of wonder that the "toothache" came on only after he walked fast, did I become suspicious of angina. Subsequent examinations and study proved the diagnosis without question.

For Mrs. S.: Fatty tumors are called lipomas. They don't turn into cancer. Operation? That can be considered at leisure.

The Week In Focus

by Jack Gates

A World Full Of Crisis

Crisis throughout the world continued to increase the past week, rather than decrease, with Cuba and Latin America again being the focal point.

THE CUBAN controversy was fanned to white heat again Thursday when Cuban-based Soviet MIG fighter planes were disclosed as having fired at a disabled American shrimp boat in international waters between the U.S. and Cuba. The shots missed the boat which contained two Americans, who first thought the plane was a search craft and was coming to their aid until it fired.

The attack touched off speedy demands by some Congressmen for another invasion of Cuba. While urging caution—his key word in dealing with Cuba, President Kennedy did issue a shoot-if-necessary order against sorties from Red Cuba. He said he had told the armed forces "to insure that action will be taken against any vessel or aircraft which executes an attack against a vessel or aircraft of the U.S. over international waters in the Caribbean."

KENNEDY

HOWEVER, THE President declined to proclaim a policy of hot pursuit and said the U.S. does not yet know whether the attack "was a deliberate decision by the Cuban government or a decision by the pilots involved. He also said the U.S. would assume—unless the Soviets admitted it which they won't——that the attack was made by Cuban pilots. Again, using another of his favorite words, he said the U.S. would not make a hasty judgment in the matter.

The unwarranted attack did, however, raise again the question of what constitutes offensive and defensive weapons. Sen. Kenneth B. Keating of New York, a foremost critic of the administration's Cuban policy, said the attack "sweeps away with rocket fire the silly distinction between offensive and defensive weapons." The administration has contended that all strategic offensive weapons have been withdrawn from Cuba by the Soviets.

RUSSELL

ONE OF THE strongest congressional statements on the incident came from Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia, chairman of the powerful Senate Armed Services Committee. Calling the attack "an act—under which attacking Red Craft should be followed right back to their bases if necessary in order to destroy them."

Said Rep. Donald C. Bruce of Indiana, in a sharp jab, "We should have used our defensive weapons in defense against their defensive weapons."

IN THE MEANWHILE, the Soviet Union has told the U.S. it plans to pull out "several thousand" of its military forces in Cuba by March 15, but gave no indication as to what it meant by "several thousand." Members of both parties in Congress had demanded that all troops be withdrawn.

A Cuban exile leader still insists that there are definitely more than 17,000 Soviet troops in Cuba and perhaps up to 30,000. Not only that, but Dr. Manuel deVarona said he has it from well-informed sources that the Soviets have established two secret military bases in Latin America, one in the jungles of northwest Brazil and the other in the mountains of Paraguay. He also said that Cuba has set up numerous schools of sabotage and guerrilla warfare throughout Latin America, directed by high Communist officials in Havana.

ANOTHER CRISIS is brewing in the Caribbean Negro Republic of Haiti——one that is expected to turn the lazy trade winds into a full-blown hurricane. If the explosion comes—and it is predicted to occur before May, the U.S. may have to engage in military action to prevent a Castro-like regime from popping up on the Island, located only 50 miles from Cuba. Observers speculate that President Francois Duvalier, dictator of the French-speaking nation of 4 million, will leave the country suddenly before May. Communists are already powerful in that nation and any civil disorders would be made to order for them. Also Duvalier has declared Col. Robert Debs Heini, Marine chief of a 50-man U.S. naval mission, unwelcome in Haiti and ordered him out.

Best bet is that the Caribbean this year will be as hot as a political rally on the Fourth of July and most believe the U.S. will be involved in military action in that area before September rolls around.

Other Foreign Developments

MEANWHILE THE search goes on for the missing Sulphur Queen, a chemical tanker, that disappeared mysteriously in the busy sealanes off Key West, Florida. Two life jackets stenciled with the vessel's name, were found the past week. Some now believe that the ship could have been the victim of an attack by Communist forces from Cuba and that the 39 men aboard are more victims of Red aggression. . .

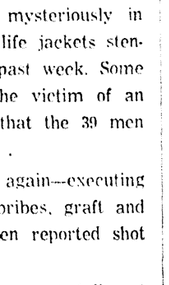
IN RUSSIA, Soviet firing squads are busy again—executing local officials and others convicted of taking bribes, graft and illegal currency deals. At least eight have been reported shot the past week. . . .

THE SOVIETS continue to hamper disarmament talks at Geneva. In the latest move, the communists continued to hold fast to their "take it or leave it" offer of three on-site inspections per year. The Soviet delegate charged the U.S. with bad faith "by suggesting two to four on-site inspections per year and then reneging on this offer." The U.S. denied it had ever made such a suggestion, but admitted it did offer to negotiate the number. Some believe the Soviets will eventually sign some sort of agreement because of their fear of Red China obtaining nuclear weapons. . .

TWO CONFLICTING statements came out of India the past week. One said Prime Minister Nehru's government has decided to ask the U.S., Britain, Canada and Australia to send planes to defend India against any Red Chinese air attack in the event of another outbreak of fighting. Another dispatch said Nehru denied he had asked the three nations to provide an "air umbrella." Apparently Nehru hasn't changed much—he is still the world's best fence straddler . . . .

ANGERED BY RACIAL discrimination and unable to leave, 300 African students in Communist Bulgaria are refusing to attend classes. Meanwhile Bulgarian authorities have promised improved living conditions and 100 per cent grades. At the same time, Bulgarian Communist Party Chief Todor Zhivkov was called to Moscow on Tuesday to give a report. . . .

THE LANDSLIDE election of Socialist Mayor Willy Brandt over Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democrats in Berlin city elections has been interpreted as a sign of dissatisfaction with Adenauer's recent policy moves—particularly his siding with de Gaulle in the Common Market dispute. Meanwhile, it is reported that President de Gaulle's government is casting around for ways and means to get Common Market talks started again with Britain. Even though he vetoed British entry at Brussels in January, de Gaulle reportedly strongly favors associate membership as an interim solution and believes West Germany might act as a mediator. But he wants to make sure any CM agricultural policy is firmly nailed down before any new talks start. . . .



BRANDT

AND IN ITALY a new type of lockout. Desk and chairs were used as braces against the doors of the University of Milan's College of Architecture to keep professors out. It's a strike that puzzles university authorities—and probably U.S. students as well. The students are demanding tougher courses and stiffer exams. . . .

On The Domestic Front

IN WASHINGTON, the Congress has consigned to a quiet pigeonhole President Kennedy's new medicare program which would boost Social Security taxes above $200 a year for every worker earning $100 a week or more. The program which was submitted the past week contains the politically-hot plan to provide hospital insurance through Social Security—a plan that was defeated in the last Congress. Sent to the House Ways & Means Committee, public hearings might be held late in the summer, but a showdown vote is not expected until next year. . . .

THE TECHNICAL problem that has kept the RS70 bomber grounded past its original flight date has been solved, and the weird-looking monster should fly late next month or in April. When—or if—it flies, the huge craft's 2,000-mile an hour windstream is expected to fan to new fury the flames of controversy ignited when the administration decided the RS70 had been outmoded by missiles . . .

AND THE PRESIDENT of U.S. Steel Corp. Leslie B. Worthington, says the nation's major economic problem may be "tired blood" brought on by "profit deficiency anemia." . . .

SUPERINTENDENT Carl F. Hansen of Washington, D. C.—where there are almost three-times as many Negroes as whites in the public schools—has asked permission to paddle young troublemakers if they refuse to behave themselves. He said teachers generally do not want to paddle kids but it is clear that the present immunity from physical punishment encourages insolence on the part of some children. We suspect teachers all over the nation are finding this to be true—and chances are something will be done about it within the near future . . .

Democrats Whistle A Sad Song

THIS COULD BE GOOD news for those in the nation who would like to see President Kennedy defeated in 1964. It seems the Democratic professionals paid to worry about such things have added up privately the problems Mr. Kennedy will have to overcome in order to win in 1964.

Their assessment: 1. Popularity polls are misleading. The 75 per cent or so in favor figure is only a performance measure. When the polls start pitting him against particular Republican potentials, his percentage will drop radically. 2. Republicans are united as seldom before. Their foreign policy and tax statements represent something new in party solidarity. 3. JFK's tax bill, as proposed, is in serious trouble. The word is it can't be passed as it stands, that the reforms must be jettisoned, that liberals don't think it goes far enough and conservatives think it's too much in relation to heavy spending proposals. 4. The Democratic party is in bad shape in some areas, particularly the key state of New York, and in Michigan where it is in shambles. 5. Some Democrats in Congress fear that the 1964 fiscal year deficit, planned to be almost $12 billion, may slide to as much as $20 billion, and that this would be dramatic enough to be a hot election issue. And, 6. the apparent disarray in the foreign policy field, if continued, may prove to be a political debit.

All in all, the experts say, it adds up to plenty of trouble for Mr. Kennedy in 1964 unless there is a radical change for the better.

Bits On The Unusual Side

BOTH LAY AND clerical authorities across the country are voicing alarm about the shocking new wave of poor-box proachers and muggers doing their first-story work within the Lord's house. For example, Catholic churches in Chicago are now locking their main doors after the Mass schedule has been completed. In the same city, five Protestant churches were robbed in a single recent evening, while in two parishes violent assaults have been made on clerical attendants. Other areas have been hit, but Washington, D. C. has been hardest hit. Parochial authorities in the capital have been forced to bar door, windows and maintain constant vigil over their property. No one knows the cause, but an interesting note is the fact that the outbreak comes in those areas where there has been a heavy influx of Negroes . .

REPORTS SAY THE drug industry is girding for battle again, following Dr. Frances O. Kelsey's recent address in which she revealed that many well-known drug products, including cold remedies, reducing pills, tranquilizers and preparations to combat the nausea of early pregnancy, are now under FDA scrutiny. Reason—A recent British report in which 29 cases of birth deformities were associated with the use of anti-nausea drugs. Dr. Kelsey claims this report, along with other evidence, indicates any number of compounds—other than thalidomide—may be responsible for the birth of deformed children. Dr. Kelsey, last year's heroine for keeping thalidomide off the market, reports U.S. studies involving certain antihistamines, diuretics and antibiotics were under way to find their effects, if any . . .

THE LATEST CHARGE to be leveled against long-suffering mothers-in-law: They really are the reason husbands leave home. According to a new report from Tracers Co., of America, specialists in the art of finding men who prefer not to be found, the only "other woman" in the overwhelming majority of recent missing-spouse cases is the one who works full time convincing her daughter that she married beneath her. Usual result is a son-in-law fed up with financing the luxuries "mom" firmly insists her little girl deserves. . . . .

REPORTS FROM Latin America's political scene claim the most fascinating new figure on the scene is a smoldering 26-year-old brunette named Lucia Peron de Ripepi. She has just revealed her identity as Juan Peron's natural daughter. Lucia is about to assume—with her father's consent—an active role in the Peronista movement. She is viewed by many as a kind of successor to Eva Peron and that she may be able to provide the colorful leadership inside Argentina that the movement hasn't had since Eva died. . . . .

DR. ALICE STEWART, writing in the British Medical Journal, reports that periodic health checkups can be lethal if they involve many abdominal X-ray investigations. She said—"There is now evidence to suggest the widespread use of X-rays in this manner may result in a higher death rate from leukemia than from the disease being sought by the X-rays. Dr. Stewart estimates that in Britain eight per cent of leukemia cases are caused by diagnostic X-rays and a further 3.6 per cent by therapeutic ones. The World Health Organization estimates the average exposure to X-rays is seven times as great in North America as in Britain. . .

Behind the Headlines

U.S.-Yugoslavia Relations Are Low

By ALLAN JACKS

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) —Relations between Yugoslavia and the United States have dropped to the lowest point since President Tito broke with the Soviet Union 15 years ago.

The Moscow-Belgrade split now seems to be healed. While Tito still demands freedom of action, Yugoslavia has moved back to the edge of the Soviet Communist camp, restoring intimate connections.

U.S.-Yugoslav frictions have been mounting for nearly two years, cooling a relationship that at one time brought the two countries close to alliance and also brought Yugoslavia $1.8 billion in aid.

Diplomats trace the deterioration to September, 1961 when Tito was host to leaders of 25 so-called nonaligned nations—countries not bound to either East or West by formal military pacts.

CONFERENCE

During the conference the Soviet Union launched a series of nuclear tests that ended a tacit U.S.-Soviet agreement against testing.

The outcry in the West was bitter. The reaction of many leaders at the meeting here, including Tito, appeared in American eyes to be less than neutral. Some supported the Soviet action. Some remained silent. Tito said he understood the need for it. A few were critical.

Since then differences have been piling up.

Yugoslavs complain about attacks in the U.S. Congress, about public boycotts against Yugoslav exports, and about the anti-Yugoslav activities of refugees. The newest complaint stems from a threatened refusal of the International Longshoremen's Union to handle Yugoslav ships because of this country's trade with Cuba.

Yugoslav officials are more concerned with curtailment of aid, except for agricultural products, and about cancellation of Yugoslavia's status as a most-favored trading nation. This will raise tariffs against some Yugoslav goods. Exports to the United States now total nearly $50 million annually.

U.S. diplomats here list American complaints about Yugoslav conduct. They are particularly annoyed at continued Yugoslav shipping to Cuba and what they consider to be Yugoslavia's effort to line up nonaligned countries in support of Soviet policies.

There is also criticism of Yugoslavia reluctance to recognize the U. S. contribution to recent development of the country.

EXPRESS REGRET

Belgrade officials express regret for the deteriorating situation but exhibit no plan or intention to do anything about it.

Said one high official: "This isn't because we don't care. We do. But we don't feel it is required that we justify our actions. We believe in acting as our own interests command. And we also believe that in time our course and policy will be understood."

Yugoslav officials seem inclined to view U.S. agricultural aid as of equal interest to U.S. farm states.

"We are not changing our policies of friendship and cooperation with nonaligned countries," Tito says frequently. But he avoids identifying his own country as one of the nonaligned.

Said one Western diplomat who has followed the course of Yugoslav-Soviet relations for years: "The Yugoslav line no longer depicts two major military blocs (U.S. and U.S.S.R.) in the world with Yugoslavia in the middle. Instead the line now refers only to the Socialist forces (Communist countries) and other peace-loving forces."

Why this turnabout?

The answer, as seen here, is simply in the nature of communism.

Tito and his closest colleagues are old-line Communists. They are emotionally attached to the Communist world. Like all Communists, they argue that communism ultimately will win the East-West struggle and dominate the world.

Yugoslavs also attach great importance to the Chinese-Soviet conflict. They hold that the fate of communism and, therefore, the world hinges on the outcome, and want to lend support to Moscow.

But the road back from the Soviet camp is kept open for a hasty withdrawal, if necessary. Yugoslavia could easily become a victim of the conflict. China has made ostracism of Yugoslavia a condition of even discussing a settlement of differences with the Soviet Union.

Guinea Swings From The Reds

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

CONAKRY, Guinea (AP) — The Republic of Guinea, not long ago the main Soviet hope for a foothold in Africa, is today seeking Western help and ties with conservative African nations.

Shortcomings in Soviet aid and Soviet-inspired reforms since have prompted President Sekou Toure to revise his attitude.

Long-term economic commitments and pressure of some elements within the ruling party's 17-man Political Bureau probably will force Guinea to maintain ties with the Communist world. But the government is becoming more and more accessible to Western—and particularly American — influence.

A MISTAKE

"We have made a mistake," said one Guinea high official. "We realize now where our interests lie."

At the Conakry Airport Soviet and Czech crews work on half a dozen Ilyushins lined up on the tarmac. Nearby are crates containing prefabricated one-family homes from the Soviet Union; they have been there for months. Soviet Zim trucks rumble past the skeleton of a modernistic hotel, under construction by Soviet-bloc experts since 1959. A new printing plant built in East Germany was to serve as a propaganda distribution center for French-speaking Africa. It operates at five per cent of capacity.

The Toure government—streamlined and shaken up during a series of recent purges — is seeking to attract foreign capital to the country which four years ago pledged to spearhead socialism in Africa.

A new investment code was passed to facilitate the installation of foreign companies.

The American-led international corporation FRIA, mining Guinea's bauxite deposits, is the country's main foreign currency supplier — some $10 million a year. The Guineans would like to see other companies come and work in Guinea. They are asking for more American aid. This aid has totaled $20 million since 1960, most of it in food. The Soviet Union has put in the equivalent of $100 million, a lot of money in a nation of 2½ million.

WERE ANGERED

The Guineans were angered by propaganda methods of some Communist nations represented in Guinea, particularly Red China and North Viet Nam. The violence of their propaganda program appears to be one of the reasons for the closing of all foreign cultural centers in Guinea.

In African politics Toure appears to be weary of the progressive Casablanca bloc grouping Guinea, Ghana, Mali, Morocco, Algeria and the United Arab Republic. There are indications he is leaning toward the conservative, French-backed African and Malagasy Union.

Western diplomats believe Guinea would like to reenter the franc zone, due to mounting difficulties with its own currency which has no exchange value. However, negotations with France appear to have bogged down.

Although some observers describe Guinean independence as a failure, others point to achievements. The number of children going to school has tripled, to nearly 20 per cent. Tribal influences have been reduced by an interchange of area administrators and officials.

Above all, large numbers of Guineans have been trained to perform tasks which are still carried out by Frenchmen in neighboring countries.

The nation's economic plight has created what is known as a "policy of the stomach." And Guinea's attitude toward the United States has changed drastically, largely due to the efforts of Washington's hard-working ambassador, William Attwood, a former newspaperman.

"Our attitude is simple—we are not here to infiltrate or to knock anybody," he says. "Our job is to help and we are willing to work alongside anybody who is here for the same purpose."

German Politics Heating Up Slowly

By CARL HARTMAN

BONN, Germany (AP) — The battle is heating up — in the slow way of German politics — for the succession to Konrad Adenauer, now 87, as head of government.

Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard, the man usually credited with the country's postwar boom, has long been the odds-on favorite. Coming up fast is Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder, sometimes called "Der schoene Gerhard"—handsome Gerhard.

Erhard at 66 seems to realize that it may be now or never for him. No one would ever call him handsome, but his pudgy figure, grandfatherly demeanor, and ever-present cigar inspire confidence in the average German.

He hopes to become chancellor this fall, when Adenauer has promised to retire.

His chief obstacle is Adenauer, who often has said he would prefer someone else, never identified.

The selection will be made by the dominant Christian Democrat party.

Erhard's method of stepping up his campaign is to take every possible occasion of putting himself on view as a greater enthusiast than Adenauer for close ties with the United States and Britain. He doesn't attack Adenauer publicly. "The Old Man" still wields plenty of political power.

Erhard likes to be cartooned as "Mr. Economic Miracle," but his cautious style of politicking has earned him a less complimentary nickname. Detractors call him "Gummiloewe"—the rubber lion.

Schroeder, on the other hand, is the kind of man who gets praised for flexibility.

At 52 he still can hope for the top job some day, even if Erhard gets it first.

Schroeder entered Parliament in 1949 at 38. Four years later he held the key post of interior minister. He became known as "Adenauer's young man." He got the job of foreign minister in 1961.

In the confusion that followed British failure to enter the Common Market, Schroeder followed Adenauer's line closely. He has voiced no reservations about the new Bonn-Paris treaty, which Adenauer regards as the crowning work of his life.

Erhard says he wants something added to the treaty to make it clear that it will not weaken the Atlantic alliance with the United States and Britain.

The Christian Democrats suffered losses in last Sunday's Berlin city election. Party tacticians say discontent with Adenauer was a factor. The party leaders are determined to pick his successor by midsummer.

LUDWIG ERHARD, 66, left, and Gerhard Schroeder, 52, are the leading possibilities to succeed Konrad Adenauer, 87-year-old head of West Germany's government. Erhard, economics minister and the man usually credited with the country's post-war boom, is the favorite but foreign minister Schroeder has been gaining rapidly. (AP Wirephoto)

U.N. Special Fund Is Brainchild Of U.S.

By MILTON BESSER

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The U.N. Special Fund is a brainchild of the United States and it is watched over by a former American industrialist.

Just now it is under fire in Congress because of a proposed agricultural project in Cuba.

Paul G. Hoffman, managing director of the fund, seems confident that when tempers subside the critics will agree that the fund deserves continued U.S. support.

Hoffman had lunch with inquiring senators Tuesday, then went to Europe in pursuit of his mission of trying to persuade governments to pour more money into the fund.

The U.N. General Assembly set up the fund in 1958, after a decade of debate on how the United Nations should help finance the development of poor nations.

FEELING

There was considerable feeling among such nations and their sympathizers that at least $250 million should be appropriated. The United States thought this was too ambitious, and pushed for creation of a special fund. An annual target of $100 million was set for both the fund and an expanded program of U.N. technical assistance.

All contributions are voluntary. The $100-million goal has not been reached in any one year.

Currently the fund is administering 286 projects to cost nearly $590 million. It is putting up $253 million and the recipient countries the remainder.

This is small in comparison with foreign aid projects sponsored by the United States itself. The Alliance for Progress contemplates total expenditures of $20 billion for a 10-year-period in Latin America with the United States contributing more than half. However the United States is the principal contributor to the Special Fund, as it is to all U.N. specialized agencies and the parent organization itself. For the fund the contribution is 40 per cent.

Fund officials estimate that 97 per cent of its assistance is being furnished to 90 countries and territories to which the United States is also supplying development aid.

Outside the Cuban project the fund is administering projects in two Communist countries—Poland and Yugoslavia.

The United States has pledged a total of $100,400,000 to the fund. This compares with $8,228,225 from Cuba and 11 Communist nations. Cuba's annual pledge is $55,000.

Under the resolution setting up the fund, political considerations are ruled out in considering projects. Secretary-General U Thant says this has kept the Soviets from protesting about projects for Nationalist China, South Korea and South Viet Nam requiring $7,742,500 from the fund, and the Arabs from protesting about projects for Israel.

The United States has taken the position that political considerations must be weighed when they bear upon the economic soundness of a project.

Fund officials recognized this principle in the past in suspending projects in Iraq and South Viet Nam.

Hoffman told inquiring senators that the fate of the Cuban project has not been finally settled. He said a five-man team of specialists will make an on-the-scene investigation of the project's feasibility.

THE SOVIETS continue to hamper disarmament talks at Geneva. In the latest move, the communists continued to hold fast to their "take it or leave it" offer of three on-site inspections per year. The Soviet delegate charged the U.S. with bad faith "by suggesting two to four on-site inspections per year and then reneging on this offer." The U.S. denied it had ever made such a suggestion, but admitted it did offer to negotiate the number. Some believe the Soviets will eventually sign some sort of agreement because of their fear of Red China obtaining nuclear weapons. . .

TWO CONFLICTING statements came out of India the past week. One said Prime Minister Nehru's government has decided to ask the U.S., Britain, Canada and Australia to send planes to defend India against any Red Chinese air attack in the event of another outbreak of fighting. Another dispatch said Nehru denied he had asked the three nations to provide an "air umbrella." Apparently Nehru hasn't changed much—he is still the world's best fence straddler . . . .

ANGERED BY RACIAL discrimination and unable to leave, 300 African students in Communist Bulgaria are refusing to attend classes. Meanwhile Bulgarian authorities have promised improved living conditions and 100 per cent grades. At the same time, Bulgarian Communist Party Chief Todor Zhivkov was called to Moscow on Tuesday to give a report. . . .

BRANDT

THE LANDSLIDE election of Socialist Mayor Willy Brandt over Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democrats in Berlin city elections has been interpreted as a sign of dissatisfaction with Adenauer's recent policy moves—particularly his siding with de Gaulle in the Common Market dispute. Meanwhile, it is reported that President de Gaulle's government is casting around for ways and means to get Common Market talks started again with Britain. Even though he vetoed British entry at Brussels in January, de Gaulle reportedly strongly favors associate membership as an interim solution and believes West Germany might act as a mediator. But he wants to make sure any CM agricultural policy is firmly nailed down before any new talks start. . . .

AND IN ITALY a new type of lockout. Desk and chairs were used as braces against the doors of the University of Milan's College of Architecture to keep professors out. It's a strike that puzzles university authorities—and probably U.S. students as well. The students are demanding tougher courses and stiffer exams. . . .

On The Domestic Front

IN WASHINGTON, the Congress has consigned to a quiet pigeonhole President Kennedy's new medicare program which would boost Social Security taxes above $200 a year for every worker earning $100 a week or more. The program which was submitted the past week contains the politically-hot plan to provide hospital insurance through Social Security—a plan that was defeated in the last Congress. Sent to the House Ways & Means Committee, public hearings might be held late in the summer, but a showdown vote is not expected until next year. . . .

THE TECHNICAL problem that has kept the RS70 bomber grounded past its original flight date has been solved, and the weird-looking monster should fly late next month or in April. When—or if—it flies, the huge craft's 2,000-mile an hour windstream is expected to fan to new fury the flames of controversy ignited when the administration decided the RS70 had been outmoded by missiles . . .

AND THE PRESIDENT of U.S. Steel Corp. Leslie B. Worthington, says the nation's major economic problem may be "tired blood" brought on by "profit deficiency anemia." . . .

SUPERINTENDENT Carl F. Hansen of Washington, D. C.—where there are almost three-times as many Negroes as whites in the public schools—has asked permission to paddle young troublemakers if they refuse to behave themselves. He said teachers generally do not want to paddle kids but it is clear that the present immunity from physical punishment encourages insolence on the part of some children. We suspect teachers all over the nation are finding this to be true—and chances are something will be done about it within the near future . . .

Democrats Whistle A Sad Song

THIS COULD BE GOOD news for those in the nation who would like to see President Kennedy defeated in 1964. It seems the Democratic professionals paid to worry about such things have added up privately the problems Mr. Kennedy will have to overcome in order to win in 1964.

Their assessment: 1. Popularity polls are misleading. The 75 per cent or so in favor figure is only a performance measure. When the polls start pitting him against particular Republican potentials, his percentage will drop radically. 2. Republicans are united as seldom before. Their foreign policy and tax statements represent something new in party solidarity. 3. JFK's tax bill, as proposed, is in serious trouble. The word is it can't be passed as it stands, that the reforms must be jettisoned, that liberals don't think it goes far enough and conservatives think it's too much in relation to heavy spending proposals. 4. The Democratic party is in bad shape in some areas, particularly the key state of New York, and in Michigan where it is in shambles. 5. Some Democrats in Congress fear that the 1964 fiscal year deficit, planned to be almost $12 billion, may slide to as much as $20 billion, and that this would be dramatic enough to be a hot election issue. And, 6, the apparent disarray in the foreign policy field, if continued, may prove to be a political debit.

All in all, the experts say, it adds up to plenty of trouble for Mr. Kennedy in 1964 unless there is a radical change for the better.

Bits On The Unusual Side

BOTH LAY AND clerical authorities across the country are voicing alarm about the shocking new wave of poor-box proachers and muggers doing their first-story work within the Lord's house. For example, Catholic churches in Chicago are now locking their main doors after the Mass schedule has been completed. In the same city, five Protestant churches were robbed in a single recent evening, while in two parishes violent assaults have been made on clerical attendants. Other areas have been hit, but Washington, D. C. has been hardest hit. Parochial authorities in the capital have been forced to bar door, windows and maintain constant vigil over their property. No one knows the cause, but an interesting note is the fact that the outbreak comes in those areas where there has been a heavy influx of Negroes . .

REPORTS SAY THE drug industry is girding for battle again, following Dr. Frances O. Kelsey's recent address in which she revealed that many well-known drug products, including cold remedies, reducing pills, tranquilizers and preparations to combat the nausea of early pregnancy, are now under FDA scrutiny. Reason—A recent British report in which 29 cases of birth deformities were associated with the use of anti-nausea drugs. Dr. Kelsey claims this report, along with other evidence, indicates any number of compounds—other than thalidomide—may be responsible for the birth of deformed children. Dr. Kelsey, last year's heroine for keeping thalidomide off the market, reports U.S. studies involving certain antihistamines, diuretics and antibiotics were under way to find their effects, if any . . .

THE LATEST CHARGE to be leveled against long-suffering mothers-in-law: They really are the reason husbands leave home. According to a new report from Tracers Co., of America, specialists in the art of finding men who prefer not to be found, the only "other woman" in the overwhelming majority of recent missing-spouse cases is the one who works full time convincing her daughter that she married beneath her. Usual result is a son-in-law fed up with financing the luxuries "mom" firmly insists her little girl deserves. . . . .

REPORTS FROM Latin America's political scene claim the most fascinating new figure on the scene is a smoldering 26-year-old brunette named Lucia Peron de Ripepi. She has just revealed her identity as Juan Peron's natural daughter. Lucia is about to assume—with her father's consent—an active role in the Peronista movement. She is viewed by many as a kind of successor to Eva Peron and that she may be able to provide the colorful leadership inside Argentina that the movement hasn't had since Eva died. . . . .

DR. ALICE STEWART, writing in the British Medical Journal, reports that periodic health checkups can be lethal if they involve many abdominal X-ray investigations. She said—"There is now evidence to suggest the widespread use of X-rays in this manner may result in a higher death rate from leukemia than from the disease being sought by the X-rays. Dr. Stewart estimates that in Britain eight per cent of leukemia cases are caused by diagnostic X-rays and a further 3.6 per cent by therapeutic ones. The World Health Organization estimates the average exposure to X-rays is seven times as great in North America as in Britain. . .

Behind the Headlines

U.S.-Yugoslavia Relations Are Low

By ALLAN JACKS

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) —Relations between Yugoslavia and the United States have dropped to the lowest point since President Tito broke with the Soviet Union 15 years ago.

The Moscow-Belgrade split now seems to be healed. While Tito still demands freedom of action, Yugoslavia has moved back to the edge of the Soviet Communist camp, restoring intimate connections.

U.S. - Yugoslav frictions have been mounting for nearly two years, cooling a relationship that at one time brought the two countries close to alliance and also brought Yugoslavia $1.8 billion in aid.

Diplomats trace the deterioration to September, 1961 when Tito was host to leaders of 25 so-called nonaligned nations—countries not bound to either East or West by formal military pacts.

CONFERENCE

During the conference the Soviet Union launched a series of nuclear tests that ended a tacit U.S. - Soviet agreement against testing.

The outcry in the West was bitter. The reaction of many leaders at the meeting here, including Tito, appeared in American eyes to be less than neutral. Some supported the Soviet action. Some remained silent. Tito said he understood the need for it. A few were critical.

Since then differences have been piling up.

Yugoslavs complain about attacks in the U.S. Congress, about public boycotts against Yugoslav exports, and about the anti-Yugoslav activities of refugees. The newest complaint stems from a threatened refusal of the International Longshoremen's Union to handle Yugoslav ships because of this country's trade with Cuba.

Yugoslav officials are more concerned with curtailment of aid, except for agricultural products, and about cancellation of Yugoslavia's status as a most-favored trading nation. This will raise tariffs against some Yugoslav goods. Exports to the United States now total nearly $50 million annually.

U.S. diplomats here list American complaints about Yugoslav conduct. They are particularly annoyed at continued Yugoslav shipping to Cuba and what they consider to be Yugoslavia's effort to line up nonaligned countries in support of Soviet policies.

There is also criticism of Yugoslavia reluctance to recognize the U. S. contribution to recent development of the country.

EXPRESS REGRET

Belgrade officials express regret for the deteriorating situation but exhibit no plan or intention to do anything about it.

Said one high official: "This isn't because we don't care. We do. But we don't feel it is required that we justify our actions. We believe in acting as our own interests command. And we also believe that in time our course and policy will be understood."

Yugoslav officials seem inclined to view U.S. agricultural aid as of equal interest to U.S. farm states.

"We are not changing our policies of friendship and cooperation with nonaligned countries," Tito says frequently. But he avoids identifying his own country as one of the nonaligned.

Said one Western diplomat who has followed the course of Yugoslav-Soviet relations for years: "The Yugoslav line no longer depicts two major military blocs (U.S. and U.S.S.R.) in the world with Yugoslavia in the middle. Instead the line now refers only to the Socialist forces (Communist countries) and other peace-loving forces."

Why this turnabout?

The answer, as seen here, is simply in the nature of communism.

Tito and his closest colleagues are old-line Communists. They are emotionally attached to the Communist world. Like all Communists, they argue that communism ultimately will win the East-West struggle and dominate the world.

Yugoslavs also attach great importance to the Chinese-Soviet conflict. They hold that the fate of communism and, therefore, the world hinges on the outcome, and want to lend support to Moscow.

But the road back from the Soviet camp is kept open for a hasty withdrawal, if necessary. Yugoslavia could easily become a victim of the conflict. China has made ostracism of Yugoslavia a condition of even discussing a settlement of differences with the Soviet Union.

Guinea Swings From The Reds

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

CONAKRY, Guinea (AP) — The Republic of Guinea, not long ago the main Soviet hope for a foothold in Africa, is today seeking Western help and ties with conservative African nations.

Shortcomings in Soviet aid and Soviet-inspired reforms since have prompted President Sekou Toure to revise his attitude.

Long - term economic commitments and pressure of some elements within the ruling party's 17-man Political Bureau probably will force Guinea to maintain ties with the Communist world. But the government is becoming more and more accessible to Western—and particularly American — influence.

"We have made a mistake," said one Guinea high official. "We realize now where our interests lie."

At the Conakry Airport Soviet and Czech crews work on half a dozen Ilyushins lined up on the tarmac. Nearby are crates containing prefabricated one-family homes from the Soviet Union; they have been there for months. Soviet Zim trucks rumble past the skeleton of a modernistic hotel, under construction by Soviet-bloc experts since 1959. A new printing plant built in East Germany was to serve as a propaganda distribution center for French-speaking Africa. It operates at five per cent of capacity.

The Toure government—streamlined and shaken up during a series of recent purges — is seeking to attract foreign capital to the country which four years ago pledged to spearhead socialism in Africa.

A new investment code was passed to facilitate the installation of foreign companies.

The American-led international corporation FRIA, mining Guinea's bauxite deposits, is the country's main foreign currency supplier — some $10 million a year. The Guineans would like to see other companies come and work in Guinea. They are asking for more American aid. This aid has totaled $20 million since 1960, most of it in food. The Soviet Union has put in the equivalent of $100 million, a lot of money in a nation of 2½ million.

WERE ANGERED

The Guineans were angered by propaganda methods of some Communist nations represented in Guinea, particularly Red China and North Viet Nam. The violence of their propaganda program appears to be one of the reasons for the closing of all foreign cultural centers in Guinea.

In African politics Toure appears to be weary of the progressive Casablanca bloc grouping Guinea, Ghana, Mali, Morocco, Algeria and the United Arab Republic. There are indications he is leaning toward the conservative, French-backed African and Malagasy Union.

Western diplomats believe Guinea would like to reenter the franc zone, due to mounting difficulties with its own currency which has no exchange value. However, negotations with France appear to have bogged down.

Although some observers describe Guinean independence as a failure, others point to achievements. The number of children going to school has tripled, to nearly 20 per cent. Tribal influences have been reduced by an interchange of area administrators and officials.

Above all, large numbers of Guineans have been trained to perform tasks which are still carried out by Frenchmen in neighboring countries.

The nation's economic plight has created what is known as a "policy of the stomach." And Guinea's attitude toward the United States has changed drastically, largely due to the efforts of Washington's hard-working ambassador, William Attwood, a former newspaperman.

"Our attitude is simple—we are not here to infiltrate or to knock anybody," he says. "Our job is to help and we are willing to work alongside anybody who is here for the same purpose."

German Politics Heating Up Slowly

By CARL HARTMAN

BONN, Germany (AP) — The battle is heating up — in the slow way of German politics — for the succession to Konrad Adenauer, now 87, as head of government.

Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard, the man usually credited with the country's postwar boom, has long been the odds-on favorite. Coming up fast is Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder, sometimes called "Der schoene Gerhard"—handsome Gerhard.

Erhard at 66 seems to realize that it may be now or never for him. No one would ever call him handsome, but his pudgy figure, grandfatherly demeanor, and ever-present cigar inspire confidence in the average German.

He hopes to become chancellor this fall, when Adenauer has promised to retire.

His chief obstacle is Adenauer, who often has said he would prefer someone else, never identified.

The selection will be made by the dominant Christian Democrat party.

Erhard's method of stepping up his campaign is to take every possible occasion of putting himself on view as a greater enthusiast than Adenauer for close ties with the United States and Britain. He doesn't attack Adenauer publicly. "The Old Man" still wields plenty of political power.

Erhard likes to be cartooned as "Mr. Economic Miracle," but his cautious style of politicking has earned him a less complimentary nickname. Detractors call him "Gummiloewe"—the rubber lion.

Schroeder, on the other hand, is the kind of man who gets praised for flexibility.

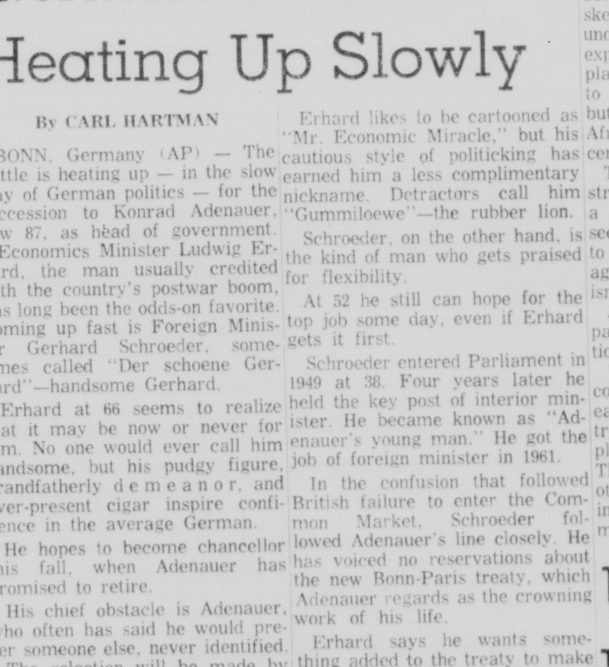
At 52 he still can hope for the top job some day, even if Erhard gets it first.

Schroeder entered Parliament in 1949 at 38. Four years later he held the key post of interior minister. He became known as "Adenauer's young man." He got the job of foreign minister in 1961.

In the confusion that followed British failure to enter the Common Market, Schroeder followed Adenauer's line closely. He has voiced no reservations about the new Bonn-Paris treaty, which Adenauer regards as the crowning work of his life.

Erhard says he wants something added to the treaty to make it clear that it will not weaken the Atlantic alliance with the United States and Britain.

The Christian Democrats suffered losses in last Sunday's Berlin city election. Party tacticians say discontent with Adenauer was a factor. The party leaders are determined to pick his successor by midsummer.



LUDWIG ERHARD, 66, left, and Gerhard Schroeder, 52, are the leading possibilities to succeed Konrad Adenauer, 87-year-old head of West Germany's government. Erhard, economics minister and the man usually credited with the country's post-war boom, is the favorite but foreign minister Schroeder has been gaining rapidly. (AP Wirephoto)

U.N. Special Fund Is Brainchild Of U.S.

By MILTON BESSER

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The U.N. Special Fund is a brainchild of the United States and it is watched over by a former American industrialist.

Just now it is under fire in Congress because of a proposed agricultural project in Cuba.

Paul G. Hoffman, managing director of the fund, seems confident that when tempers subside the critics will agree that the fund deserves continued U.S. support.

Hoffman had lunch with inquiring senators Tuesday, then went to Europe in pursuit of his mission of trying to persuade governments to pour more money into the fund.

The U.N. General Assembly set up the fund in 1958, after a decade of debate on how the United Nations should help finance the development of poor nations.

FEELING

There was considerable feeling among such nations and their sympathizers that at least $250 million should be appropriated. The United States thought this was too ambitious, and pushed for creation of a special fund. An annual target of $100 million was set for both the fund and an expanded program of U.N. technical assistance.

All contributions are voluntary. The $100-million goal has not been reached in any one year.

Currently the fund is administering 286 projects to cost nearly $590 million. It is putting up $253 million and the recipient countries the remainder.

This is small in comparison with foreign aid projects sponsored by the United States itself. The Alliance for Progress contemplates total expenditures of $20 billion for a 10-year-period in Latin America with the United States contributing more than half. However the United States is the principal contributor to the Special Fund, as it is to all U.N. specialized agencies and the parent organization itself. For the fund the contribution is 40 per cent.

Fund officials estimate that 97 per cent of its assistance is being furnished to 90 countries and territories to which the United States is also supplying development aid.

Outside the Cuban project the fund is administering projects in two Communist countries—Poland and Yugoslavia.

The United States has pledged a total of $100,400,000 to the fund. This compares with $8,228,225 from Cuba and 11 Communist nations. Cuba's annual pledge is $55,000.

Under the resolution setting up the fund, political considerations are ruled out in considering projects. Secretary-General U Thant says this has kept the Soviets from protesting about projects for Nationalist China, South Korea and South Viet Nam requiring $7,742,500 from the fund, and the Arabs from protesting about projects for Israel.

The United States has taken the position that political considerations must be weighed when they bear upon the economic soundness of a project.

Fund officials recognized this principle in the past in suspending projects in Iraq and South Viet Nam.

Hoffman told inquiring senators that the fate of the Cuban project has not been finally settled. He said a five-man team of specialists will make an on-the-scene investigation of the project's feasibility.

MOREHOUSE, Mo. (AP) — A disabled World War II veteran, his wife and their eight children perished Saturday in a fire that swept rapidly through the four-room frame house.

The family of Paul Saville, 47, was found in two beds. They apparently had no warning, police said.

Dead are Saville, his wife Shirley, 25 and their eight children, Paul David Jr., 10; Glenda Sue, 9; Hester, 8; Everett, 7; Alvin, 5; Michael, 2; Henderson, 1, and Zelda Mae, 4 months.

Series Of Special Services Slated

The Messiah Lutheran Church, 400 block of Jackson St., will hold 7 p.m. Wednesday services weekly through the season of Lent, it was announced by the Rev. Charles F. Vorkoper, pastor.

Starting this week, the services will run through April 3. The Rev. Vorkoper will be featured speaker at the services and there will be a series of meditations on the theme of "The Story of Our Lord's Passion and Death."

NAMED DESIRE?

MALMOE, Sweden (UPI) — A 12-year-old boy stole a street car here Saturday while the crew was being changed, drove it through three normally busy intersections without incident, stuck a chair against the operating mechanism to keep it moving, and then leaped off. A patrolman had to leap aboard the trolley to stop it. The boy escaped.

Betancourt Assures Exiles Cuba People To Be Freed

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Venezuela's President Romulo Betancourt met Saturday with U.S. labor leaders, then assured Miami's Cuban exile colony that, "Procedures at the polls will result in the freedom of the Cuban people."

"Ask them to have faith that the Communist regime in Cuba supported by the Soviet Union will be overthrown," Betancourt said.

The short, mild-appearing president described himself as militantly aggressive in the move to end the enslavement of Cuban people by Prime Minister Fidel Castro and the Russians.

Betancourt climaxed a four-day visit to the United States in meeting with the U.S. labor leaders who described him as "a champion of human liberty and an advocate of free trade unionism."

Betancourt's meeting with the Executive Council of the AFL-CIO in a private dining room of the heavily guarded International Amaret Hotel was not explained, but it was seen as an effort to bolster Betancourt's support among workers in Venezuela, where Communist forces have been active.

AFL-CIO President George Meany, sitting next to Betancourt, said the president had been waging a courageous fight for true democracy that stands as an example for other Latin-American countries.

American labor is fully aware, Meany said, that a loss of liberty for workers anywhere represents a loss of liberty for workers everywhere. He added that misery and hunger are threats to the entire Western Hemisphere, wherever they exist.

Betancourt said American labor has been constant in criticizing dictatorial regimes even at times when the U.S. State Department was supporting totalitarian governments in Latin America.

Betancourt told the union chiefs that he has ousted Communists from high posts in the Venezuelan government and labor organizations.

Seated with Betancourt and Meany was Jose Gonzalez Navarro, president of the Confederation of Venezuelan Workers.

Gonzalez and about 20 other Venezuelan labor leaders, including members of the powerful Venezuelan Petroleum Federation, flew to Miami on Friday night shortly before Betancourt arrived from New York.

Miami Mayor Robert King High and his wife visited with the Betancourts while luggage was carried aboard the plane for Betancourt's departure. Mrs. High said the president promised to send souvenirs from Venezuela to her five children.

Betancourt waved goodby and entered the plane, but about 10 minutes later city officials wheeled out a large birthday cake on a cart and Betancourt returned to the ramp. The president was 55 years old Friday.

When High started to cut the cake, a plainclothesman pushed him aside and probed the cake with a knife blade. He explained that agents had not supervised the baking.

After the officer "cleared" the cake, High cut a piece and offered it to Betancourt. Security officers cried, "No!" when Betancourt started to take a bite, but he proceeded, smiling as he munched. Then he pulled a white handkerchief from his breast pocket and wiped icing from his fingers.

Success Key To Exposition Is Weather

DELHI (Special) — There are many ingredients that go into making a successful stock show such as the one at Delhi beginning Monday.

One of the prime ones as far as the Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show is concerned is the whims of Ol' Man Weather. If he smiles, one of the big hurdles will have been cleared. Sunshine brings out the people.

But they'll come in rain, sleet and snow, as has been demonstrated in the past. Maybe not as many, though.

There was rain during the show last year, but the event was still a success. The year before that, weather was good and the crowds were large.

"The weather is the key. In 1960, while state support was still being advanced to the exposition, the weather was bad.

Since that time, there has been no state support and officials are more wary of the weather than ever before.

Family Of Ten Dies In Blaze

MOREHOUSE, Mo. (AP) — A disabled World War II veteran, his wife and their eight children perished Saturday in a fire that swept rapidly through the four-room frame house.

The family of Paul Saville, 47, was found in two beds. They apparently had no warning, police said.

Dead are Saville, his wife Shirley, 25 and their eight children, Paul David Jr., 10; Glenda Sue, 9; Hester, 8; Everett, 7; Alvin, 5; Michael, 2; Henderson, 1, and Zelda Mae, 4 months.

Series Of Special Services Slated

The Messiah Lutheran Church, 400 block of Jackson St., will hold 7 p.m. Wednesday services weekly through the season of Lent, it was announced by the Rev. Charles F. Vorkoper, pastor.

Starting this week, the services will run through April 3. The Rev. Vorkoper will be featured speaker at the services and there will be a series of meditations on the theme of "The Story of Our Lord's Passion and Death."

NAMED DESIRE?

MALMOE, Sweden (UPI) — A 12-year-old boy stole a street car here Saturday while the crew was being changed, drove it through three normally busy intersections without incident, stuck a chair against the operating mechanism to keep it moving, and then leaped off. A patrolman had to leap aboard the trolley to stop it. The boy escaped.

Betancourt Assures Exiles Cuba People To Be Freed

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Venezuelan President Romulo Betancourt met Saturday with U.S. labor leaders, then assured Miami's Cuban exile colony that, "Procedures in motion will result in the freedom of the Cuban people."

"Ask them to have faith that the Communist regime in Cuba supported by the Soviet Union will be overthrown," Betancourt said.

The short, mild-appearing president described himself as militantly aggressive in the move to "put an end to the enslavement of Cuban people" by Prime Minister Fidel Castro and the Russians.

Betancourt climaxed a four-day visit to the United States in meeting with the U.S. labor leaders who described him as "a champion of human liberty and an advocate of free tradé unionism."

Betancourt's meeting with the Executive Council of the AFL-CIO in a private dining room of the heavily guarded International Airport Hotel was not explained. But it was seen as an effort to bolster Betancourt's support among workers in Venezuela, where Communist forces have been active.

AFL-CIO President George Meany, sitting next to Betancourt, said the president had been waging a courageous fight for true democracy that stands as an example for other Latin-American countries.

American labor is fully aware, Meany said, that a loss of liberty for workers anywhere represents a loss of liberty for workers every where. He added that misery and hunger are threats to the entire Western Hemisphere, wherever they exist.

Betancourt said American labor has been constant in criticizing dictatorial regimes even at times when the U.S. State Department was supporting totalitarian governments in Latin America.

Betancourt told the union chiefs that he has ousted Communists from high posts in the Venezuelan government and labor organizations.

Seated with Betancourt and Meany was Jose Gonzalez Navarro, president of the Confederation of Venezuelan Workers.

Gonzalez and about 20 other Venezuelan labor leaders, including members of the powerful Venezuelan Petroleum Federation, flew to Miami on Friday night shortly before Betancourt arrived from New York.

Miami Mayor Robert King High and his wife visited with the Betancourts while luggage was carried aboard the plane for Betancourt's departure. Mrs. High said the president promised to send souvenirs from Venezuela to her five children.

Betancourt waved goodby and entered the plane, but about 10 minutes later city officials wheeled out a large birthday cake on a cart and Betancourt returned to the ramp. The president was 55 years old Friday.

When High started to cut the cake, a plainclothesman pushed him aside and probed the cake with a knife blade. He explained that agents had not supervised the baking.

After the officer "cleared" the cake, High cut a piece and offered it to Betancourt. Security officers cried, "No!" when Betancourt started to take a bite, but he proceeded, smiling as he munched. Then he pulled a white handkerchief from his breast pocket and wiped icing from his fingers.

Success Key To Exposition Is Weather

DELHI (Special) — There are many ingredients that go into making a successful stock show such as the one at Delhi beginning Monday.

One of the prime ones as far as the Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show is concerned is the whims of Ol' Man Weather. If he smiles, one of the big hurdles will have been cleared. Sunshine brings out the people.

But they'll come in rain, sleet and snow, as has been demonstrated in the past. Maybe not as many, though.

There was rain during the show last year, but the event was still a success. The year before that, weather was good and the crowds were large.

The weather is the key. In 1960, while state support was still being advanced to the exposition, the weather was bad.

Since that time, there has been no state support and officials are more wary of the weather than ever before.

Asphyxiation Is Ruled In Deaths

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The Orleans Parish coroner said Saturday Mrs. Catherine L. Linden and her 3-year-old son, Rickey, died from asphyxiation.

Dr. Nicholas Chetta, the coroner, said he had ruled the deaths as homicide because of "peculiar circumstances." He declined to say what the circumstances were because, he said, it might hamper a police probe, now underway.

The body of Mrs. Linden, 23, a native of South Bend, Ind., and her son were found on a bed in an apartment here on Dec. 12.

Mrs. Linden was arrested Aug. 30 charged with no visible means of support, police records showed.

SHARE

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Illinois share of the $93,302,000,000 spending budget for fiscal 1964, submitted to Congress Jan. 17 by President Kennedy, amounts to $6,955,500,000 according to the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce.

Applying this figure to Illinois' official 1960 census population of 10,081,158 it breaks down to $689.95 for each man, woman and child in the state and $2,759.80 for each family unit of four, the organization said.

Delhi Adult Show 'Open To The World'

DELHI (Special) — "Open to the World on the Big Show Circuit."

That's the adult division of the Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show at Delhi, opening for a four - day run Monday.

Last year, a satisfying number of Hereford cattle was entered, and division superintendent Charles Brown called the quality "good."

In the other divisions, Aberdeen Angus, Santa Gertrudis and Brahman, the number was down. However, the show attracted a herd of Santa Gertrudis from Arizona.

Hull - Dobbs Ranches of Fort Worth, Tex., and Wall, Miss., won top prizes in the Hereford competition, claiming the champion and reserve champions in both bull and female competition.

The champion Hereford bull was Hull - Dobb's "HDR Real Onward F35" and the champion female Hereford was Hull-Dobb's "HDR Royall Royalatte 066."

W. E. Parks of St. Joseph showed the grand champion Aberdeen Angus bull, "Banmere KSF" while the grand champion female Aberdeen Angus was shown by LSU and dubbed "Miss Burgess of LSU No. 17."

Statement Says Engineer Side Not Being Met

RUSTON (Special) — Although the demand for engineering graduates is greatly increasing, the supply of bachelor graduates in that field is not being met, it is summarized in a statement prepared by the American Society for Engineering Education, a copy of which has been received here by Dean Ben T. Bogard of the School of Engineering at Louisiana Tech.

The report is based on a survey of 166 institutions with curricula accredited by the Engineers' Council for Professional Development, with which Tech is affiliated.

The number of engineering freshmen, as well as the total undergraduate enrollment throughout the country, began to decline in the fall of 1958, according to the survey.

"The number of bachelor's degrees in engineering awarded in 1961-62 was 30,326, or a 4.9 per cent drop," the report states. "The number was 31,901 for the 12-month period ending June 30, 1961.

"This was the third consecutive decline and represents a total drop of 10 per cent from the previous peak of 33,695 in 1958-59. These declines have been a virtually inevitable result of the declines in engineering enrollments at the undergraduate level."

Gunshot Is Fatal To Elderly Man Near Livingston

DENHAM SPRINGS, La. (AP)—William L. Fletcher, 71, was shot to death, apparently in a gun fight, south of Livingston Saturday.

There were no clues to the slayer.

Dr. Edwin Walker, Livingston Parish coroner, said the death was caused by "unknown person or persons."

The time of the slaying was placed at about 12:30 p.m., but it was not reported to authorities until later in the afternoon.

Fletcher's weapon had been found, indicating that a gunfight had taken place.

One Victim Of Hammer Beating Dies

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—Carol Annette Clayton, 18, one of two girls bludgeoned with a hammer two days, ago, died today.

She received multiple skull fractures and brain injuries when beaten over the head with a hammer wielded by Rex Hintze, 17, of Salt Lake City.

Hintze, who had been free on $5,000 bail, admitted striking the girls with a hammer when he became enraged. He told Tooele County Sheriff Fay Gillette the girls wouldn't help him get his car free from being stuck on the western Utah desert, so he chased them with a hammer and beat them over the head.

The youth was picked up by Salt Lake County sheriff's deputies here today on the request of the Tooele County sheriff.

The second girl, Brinda Jane Atnes, 18, was still in serious condition.

The beatings occurred in a remote area adjacent to the Great Salt Lake. After the girls were beaten, another youth, Tony Robertson, 19, also of Salt Lake City, ran and walked 14 miles across the desert to summon help.

Tooele County attorney Gordon Hall said a new charge of murder would be filed against Hintze.

The two girls were found by officers half-buried under weeds and rubbish. Hintze was captured not far away as he tried to free his car.

Show Highlights Of '62 Recalled

DELHI (Special) — Approximately 365 animals were shown by junior exhibitors in last year's Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show here.

Basil Doles, superintendent of the junior division, said he was pleased with last year's activities and termed the sales results "pretty good."

Livestock raised by area youngsters sold for a total of $21 - million.

Exhibiting the champion steer at the show last year was Blondelle Surles of East Carroll Parish.

The reserve champion steer was exhibited by Donnie Wade of Union Parish.

Myles Hopkins of Tensas Parish showed the champion lamb and the reserve championship went to an animal exhibited by Mon Doyle of Tensas Parish.

The champion pig was shown by Mary Beth Roberts of Union Parish while Henry Butler of Morehouse Parish had the reserve champion.

The champion stallion in the junior quarterhorse division was shown by Larry Russell, Franklin Parish. Reserve champion stallion, went to Dick Shepherd of East Carroll; champion mare, Shonnye Russell, Franklin Parish; reserve champion mare, John Parks, Richland Parish.

Champion of the champions trophy was awarded Shonney Russell of Richland.

Total junior lifestock division entries totaled approximately 368, with 123 head of swine, 127 sheep, 73 steers and many dairy calves.

Division superintendent Basil Doyles noted that there were more entries in the sheep show last year than there had been for the past couple of years. He termed it a good quality show.

He added that the sheep showed "better breeding class than previous shows."

Holstein quality was "very good in the dairy show," according to Doyles. He said many people had exhibited in the show last year that had not shown animals here before. Among those, he said, was a group from Tensas Parish which previously had not shown dairy cattle here.

According to A. D. Fitzgerald, swine specialist with the LSU Extension Service, number of animals was down in the swine division, however, the "top hogs were better." Fitzgerald was a judge in the swine division.

He said exhibitors last year did a better job in selecting feeding and managing of their animals.

As for the steer division, Doyles said "The overall quality" was better than in the last two years. sion last year, and the quality of breeding animals has been improving steadily in the last four years.

There were also more entries in the junior quarter horse division last year, and the qualityf showed improvement over previous years, Doyles commented.

In the adult horse show division last year, Capt. Joker, owned by A. A. Day of Jackson, Miss., and ridden by J. D. Tadlock, was named "all around horse" of the show.

The horse placed first in the western pleasure class; third in junior reigning, first in junior cutting and second in jackpot cutting.

SUDAN PERSECUTION

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano said recently that 20 or 25 Roman Catholic priests and nuns currently are in jail in the Sudan awaiting trial or deportation.

The newspaper, in its first comment on religious persecution that reportedly dates back to 1956, said it would be a mistake to think the Catholic Church in the Sudan will die because of the persecution.

Osservatore Romano said 80 priests and nuns have been expelled from the Sudan in the last four months.

Brazil, France Having Feud Over Lobsters

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—The Brazilian navy canceled pre-Lenten carnival leaves of hundreds of officers and men Saturday and ordered them to report to their ships immediately. Brazilian tempers were rising in a dispute involving French harvesting of lobsters crawling the Atlantic floor off Brazil's northeast coast.

The order cancelling leaves came after Foreign Minister Hermes Lima conferred with military chiefs in Rio de Janeiro. All elements of the Brazilian fleet were reported being readied to sail at a moments notice.

France has sent a warship to protect French lobster boats operating off northeast Brazil. The Brazilians say the French are encroaching on Brazilian lobster grounds but the French insist the Lobsters being caught are far outside Brazilian territorial waters. The Brazilian navy has threatened to arrest the French lobstermen.

Earlier, the Brazilian Foreign Ministry had reported President Charles de Gaulle of France had agreed to find a peaceful solution to the dispute. This apparently did not soothe Brazilian wrath at the dispatch of the French warship.

One official demanded that the honorary citizenship granted French Consul Marcel Morin in Recife be revoked.

Recife city councilmen demanded Brazil break relations with France.

The newspaper Jornal do Brasil called for cooler heads and appealed to both French and Brazilian appetites.

"This is a problem which must be resolved over a conference table and if this is absolutely impossible since both Brazilian and French gourmets delight in lobster, let's solve it at the dinner table," it said.

A Jornal do Brasil columnist, Pedro Muller, and the afternoon newspaper Tribuna da Imprensa claimed the French weren't fishing for lobsters at all but stealing radioactive sand from the beaches of northeast Brazil. The sand has a high monazite content which produces thorium, used in making atomic bombs. Both Muller and the newspaper noted France is making atomic bombs.

They quoted a Brazilian admiral, Jose Luis da Silva Junior, as telling the government that the French lobstermen had hauled away large quantities of the sand. A Foreign Ministry spokesman said he hadn't heard of such a thing. The Navy Ministry was closed and the admiral was away for the pre-Lenten carnival holiday.

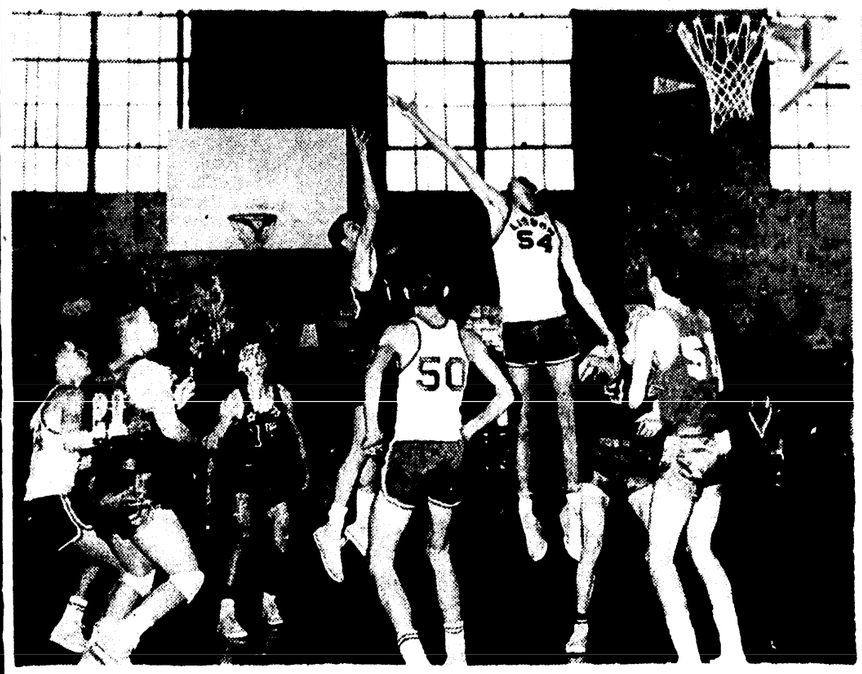
Lisbon Captures Class C Regionals

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Indians Break Century Mark With Victory Over Springhill



JAMES RICH of Lisbon (54) controls the tip against Marion's Bennett Taylor in a Saturday afternoon semi-final game in the Class-C regional meet. Lisbon won the contest, 68-53, and went on to cop the tourney title by whipping Sikes, 71-50. Lisbon players are Mike Collins (at left with glasses on), and Ronnie Suggs (50). Players for Marion are Gary Taylor (21), Don Reeves (15), Elton Pardue (with 4 showing) and Bobby Reagan (51). (Staff photo by Ben Bradford)

Gamble Gets 28 To Pace 103-88 Win

Northeast State set a school field goal record and cleared 100 points for the first time this season in rolling to an easy 103-88 triumph over Spring Hill last night.

The Indians scored 41 field goals in winning their 14th game in 25 starts, breaking the record of 39 they set earlier this season against William Carey.

Ironically, Coach Lenny Fant was not present for the game. He was also absent when the Indians played William Carey. Manager Lanny Johnson guided the team last night in the absence of Fant, ill with flu.

The smallest man on the court — 5-7 Irby Gamble — scored 28 points to spark Northeast to the runaway victory. Reserves played most of the last 10 minutes as Johnson used 14 players, 11 of whom scored.

Little-used Albert Krause and Billy Brooks shoved the Indians over the 100 mark. Krause made all three of his field goal tries to push the Tribe near the century mark and Brooks notched the 100th point with a charity toss with 33 seconds remaining. He added another free throw and 18 seconds later Krause hit a pair from the free line to make it 103.

The 103 points was the second highest total in Northeast history. The 1954-55 club set the standard of 104 against Arkansas State.

Milton Linder and Jimmy Walker trailed Gamble in Northeast scoring with 14 points each. Stuart Toms, who scored 75 points in the Tribe's previous two games, was cold from the field but ended the evening with 11 points.

Sub Tom Bick was high for Spring Hill, which dropped to 8-12 for the campaign. He scored 20 points while Tom Lawrence had 17 and three other Badgers cleared 10.

The Indians were ahead most of the way. They took the lead for good on Robert Cook's fielder with 15:45 left in the first stanza, had a 51-33 advantage at intermission and led by as many as 29 points in the second half.

The game was interrupted by frequent fouls and four players, three of them Indians, were sent to an early shower with five personals. Cook and Spring Hill's John Heath were the first to go, being banished for fighting with 17:26 left in the contest.

Northeast appeared headed for a new scoring record as it had 75 points on the scoreboard with 12:05 left in the game. Substitutes entered the game shortly, however, and the pace slackened until Krause came in late in the contest.

Sparked by Albert's three baskets, the Indians galloped toward 100 in the last two minutes and Brooks' free shot that made it a century brought a big cheer from the crowd.

Krause ended the evening with eight points and Brooks had six. Larry Butler and Lawson Searingen were two other non-starters who sparkled. Butler getting six points and as many rebounds while the 6-6 Swearingen made both his field goal attempts and collared six rebounds.

Gamble, however, was easily the evening's top star. The little fellow from Marthaville made over half his fielders, 13 of 25, and sank two of three charity pitches

Beats Sikes 71-50; Enterprise Victor

By KEITH PRINCE
World Sports Writer

Lisbon's mighty Eagles and Enterprise's well-balanced sextet turned close games into near routs Saturday night at the Ouachita junior high school gymnasium and coasted to championships in the Class C regional cage tournament.

The Eagles turned back a first quarter spree by hustling Sikes points Libson led 31-23 with 2:16 and went on to race by the 6-C left in the half. champs, 71-50, after Enterprise Connie Rolen hit a jumper with had ridden the foul shooting of 1:25 left and Tommy Thompson Doujuana Lewis to victory over connected with 25 seconds left but Marion, 53-36, in the first bout. in between Grady Saulters cram-

Although the two division titles will reap most of the glory for their play in Monroe this weekend, the second place winners have plenty to cheer about also since both first and second place teams advance in the state playoffs.

Coach Grady Saulters' Lisbon five came to town with a big record (30-3) and a big reputation earlier this week and after two games everyone who has seen them play knows why.

The Eagles won their semi-final tilt Saturday afternoon over Marion going away, 68-53, and came back to repeat the chore against Sikes that night.

Sikes, which plays a steady type ball under the guidance of coach Don Moffet, gave Lisbon fans an early scare in the final contest, but was out outmanned and the tide soon turned.

During the initial period, Sikes ripped Lisbon's defense apart with Connie and Ronnie Rolen hitting fro moutside and built up a 19-11 lead.

Lisbon hung on with the shooting of Grady Saulters, who led all tourney scorers with his two game total of 57.

Then in the second quarter the Lisbon club began rolling with a torrid fast break attack and soon captured a lead which it never relinquished.

With only 12 seconds gone in the quarter Jerry Tolbert hit two free shots for Sikes to give his team a ten point lead, 21 - 11. But from here Lisbon racked up 12 points while Sikes was getting only one.

At 4:40 Lisbon got the lead on 23-22, an easy shot by Mike Collins who got open under the basket and took a pass from Saulters.

Connie Rolen tied it up with a free toss, 23-23, at 4:03 but Lisbon could be stalled no longer.

After Ronnie Suggs and James Robert Rich each hit four quick med in two jump shots to give Lisbon a 35 - 27 halftime lead.

The second half was all Lisbon as the Eagles followed the leadership and point production of Saulters to record the win.

Saulters hit eight points in the quarter with each coming on a well - executed shot. Rich, who hit 23 points during the game, chipped in four during the frame.

Norris Curry got all six of his points in the third for Sikes and Connie Rollen hit three free throws for most of the losers' 13 points in the quarter.

The lead rocked around 10 points most of the period although Lisbon led by 14 a couple of times.

Going into the last quarter Lisbon led, 52-40, and scored 19 points to Sikes' 10 to make it a runaway in the period.

Coach Saulters, seeing that things might get out of hand in the first half, had his Eagles begin pressing Sikes full court in the second quarter. This set up several steals for Lisbon and also kept Sikes from having an opportunity to run its patterns slowly and deliberately as the Winn Parish crew prefer to do.

Saulters finished the night with 29 points to again take top scoring honors. Connie Rolen and Thompson each hit 12 to lead Sikes and Ronnie Rolen came up with 11.

If a most valuable player for the meet had been chosen it would probably have gone to Saulters, one of two repeaters from last year's all - regional team. But the voting would undoubtedly have been very close. Because the Rolen twins, who won the hearts of almost all the fans, would have definitely been a close second.

Ronnie was the other repeater from last year's all-star club and he was at his best again this year. He and Connie were just about identical in play as well as looks in the meet. Connie finished with 49 points for three games and Ronnie had 48.

ALL-REGIONAL TEAM
BOYS

Walter Hays — Athens, Ronnie Rolen — Sikes, Connie Rolen — Sikes, H. C. Lewis — Enterprise, Bennett Taylor — Marion, Bobby Reagon — Marion, Chris Rhodes — Monterey, LeRoy Counts — Start, James Rich — Lisbon, Grady Saulters — Lisbon.

Girls

Forwards — Wanda Brasher — Marion, Doujuana Lewis — Enterprise, Marlene Cassels — Enterprise, Pat Pace — Ogden, Hazel Hudson — Georgetown, Pat Sayers — Summerfield.

Guards — Wilda Brasher — Marion, Freddie McCormack — Enterprise, Margie Adams — Ogden, Judy Lee — Summerfield, Lynette Prudhome — Enterprise, Jan Crowe — Marion.

GIRLS CHAMPIONSHIP

Enterprise once again showed a balanced attack to win its championship. Lewis fired in 18 of 22 free throw attempts to spark the victory and finished the night with 26 points.

Enterprise was ahead by only three, 11-8, after one quarter and could not up it any before the half as both teams got red hot and fired in 17 points apiece in the second frame.

It was the best quarter of the contest from the fans standpoint and they ate up the action.

In the third quarter, Enterprise began to pull away, scoring 13 points to Marion's eight. And the fourth sewed it up as the powerful Indians scored 12 tallies while Marion got only three.

Enterprise began holding the ball in the fourth quarter and as Marion had to try desperately to get the ball the foul began to mount up — and so did Doujuana Lewis' point total.

Marion's tremendous Wanda Brasher hit 27 points for the losers but was not actually up to par. She missed on several shots in the final quarter, but did hit on 9 of 11 free throw attempts.

Geraldine McVay was second to Lewis in the scoring department for Enterprise with 16 points. She was followed by Marlene Cassels who got 11. This accounted for all of the Enterprise scoring.

Lisbon, Sikes In Early Wins

By KEITH PRINCE
World Sports Writer

In Saturday's semi-final action both girls teams which advanced, Marion and Enterprise, simply outclassed their opponents, but the boys from Lisbon and Sikes had some trying moments before gaining their victories.

Lisbon actually got control of its contest early in the third quarter and then sailed by Marion, 68-53, in the remaining time. But Sikes looked like an easy winner during the initial half then nearly fell apart at the seams in the last two quarters before bouncing back behind guard Connie Rolen to win, 63-52, over Monterey.

Enterprise's girls got another balanced scoring effort to topple Summerfield, 45-21, in the opener Saturday and Marion again relied on the heavy bombardment of talented Wanda Brasher, who ripped in 38, to stop Lisbon, 53-29.

LISBON — MARION

Lisbon's Grady Saulters, although weak from sickness, upheld his heralded reputation against Marion as he fired in 28 points to carry the Eagles' offensive load.

Saulters had to rest some in every quarter but still looked A-OK on the court. The 6-2 sharpshooter drilled the nets with 13 field goals on an assortment of shots. He showed fine speed when driving and a deadly accuracy on his jumpers.

Big James Robert Rich and forward Mike Collins also hit in double figures for Lisbon, both collecting 12 points.

Elton Pardue paced Marion with 16 points and played a fine all-around game. He was followed by Bobby Reagan with 14 and Bennett Taylor who got 10. Taylor was the big gun Thursday against Enterprise when he shot in 35.

Marion fought on even terms with Lisbon most of the first half and trailed only four points, 17-13, after the opening frame and at halftime, 29-25.

The turning point of the game actually came in the first minute of the third quarter as Grady Saulters hit two quick fielders and Rich connected on a tip-in to push Lisbon out front ten points, 35-25. This seemed to stun Marion and the Panthers never recovered.

By the time the quarter ended the Eagles were sailing along, 48-34.

In the fourth quarter, Grady Saulters hit six more points and younger brother, Larry, hit four for the Eagles. Collins also netted six points for Lisbon in the frame with two of his goals coming on long jump shots from the right side.

Pardue scored six points for Marion before going out late in the contest with a badly sprained ankle.

SIKES — MONTEREY

Sikes made it two crowd-pleasers in a row Saturday afternoon with its semi-final win. The scrappy team paced by the look-alike, play-alike Rolen twins were again involved in one of those fast quarter victories.

Connie Rolen was definitely the difference against Monterey. The quick cager scored 23 points against the Wolves while brother Ronnie, who was high point Thursday with 24, had to sit out part of the second quarter and almost all of the last half with four fouls. Ronnie did manage to score 11 points in the first half to share second place scoring honors with Jerry Tolbert.

Johnny Thompson came up with another fine game and 10 points to aid the Eagles' cause.

After leading 37-28 at halftime, the second half nearly turned into a nightmare for Sikes as Monterey kept picking away and cut the lead to 43-39 going into the final frame.

In the fourth, Monterey tied things up, 47-47, with 5:00 to play when Roddie Crouch hit a jumper. Then with 3:25 to go Crouch hit again and Monterey led for the first time since early in the opening period, 50-49.

Gene Tiffe upped the lead to 52-49 with 2:20 to go but then Connie Rolen took over and led Sikes out of the wilderness.

To explain briefly: Rolen-two free shots with 2:03 to play. Rolen-driving layup with 1:45 to play, and Sikes takes 53-52 lead. Rolen two free shots with 1:35 to play, Sikes 55-52. Rolen two free shots with 1:05 to play, Sikes, 57-52.

And that just about wrapped things up. Tolbert added four more points for Sikes and Thompson got a bucket in the closing seconds on a fast break, but the

West Scores 45 To Lead Tigers' Win

GRAMBLING, La. (AP)—Little All-America candidate Herschell West scored 45 points to lead Grambling College to a 133-91 Southwestern Athletic Conference basketball victory over Southern University Saturday night.

It was a career high for the 6-foot-3 West.

Grambling, third-ranked small college in the nation, built up a 75-51 halftime lead for its 18th consecutive victory over Southern in five years.

Willis Reed, the Tigers' 6-foot-10 pivot man, collected 30 points while Rufus Calhoun got 20. Robert Love's 25 points was high for Southern.

The victory left Grambling with a 23-2 overall mark and a 12-1 conference record. The Tigers have already won the SWAC title. Southern is now 16-10 for the season and 6-7 in SWAC play.

Grambling closes its regular season here Monday night against Jackson State. The Tigers will play Dillard, winner of the Gulf Coast Athletic Conference title, in a best of three series for the right to represent district 6-B in the NAIA tourney at Kansas City.

Grambling won the 1960 NAIA tourney.

Byrd Jackets Top Indians In AAA Playoff

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Byrd High of Shreveport scored a 62-51 district playoff victory over Fair Park Saturday night.

Sydney Boone and Bob Benfield paced Byrd to victory. Boone had 18 points and Benfield scored 10 points and pulled off 21 rebounds.

North Louisiana's leading triple-A scorer, Charles Beasley, led the Fair Park attack with 19 points despite fouling out with 6:29 left in the game.

Byrd will move into a state quarter-final match with the winner of Monday night's Lafayette-St. Aloysius game and Fair Park will travel to New Orleans to play Jesuit. Both games are scheduled for next Friday night.

Wall And Whitt Take Golf Lead

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Art Wall and Don Whitt barged into the third round lead in the Caracas Open Golf Tournament Saturday when George Knudson of Canada blew to a 7-over-par 77.

Wall, of Pocono Manor, Pa., shot a 68 and Whitt, of Borrego Springs, Calif., fired 67's and tied for the lead with 54-hole totals of 205.

WHIP LSU 99-64

Mississippi State Takes Over Lead

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Mississippi State regained sole possession of the Southeastern Conference basketball lead Saturday night as it rolled over Louisiana State 99-64.

The Maroons, ranked eighth nationally, had been tied with Auburn, which fell 78-59 to Kentucky at Lexington.

The Maroons are aiming for their third SEC crown in four years.

Mississippi State jumped to a 57-34 intermission advantage as the Maroons shooters missed only three field goals and one charity shot in the first half.

The Maroons lost Doug Hutton with a sprained ankle in the opening minutes of the second half, but his absence was barely noticed as coach Babe McCarthy emptied his bench.

W. D. Stroud, the Maroons' playmaker, led scoring with 21 points while Joe Dan Gold added 17 and Leland Mitchell 15.

LSU's 6-foot-7 Maury Drummond collected 18 points.

The victory gave the Maroons a 10-2 SEC slate and pushed their season mark to 18-5. LSU is now 11-11 for the season and 4-8 in conference play.

DECISION BOOED

Dick Tiger Keeps Crown After Bloody Draw With Gene Fullmer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Dick Tiger and Gene Fullmer went 15 blood-drenched rounds to a draw Saturday night as Tiger, the Nigerian stalker, retained his world middleweight boxing championship.

In a decision wildly booed by a sellout crowd of 8,000 in the Las Vegas convention center, referee Vern Bybee voted it 69-69; Judge Pat Diskin had it 71-67 for Tiger and Judge John Romero had it 70-68 for Fullmer.

Fullmer, turned fancy dan and darting in and out to land a single blow at a time, piled up an early lead. But Tiger, stalking his prey all over the ring, finally caught up in the final two rounds to earn the draw on Bybee's card.

Both camps thought they had Both champs thought they had Press International scored it 70-66 for Fullmer.

It was a heart-breaking decision for Fullmer, the Mormon elder from West Jordan, Utah, who had announced he would retire unless he won. However, he may reconsider in view of the draw.

Tiger, obviously befuddled by the hit-and-run tactics of Fullmer, finally restored to bull-like rushes that drew boos from the crowd. Once Tiger wrestled Fullmer to the floor, another time he picked him up and hung him on his shoulder.

There were no knockdowns, although Fullmer slipped or was pushed to the floor three times.

The blood started flowing early in this one, and in the third round, Fullmer was bleeding from his left eye.

By the middle of the fight, the crimson flowed from his nose, head and ear. Tiger bled profusely from a cut near his left eye.

Fullmer had saved his title twice on draws, with Sugar Ray Robinson and Joe Giardello, so the law of averages just caught up with him.

Fullmer, using entirely different tactics from those he took such a beating with when he lost the crown on a unanimous decision to Tiger in San Francisco five months ago, got off to a fast start.

By JACK STEVENSON

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — 'I thought I won the fight," world middleweight champion Dick Tiger of Nigeria declared Saturday night after retaining his crown by the narrow margin of a draw with challenger Gene Fullmer.

"Still,' the 33-year-old Nigerian added quickly, "at the same time I'm sorry about the draw, I'm glad he didn't take the title away from me.'

Tiger was unhappy with the style Fullmer used as Gene boxed more at long range than he did in their first meeting Oct. 23 in San Francisco when the Nigerian beat Fullmer for the championship.

"I thought he was going to fight harder, like he did in San Francisco. There he was fighting from the first round. Here he was backing away. I felt I was the champion and he should be coming to me."

Jersey Jones, the U.S. representative for Tiger, said a rematch with the West Jordan, Utah, fighter now becomes the first order of business. And Los Angeles matchmaker George Parnassus immediately offered a $150,000 total purse for a rematch at the Los Angeles Coliseum in June.

Jones said Tiger didn't fight his usual fight Saturday night, adding, "the last two rounds I told him to get out and get him or you'll blow the title."

By WILLIAM OLCOTT

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "I'd hate to quit on a draw," said a disappointed Gene Fullmer after fighting 15 bruising rounds with middleweight champion Dick Tiger.

Fullmer's manager, Marv Jenson, blamed himself for Gene's defeat. "I thought he had the fight won so before the 14th round I told him to stay away; he couldn't lose."

"I want to give it sonemore whirl," added Fullmer, whose face bore four cuts. One was high on the head, one over the left-eye, a third on the lip and another on the cheek.

Gene was obviously disappointed. "I should have won. If I thought I was losing I would have put on more fight in the last two rounds."

Fullmer said his fight plan went perfectly. "Everything went according to plan, except the winning."

The 31-year-old challenger from West Jordan, Utah, ducked in and out on Tiger and then circled him throughout the fight.

"He was as strong this time as last but I fought him differently this time," said Gene. "We bumped heads a couple of times but he didn't hurt me at any time, not even in the 15th."

Clothed in his fight robe, his legs hanging over a table, the challenger said, "I'd like to fight him again."

The brawling former champion said he was better conditioned for the rematch. "I was much stronger this time," he said.

"In a draw we both lose," he said.

His wife, Dolores, sat quietly in a corner of the dressing room. Gene had said he would quit if he lost because his wife wanted it that way.

"I didn't see the fight, but everybody says he fought well. As far as retiring, I'll leave that up to Gene," she said.

Tulane Fights Off Ole Miss For 95-93 Win

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Bob Davidson scored 34 points to help Tulane withstand a late Mississippi rally and beat the Rebels 95-93 Saturday night in Southeastern Conference basketball.

Davidson made 15 attempts from the field and converted on all four of his tosses from the free throw line. He missed only 6 shots from the field.

Tulane held a 45-43 advantage at the end of the first half and steadily pulled away to a 13-point lead with 12:53 left in the final period.

Lisbon Captures Class C Regionals

Indians Break Century Mark With Victory Over Springhill

JAMES RICH of Lisbon (54) controls the tip against Marion's Bennett Taylor in a Saturday afternoon semi-final game in the Class-C regional meet. Lisbon won the contest, 68-53, and went on to cop the tourney title by whipping Sikes, 71-50. Lisbon players are Mike Collins (at left with glasses on), and Ronnie Suggs (50). Players for Marion are Gary Taylor (21), Don Reeves (15), Elton Pardue (with 4 showing) and Bobby Reagan (51). (Staff photo by Ben Bradford)

Gamble Gets 28 To Pace 103-88 Win

Northeast State set a school field goal record and cleared 100 points for the first time this season in rolling to an easy 103-88 triumph over Spring Hill last night.

The Indians scored 41 field goals in winning their 14th game in 25 starts, breaking the record of 39 they set earlier this season against William Carey.

Ironically, Coach Lenny Fant was not present for the game. He was also absent when the Indians played William Carey. Manager Lanny Johnson guided the team last night in the absence of Fant, ill with flu.

The smallest man on the court — 5-7 Irby Gamble — scored 28 points to spark Northeast to the runaway victory. Reserves played most of the last 10 minutes as Johnson used 14 players, 11 of whom scored.

Little-used Albert Kruase and Billy Brooks shoved the Indians over the 100 mark. Krause made all three of his field goal tries to push the Tribe near the century mark and Brooks notched the 100th point with a charity toss with 33 seconds remaining. He added another free throw and 18 seconds later Krause hit a pair from the free line to make it 103.

The 103 points was the second highest total in Northeast history. The 1954-55 club set the standard of 104 against Arkansas State.

Milton Linder and Jimmy Walker trailed Gamble in Northeast scoring with 14 points each. Stuart Toms, who scored 75 points in the Tribe's previous two games, was cold from the field but ended the evening with 11 points.

Sub Tom Bick was high for Spring Hill, which dropped to 8-12 for the campaign. He scored 20 points while Tom Lawrence had 17 and three other Badgers cleared 10.

The Indians were ahead most of the way. They took the lead for good on Robert Cook's fielder with 15:45 left in the first stanza, had a 51-33 advantage at intermission and led by as many as 29 points in the second half.

The game was interrupted by frequent fouls and four players, three of them Indians, were sent to an early shower with five personals. Cook and Spring Hill's John Heath were the first to go, being banished for fighting with 17:26 left in the contest.

Northeast appeared headed for a new scoring record as it had 75 points on the scoreboard with 12:05 left in the game. Substitutes entered the game shortly, however, and the pace slackened until Krause came in late in the contest.

Sparked by Albert's three baskets, the Indians galloped toward 100 in the last two minutes and Brooks' free shot that made it a century brought a big cheer from the crowd.

Krause ended the evening with eight points and Brooks had six. Larry Butler and Lawson Searingen were two other non-starters who sparkled. Butler getting six points and as many rebounds while the 6-6 Swearingen made both his field goal attempts and collared six rebounds.

Gamble, however, was easily the evening's top star. The little fellow from Marthaville made over half his fielders, 13 of 25, and sank two of three charity pitches

Beats Sikes 71-50; Enterprise Victor

By KEITH PRINCE
World Sports Writer

Lisbon's mighty Eagles and Enterprise's well-balanced sextet turned close games into near routs Saturday night at the Ouachita junior high school gymnasium and coasted to championships in the Class C regional cage tournament.

The Eagles turned back a first quarter spree by hustling Sikes and went on to race by the 6-C champs, 71-50, after Enterprise had ridden the foul shooting of Doujuana Lewis to victory over Marion, 53-36, in the first bout.

Although the two division titles will reap most of the glory for their play in Monroe this weekend, the second place winners have plenty to cheer about also since both first and second place teams advance in the state playoffs.

Coach Grady Saulters' Lisbon five came to town with a big record (48-3) and a big reputation earlier this week and after two games everyone who has seen them play knows why.

The Eagles won their semi-final tilt Saturday afternoon over Marion going away, 68-53, and came back to repeat the chore against Sikes that night.

Sikes, which plays a steady type ball under the guidance of coach Don Moffet, gave Lisbon fans an early scare in the final contest, but was out outmanned and the tide soon turned.

During the initial period, Sikes ripped Lisbon's defense apart with Connie and Ronnie Rolen hitting fro moutside and built up a 19-11 lead.

Lisbon hung on with the shooting of Grady Saulters, who led all tourney scorers with his two game total of 57.

Then in the second quarter the Lisbon club began rolling with a torrid fast break attack and soon captured a lead which it never relinquished.

With only 12 seconds gone in the quarter Jerry Tolbert hit two free shots for Sikes to give his team a ten point lead, 21 - 11. But from here Lisbon racked up 12 points while Sikes was getting only one.

At 4:40 Lisbon got the lead on 23-22, an easy shot by Mike Collins who got open under the basket and took a pass from Saulters.

Connie Rolen tied it up with a free toss, 23-23, at 4:03 but Lisbon could be stalled no longer.

After Ronnie Suggs and James Robert Rich each hit four quick points Lisbon led 31-23 with 2:16 left in the half.

Connie Rolen hit a jumper with 1:25 left and Tommy Thompson connected with 25 seconds left but in between Grady Saulters crammed in two jump shots to give Lisbon a 35 - 27 halftime lead.

The second half was all Lisbon as the Eagles followed the leadership and point production of Saulters to record the win.

Saulters hit eight points in the quarter with each coming on a well - executed shot. Rich, who hit 23 points during the game, chipped in four during the frame.

Norris Curry got all six of his points in the third for Sikes and Connie Rollen hit three free throws for most of the losers' 13 points in the quarter.

The lead rocked around 10 points most of the period although Lisbon led by 14 a couple of times.

Going into the last quarter Lisbon led, 52-40, and scored 19 points to Sikes' 10 to make it a runaway in the period.

Coach Saulters, seeing that things might get out of hand in the first half, had his Eagles begin pressing Sikes full court in the second quarter. This set up several steals for Lisbon and also kept Sikes from having an opportunity to run its patterns slowly and deliberately as the Winn Parish crew prefer to do.

Saulters finished the night with 29 points to again take top scoring honors. Connie Rolen and Thompson each hit 12 to lead Sikes and Ronnie Rolen came up with 11.

If a most valuable player for the meet had been chosen it would probably have gone to Saulters, one of two repeaters from last year's all - regional team. But the voting would undoubtedly have been very close. Because the Rolen twins, who won the hearts of almost all the fans, would have definitely been a close second.

Ronnie was the other repeater from last year's all-star club and he was at his best again this year. He and Connie were just about identical in play as well as looks in the meet. Connie finished with 49 points for three games and Ronnie had 48.

GIRLS CHAMPIONSHIP

Enterprise once again showed a balanced attack to win its championship. Lewis fired in 18 of 22 free throw attempts to spark the victory and finished the night with 26 points.

Enterprise was ahead by only three, 11-8, after one quarter and could not up it any before the half as both teams got red hot and fired in 17 points apiece in the second frame.

It was the best quarter of the contest from the fans standpoint and they ate up the action.

In the third quarter, Enterprise began to pull away, scoring 13 points to Marion's eight. And the fourth sewed it up as the powerful Indians scored 12 tallies while Marion got only three.

Enterprise began holding the ball in the fourth quarter and as Marion had to try desperately to get the ball the foul began to mount up — and so did Doujuana Lewis' point total.

Marion's tremendous Wanda Brasher hit 27 points for the losers but was not actually up to par. She missed on several shots in the final quarter, but did hit on 9 of 11 free throw attempts.

Geraldine McVay was second to Lewis in the scoring department for Enterprise with 16 points. She was followed by Marlene Cassels who got 11. This accounted for all of the Enterprise scoring.

Mississippi State Takes Over Lead

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Mississippi State regained sole possession of the Southeastern Conference basketball lead Saturday night as it rolled over Louisiana State 99-64.

The Maroons, ranked eighth nationally, had been tied with Auburn, which fell 78-59 to Kentucky at Lexington.

The Maroons are aiming for their third SEC crown in four years.

Mississippi State jumped to a 57-34 intermission advantage as the Maroons shooters missed only three field goals and one charity shot in the first half.

The Maroons lost Doug Hutton with a sprained ankle in the opening minutes of the second half, but his absence was barely noticed as coach Babe McCarthy emptied his bench.

W. D. Stroud, the Maroons' playmaker, led scoring with 21 points while Joe Dan Gold added 17 and Leland Mitchell 15.

LSU's 6 - foot -7 Maury Drummond collected 18 points.

The victory gave the Maroons a 10-2 SEC slate and pushed their season mark to 18-5. LSU is now 11-11 for the season and 4-8 in conference play.

Lisbon, Sikes In Early Wins

By KEITH PRINCE
World Sports Writer

In Saturday's semi-final action both girls teams which advanced, Marion and Enterprise, simply outclassed their opponents, but the boys from Lisbon and Sikes had some trying moments before gaining their victories.

Lisbon actually got control of its contest early in the third quarter and then sailed by Marion, 68-53, in the remaining time. But Sikes looked like an easy winner during the initial half then nearly fell apart at the seams in the last two quarters before bouncing back behind guard Connie Rolen to win, 63-52, over Monterey.

Enterprise's girls got another balanced scoring effort to topple Summerfield, 45-21, in the opener Saturday and Marion again relied on the heavy bombardment of talented Wanda Brasher, who ripped in 38, to stop Lisbon, 53-29.

LISBON — MARION

Lisbon's Grady Saulters, although weak from sickness, upheld his heralded reputation against Marion as he fired in 28 points to carry the Eagles' offensive load.

Saulters had to rest some in every quarter but still looked A-OK on the court. The 6-2 sharpshooter drilled the nets with 13 field goals on an assortment of shots. He showed fine speed when driving and a deadly accuracy on his jumpers.

Big James Robert Rich and forward Mike Collins also hit in double figures for Lisbon, both collecting 12 points.

Elton Pardue paced Marion with 16 points and played a fine all-around game. He was followed by Bobby Reagan with 14 and Bennett Taylor who got 10. Taylor was the big gun Thursday against Enterprise when he shot in 35.

Marion fought on even terms with Lisbon most of the first half and trailed only four points, 17-13, after the opening frame and at halftime, 29-25.

The turning point of the game actually came in the first minute of the third quarter as Grady Saulters hit two quick fielders and Rich connected on a tip-in to push Lisbon out front ten points, 35-25. This seemed to stun Marion and the Panthers never recovered.

By the time the quarter ended the Eagles were sailing along, 48-34.

In the fourth quarter, Grady Saulters hit six more points and younger brother, Larry, hit four for the Eagles. Collins also netted six points for Lisbon in the frame with two of his goals coming on long jump shots from the right side.

Pardue scored six points for Marion before going out late in the contest with a badly sprained ankle.

SIKES — MONTEREY

Sikes made it two crowd-pleasers in a row Saturday afternoon with its semi-final win. The scrappy team paced by the look-alike, play-alike Rolen twins were again involved in one of those last quarter victories.

Connie Rolen was definitely the difference against Monterey. The quick cager scored 23 points against the Wolves while brother Ronnie, who was high point Thursday with 24, had to sit out part of the second quarter and almost all of the last half with four fouls. Ronnie did manage to score 11 points in the first half to share second place scoring honors with Jerry Tolbert.

Johnny Thompson came up with another fine game and 10 points to aid the Eagles' cause.

After leading 37-28 at halftime, the second half nearly turned into a nightmare for Sikes as Monterey kept picking away and cut the lead to 43-39 going into the final frame.

In the fourth, Monterey tied things up, 47-47, with 5:00 to play when Roddie Crouch hit a jumper. Then with 3:25 to go Crouch hit again and Monterey led for the first time since early in the opening period, 50-49.

Gene Tiffe upped the lead to 52-49 with 2:20 to go but then Connie Rolen took over and led Sikes out of the wilderness.

To explain briefly: Rolen-two free shots with 2:03 to play. Rolen-driving layup with 1:45 to play, and Sikes takes 53-52 lead. Rolen two free shots with 1:35 to play, Sikes 55-52. Rolen two free shots with 1:05 to play, Sikes, 57-52.

And that just about wrapped things up. Tolbert added four more points for Sikes and Thompson got a bucket in the closing seconds on a fast break, but the

West Scores 45 To Lead Tigers' Win

GRAMBLING, La. (AP)—Little All-America candidate Herschell West scored 45 points to lead Grambling College to a 133-91 Southwestern Athletic Conference basketball victory over Southern University Saturday night.

It was a career high for the 6-foot-3 West.

Grambling, third-ranked small college in the nation, built up a 75-51 halftime lead for its 18th consecutive victory over Southern in five years.

Willis Reed, the Tigers' 6-foot-10 pivot man, collected 30 points while Rufus Calhoun got 20. Robert Love's 25 points was high for Southern.

The victory left Grambling with a 23-2 overall mark and a 12-1 conference record. The Tigers have already won the SWAC title. Southern is now 16-10 for the season and 6-7 in SWAC play.

Grambling closes its regular season here Monday night against Jackson State. The Tigers will play Dillard, winner of the Gulf Coast Athletic Conference title, in a best of three series for the right to represent district 6-B in the NAIA tourney at Kansas City.

Grambling won the 1960 NAIA tourney.

Byrd Jackets Top Indians In AAA Playoff

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Byrd High of Shreveport scored a 62-51 district playoff victory over Fair Park Saturday night.

Sydney Boone and Bob Benfield paced Byrd to victory. Boone had 18 points and Benfield scored 10 points and pulled off 21 rebounds.

North Louisiana's leading triple-A scorer, Charles Beasley, led the Fair Park attack with 19 points despite fouling out with 6:29 left in the game.

Byrd will move into a state quarter-final match with the winner of Monday night's Lafayette-St. Aloysius game and Fair Park will travel to New Orleans to play Jesuit. Both games are scheduled for next Friday night.

Wall And Whitt Take Golf Lead

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Art Wall and Don Whitt barged into the third round lead in the Caracas Open Golf Tournament Saturday when George Knudson of Canada blew to a 7-over-par 77.

Wall, of Pocono Manor, Pa., shot a 68 and Whitt, of Borrego Springs, Calif., fired 67's and tied for the lead with 54-hole totals of 205.

Tulane Fights Off Ole Miss For 95-93 Win

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Bob Davidson scored 34 points to help Tulane withstand a late Mississippi rally and beat the Rebels 95-93 Saturday night in Southeastern Conference basketball.

Davidson made 15 attempts from the field and converted on all four of his tosses from the free throw line. He missed only 6 shots from the field.

Tulane held a 45-43 advantage at the end of the first half and steadily pulled away to a 13-point lead with 12:53 left in the final period.

DECISION BOOED

Dick Tiger Keeps Crown After Bloody Draw With Gene Fullmer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Dick Tiger and Gene Fullmer went 15 blood-drenched rounds to a draw Saturday night as Tiger, the Nigerian stalker, retained his world middleweight boxing championship.

In a decision wildly booed by a sellout crowd of 8,000 in the Las Vegas convention center, referee Vern Bybee voted it 69-69; Judge Pat Diskin had it 71-67 for Tiger and Judge John Romero had it 70-68 for Fullmer.

Fullmer, turned fancy dan and darting in and out to land a single blow at a time, piled up an early lead. But Tiger, stalking his prety all over the ring, finally caught up in the final two rounds to earn the draw on Bybee's card.

Both camps thought they had Both champs thought they had Press International scored it 70-66 for Fullmer.

It was a heart-breaking decision for Fullmer, the Mormon elder from West Jordan, Utah, who had announced he would retire unless he won. However, he may reconsider in view of the draw.

Tiger, obviously befuddled by the hit-and-run tactics of Fullmer, finally restored to bull-like rushes that drew boos from the crowd. Once Tiger wrestled Fullmer to the floor, another time he picked him up and hung him on his shoulder.

There were no knockdowns, although Fullmer slipped or was pushed to the floor three times.

The blood started flowing early in this one, and in the third round, Fullmer was bleeding from his left eye.

By the middle of the fight, the crimson flowed from his nose, head and ear. Tiger bled profusely from a cut near his left eye.

Fullmer had saved his title twice on draws, with Sugar Ray Robinson and Joe Giardello, so the law of averages just caught up with him.

Fullmer, using entirely different tactics from those he took such a beating with when he lost the crown on a unanimous decision to Tiger in San Francisco five months ago, got off to a fast start.

By JACK STEVENSON

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "I thought I won the fight," world middleweight champion Dick Tiger of Nigeria declared Saturday night after retaining his crown by the narrow margin of a draw with challenger Gene Fullmer.

"Still,' the 33-year-old Nigerian added quickly, "at the same time I'm sorry about the draw, I'm glad he didn't take the title away from me.'

Tiger was unhappy with the style Fullmer used as Gene boxed more at long range than he did in their first meeting Oct. 23 in San Francisco when the Nigerian beat Fullmer for the championship.

"I thought he was going to fight harder, like he did in San Francisco. There he was fighting from the first round. Here he was backing away. I felt I was the champion and he should be coming to me."

Jersey Jones, the U.S. representative for Tiger, said a rematch with the West Jordan, Utah, fighter now becomes the first order of business. And Los Angeles matchmaker George Parnassus immediately offered a $150,000 total purse for a rematch at the Los Angeles Coliseum in June.

Jones said Tiger didn't fight his usual fight Saturday night, adding, "the last two rounds I told him to get out and get him or you'll blow the title."

By WILLIAM OLCOTT

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "I'd hate to quit on a draw," said a disappointed Gene Fullmer after fighting 15 bruising rounds with middleweight champion Dick Tiger.

Fullmer's manager, Marv Jenson, blamed himself for Gene's defeat. "I thought he had the fight won so before the 14th round I told him to stay away; he couldn't lose."

"I want to give it sonemore whirl," added Fullmer, whose face bore four cuts. One was high on the head, one over the left-eye, a third on the lip and another on the cheek.

Gene was obviously disappointed. "I should have won. If I thought I was losing I would have put on more fight in the last two rounds."

Fullmer said his fight plan went perfectly. "Everything went according to plan, except the winning."

The 31-year-old challenger from West Jordan, Utah, ducked in and out on Tiger and then circled him throughout the fight.

"He was as strong this time as last but I fought him differently this time," said Gene. "We bumped heads a couple of times but he didn't hurt me at any time, not even in the 15th."

Clothed in his fight robe, his legs hanging over a table, the challenger said, "I'd like to fight him again."

The brawling former champion said he was better conditioned for the rematch. "I was much stronger this time," he said.

"In a draw we both lose," he said.

His wife, Dolores, sat quietly in a corner of the dressing room. Gene had said he would quit if he lost because his wife wanted it that way.

"I didn't see the fight, but everybody says he fought well. As far as retiring, I'll leave that up to Gene," she said.

COMIN' UP AFIELD

Deer Survive Tough Winter

With Sam Hanna

Flying The Area

The nose of the Bonanza tilted toward the ground to a scene below that every Louisiana sportsman should have an opportunity to see.

A couple of hundred whitetail deer grazed in a field of oats next to a sprawling swamp not far from the Mississippi River. Even from where we sat, which was several hundred feet in the air, a big buck stood out.

This was the climax of a quick, two-hour trip over parts of Northeast Louisiana. It was a flight with a purpose.

First of all, we wanted to see if Tensas Parish, where an antlerless season was held this year, had any deer left to shoot at next.

And secondly, we hoped to find the deer in good enough shape to survive, because this has been a long, drouth with a shortage of mast in the woods.

Most of the several hundred deer that looked skyward as we flew over were found in Tensas — proof enough that Louisiana's biggest deer herd has not been damaged.

And if the whitetails of the Delta are on the verge of starving to death, then they didn't run on that bright, sunny afternoon like they were sick. Several kept pace with the speedy Bonanza.

What we couldn't see from the air, however, was at least one area in Tensas where deer have starved in this unusually tough winter.

But in general our deer herds are going to make it. Their behavior in the fields as we flew over was normal — coming to the fields to eat just as they do during the season.

However, the flight over the extreme section of Northeast Louisiana unfolded a cruel look at the outdoor picture of this good area.

Fields of saze around Oak Ridge weaving from wooded area to wooded area looked awfully dry, to this quail hunter while the newly developed rice fields at Oak Grove appeared from the area to be the coming attraction for duck hunters.

And if there's one pothole there's a million along the Louisiana edges of the Mississippi River — duck hole after duck hole.

But deer country. You should see the trees, plants from the air. It's no wonder that they're the deer hunter's cage in Louisiana. . . miles of woods cut off from civilization by the big river.

We knew where we were when we saw the house on a tall bluff across the Mississippi. This was the Vicksburg country and as we expected there were deer in the field below. This was where the big buck stood out.

But the most impressive sight of the trip was the Tensas Swamp itself — known today as the Chicago Mills Game Management Area. In size it's probably the largest wooded area left in our district — still dense, still preserving, protecting and producing wildlife.

When it's gone, there'll be some changes made.

This is what we thought as the nose of the Bonanza turned home.

Duck Count Up

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, which sits in the driver's seat in establishing the duck season has stated officially that the waterfowl population in the Mississippi Flyway was above the 10-year average.

At first the service reported that the population figures were below the 10-year average, but quickly retraced the report, explaining that an error was made.

This, however, should conclude the argument in behalf of the duck hunters of the South, proving that the drastic restrictions on duck hunting this past season were unfair.

Director L. D. Young, who took issue with the service after its first report, pointed out that Louisiana's waterfowl figures, although high, would have been even greater had it not been for the drouth.

While the service now admits that ducks in this area are on the increase, hunters should be aware of a reported move undertoot in Canada to close the season.

This is important because already the duck hunter is wondering about what will happen this summer when the federal government gets around to setting the season.

Some hunters whom we have talked to believe that the season will be closed next year despite this year's increase.

About the only advise that we have for duck hunters is letter writing — to state officials, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and to the Congress.

The pulse of the people is important in any issue and it certainly will be considered before the season for next year is set.

Quail Season Ends

Monday is the last day of the quail season.

And of course this means that only the turkey season remains between now and the opening of the dove season next September, which is too far off for sportsmen.

This has been a tough quail season in general. Even the good bird hunters have complained about having trouble finding the birds.

But we don't expect the conditions to change any, so bird hunters will have to adjust to the circumstances or quit hunting quail.

Meantime, the turkey season will be Louisiana's longest — from April 6 to April 21. Turkeys are on the increase, especially in the Delta swamps and in parts of Morehouse and Union.

This is the most challenging of all hunts where skill is a bigger factor than luck. Turkey hunters would do well to get out before the season and locate the flocks.

Ex-Gridder Signs

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The signed contract of second baseman Bernie Allen was received Saturday by Minnesota Twins President Calvin Griffith, who said the former Purdue quarterback received a substantial salary hike.

Al Butts, 20-year-old junior from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., will captain the 1963 Columbia football team. Butts will also captain the Lion baseball team.

Training Camp Briefs

Phillies Start

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies began spring baseball training Saturday with 21 pitchers and five catchers participating.

After a few wind sprints and some ball tossing, the players got in some batting practice.

Pfister Back

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Dan Pfister, a hard-luck pitcher in the 1962 season, has returned his signed contract to the Kansas City Athletics.

The Hollywood, Fla., right-hander, finished the season with a 4-14 record, but many of his losses were in tight games.

"The new strike zone could really help Pfister," General Manager Pat Friday said. "He has a fine fast ball. We believe that Pfister will have a winning season in 1963."

Reds Sign Two

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Second Baseman Don Blasingame and outfielder Jerry Lynch came to terms with the Cincinnati Reds Saturday, leaving only pitcher Jim Brosnan and catcher Jesse Gonder unsigned among the regulars.

No Changes

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The appearance of Del Crandall at first base in the Milwaukee Braves' workout Saturday raised speculation that a shift might be in order for the veteran catcher, but Manager Bobby Bragan said this was not the case.

"I don't have any plans for Del anywhere but behind the plate," Bragan said. "I know he can play first base, but I dont anticipate that he will."

Chance TV Hit

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Dean Chance was the hit of the Los Angeles Angels' closed circuit television show Saturday as he pitched batting practice with World Series fervor.

Although he's supposed to be sharpening the hitters' eyes, Chance hasn't been much help with the mid-season stuff he's throwing in camp.

Tigers Win

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — The Detroit Tigers pounded out 15 hits with Jake Wood collecting four and defeated Japan's Hanshin Tigers 7-2 Saturday.

Wood, only major league veteran playing on the Detroit squad consisting mainly of rookies and minor leaguers, slammed two singles, a double and a triple in a perfect day at bat.

Three Holdouts

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) —Three holdouts and three other athletes were missing Saturday as Johnny Keane, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, sent his batterymen through the first spring training workout at Al Lang field.

The three unsigned players are pitchers Bob Duliba, and Ed Auta and catcher Cark Sawatski.

Houk Warns Yanks

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) —Manager Ralph Houk delivered a stern warning to his world champion New York Yankees not to stand in front of the batting cage at spring training camp.

Houk was standing behind the cage Saturday and became engrossed in the efforts of a young pitcher. He leaned in front of the batting cage to get a better look.

A sharply hit foul ball hit him right on the bridge of the nose. He suffered a small cut and embarrassment.

Skeleton Squad

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — A skeleton squad of 12 men reported to Manager Ed Lopat Saturday as spring training opened for the Kansas City Athletics batterymen.

Takes Pay Cut

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Outfielder Jim Landis agreed to terms Saturday, taking a slight pay cut for 1963 with the Chicago White Sox.

The club now has only two unsigned players, outfielder Floyd Robinson and pitcher Juan Pizarro.

Bunting Drill

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (AP)—Manager Alvin Dark showed his San Francisco Giant pitchers Saturday how to bunt while protecting their valuable pitching hands.

Obviously, the manager of the National League champions had in mind the 1962 World Series' game in which pitcher Juan Marichal was hit on his index finger while trying to bunt.

Go Home

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) —"We're going to have to learn to get past third base," Manager Casey Stengel told his New York Mets Saturday.

Stengel told the team's battery men, plus the early regulars, that he plans to work hard this spring on offense.

"It is only 90 feet between bases," the old manager said. "Last year, we played like it was 180 feet from third to home. We got to get more runs."

Stars Due In

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris, the Yankees two top money makers who are the only unsigned players on the team, are due early next week to talk contract, Yankee officials said Saturday.

There seems little doubt that they will come to terms.

Workout

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP)—Pitchers and catchers held an abbreviated 3-hour workout at the Pittsburgh Pirates training camp Saturday, then took the rest of the day off to rest sore muscles.

Veteran pitcher Bob Friend, who has been confined to bed with a slight case of flu, was at the park but did not work out.

Hiding Lesson

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Steve Barber got special instruction Saturday on throwing the curve and concealing his pitches at the third spring training session for Baltimore batterymen.

Ray Scarborough, one-time American League curve ball specialist and now an Oriole coach and minor league pitching instructor, tutored Barber.

Wynn Tongue Sharp

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Early Wynn, around the majors 26 seasons man and boy and now trying a pitching "comeback" at 43, had a typically tart comment Saturday on baseball's new expanded strike zone.

"If I make it this season," said Wynn, who has no Chicago White Sox contract, "I'll have to see whether those umpires know there is a new rule and will enforce it.

Bearcats Rally Catches Tulsa In Last Minutes

CINCINNATI (AP)—The top-ranked Cincinnati Bearcats came from 11 points behind in the last 8 minutes Saturday night and beat Tulsa 55-54 in a Missouri Valley Conference game.

Coach Ed Jucker's strategy of using three guards in the closing minutes and alternating sophomores Ken Cunningham and Fritz Meyer did the trick.

Cunningham scored six of the Bearcats' last 18 points and tied the score with a 20-foot jump shot with 2:23 to go. George Wilson's free throw provided the winning edge 40 seconds later.

South African Leads Tourney In Singapore

SINGAPORE (AP) — Alan Brookes of South Africa moved past Tomoo Ishii of Japan, leader after each of the first two rounds to grab the top after 54 holes of the $11,300 Singapore Open Golf Tournament Saturday with a total of 212.

Brookes, who set a course record of 6-under par 67 Friday—erasing the new standard of 68 posted by Ishii Thursday—had a third round 2. Ishii slipped to 75 for a 213.

Brown Fights British Champ

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — Joe Brown, former world lightweight champion, renews his riweight champions, renews his rivalry with British champion Dave Charnley on Monday.

Brown of Baton Rouge, La., twice put his title on the line against Charnley and won both times. The 37-year-old "Old Bones" knocked out Charnley in the sixth round in Houston, Tex., Dec. 2, 1959, and then outpointed him in London over 15 rounds April 18, 1961.

Butts Resigns

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Wallace Butts, athletic director at the University of Georgia, stepped down Saturday after 24 years with the Georgia Bulldogs.

Stewart And Pott Tied In Golf Tourney

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (AP) — Earl Stewart and Johnny Pott each fired a 6-under-par 66 Saturday in the first round of the $7,000 Little Tournament of Champions to grab an early and strong lead.

Stewart, of Dallas, Tex., toured the 6,612-yard, par 72-72—144 Panama Country Club course in 33-33, closing out his round with an eagle to gain the tie. Pott's card read 34-32. He is from Shreveport, La.

Defending champion Dave Ragan got off to a stumbling start with a 4-35—73 to place him 12th in the field of 15.

Two Twin-Cities Teams Capture First In Meet

Two Twin-Cities teams won division championships in the district 2 Baptist basketball tourney played at the Benoit recreation center Saturday.

Harry Crowe scored 22 points to pace the First Baptist Church of Monroe to a 63-47 win over Emmanuel Baptist church of Alexandria in the men's division finals. Kenne has 13 for the losers.

In the 17-year old division, Trinity of West Monroe defeated College Place Baptist Church of Monroe 41-31 behind the 25-point scoring of Rogers. Howell scored 29 for the losers.

Columbia Heights won the 14-year old division by defeating First Baptist Church of West Monroe 34-20. Darden scored 12 for the winners and Adcock 12 for the losers.

Winners will advance to the state tournament in Pineville next week.

Jackets Win In Overtime

ATLANTA (AP)—Senior Keith Weekly scored eight points in an overtime period Saturday night to lead Georgia Tech to a 66-58 Southeastern Conference basketball victory over the Georgia Bulldogs.

Scouts Find Grambling Fine Hunting Place

GRAMBLING, La. (AP) — Professional scouts are finding a happy hunting ground at this state-supported Negro college in Northern Louisiana.

The combination of tall, fast and deadeye basketball players and strong, hefty and tough football players is drawing the scouts from the professional teams in droves.

"You meet them everywhere but in the classroom," says Hershell West, a member of Grambling's national ranked basketball team.

West, Rufus Calhoun and Willis Reed are the sparkplugs of a Grambling team that as been near the top of the small college ratings all season. And they're the targets of the pro scouts.

The onslaught of the scouts actually started last December when a crowd of football players—swift backs and ends and giant interior linemen—became eligible for professional consideration.

The football team marked up only a 6-2-2 record against Negro teams in the South and Southwest. But its lineup contained a full share of players with physical attributes sure to attract the pro scouts—size in the line and speed on the ends and in the backfield.

Junious Buchanan, a 6-foot-7, 272-pound tackle, headed the list.

He was the first draft choice in the American Football League, and signed with the Dallas Texans.

By the time the signing festival came to an end, eight members of the 1962 football team had signed with AFL or National Football League teams.

Crozier Takes Santa Anita Handicap Win

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Crozier, a 6-1 shot, took command at the top of the backstretch and scored a decisive victory over heavily favored Crimson Satan Saturday in the $145,000-guaranteed Santa Anita Handicap.

Crimson Satan, who went off at 4-5, finished in a dead heat with Game for the place money. Decidedly, the 1962 Kentucky Derby winner, was fourth in the field of 14.

Crozier, owned by Fred W. Hooper and ridden by Braulio Baeza, covered the 1¼ miles 2 minutes 4-5 second and returned $15.80, $4.80 and $4.80. His time on a fast track was a full second off the track record established in 1958 by Round Table.

A spokesman in the athletic department estimates that the contracts will net a total of more than $140,000 in bonuses and salaries for the eight players next fall.

Along with Buchanan, those who signed include Olympic sprinter Stone Johnson, a 185-pound halfback, with the Dallas Texans; Robert Burton, 246-pound tackle, and William Brown, 220-pound end, Houston Oilers; Lane Howell 225-pound center, New York Giants; Kenneith Thomas, 284-pound tackle, Chicago Bears; Charles Cook, 225-pound end, Pittsburgh Steelers, and Clifton McNeil, Cleveland Browns.

They bring to 15 the number of former Grambling players now under pro football contracts.

Coach Eddie Robinson credits the lucrative prospects of his gridders with giving a big boost to his recruiting program. He gets letters from athletes all over the country inquiring about scholarships at Grambling.

One letter came from an Eskimo in Alaska who said, "I can skin a seal with my bare hands."

That might make for good tackle material, but the applicant weighed only 173 pounds, and Robinson says he doesn't have a uniform that small.

His first four tackles last year weighed in at 284, 272, 246 and 245 pounds.

Deer Survive Tough Winter

With Sam Hanna

Flying The Area

The nose of the Bonanza tilted toward the ground to a scene below that every Louisiana sportsman should have an opportunity to see.

A couple of hundred whitetail deer grazed in a field of oats next to a sprawling swamp not far from the Mississippi River. Even from where we sat, which was several hundred feet in the air, a big buck stood out.

This was the climax of a quick, two-hour trip over parts of Northeast Louisiana. It was a flight with a purpose.

First of all, we wanted to see if Tensas Parish, where an antlerless season was held this year, had any deer left to shout about.

And secondly we hoped to find the deer in good enough shape to survive, because this has been a long drouth with a shortage of mast in the woods.

Most of the several hundred deer that looked skyward as we flew over were found in Tensas — proof enough that Louisiana's biggest deer herd has not been damaged.

And if the whitetails of the Delta are on the verge of starving to death, then they didn't run on that bright, sunny afternoon like they were sick. Several kept pace with the speedy Bonanza.

What we couldn't see from the air, however, was at least one area in Tensas where deer have starved in this unusually tough winter.

But in general our deer herds are going to make it. Their behavior in the fields as we flew over was normal — coming to the fields to eat just as they do during the season.

However, the flight over the river section of Northeas Louisiana unfolded a good look at the outdoor picture of this good area.

Fields of sage around Oak Ridge, weaving from wooded area to wooded area, looked awfully inviting to this quail hunter while the newly developed rice fields at Oak Grove appeared from the area to be the coming attraction for duck hunters.

And if there's one pothole there's a million along the Louisiana edges of the Mississippi River — duck hole after duck hole.

But deer country? You should see the river islands from the air. It's no wonder that they're the deer hunter's rage in Louisiana — miles of woods cut off from civilization by the big river.

We knew where we were when we saw the house on a tall bluff across the Mississippi. This was the Yucatan country and as we suspected there were deer in the fields below. This was where the big buck stood out.

But the most impressive sight of the trip was the Tensas Swamp itself — known today as the Chicago Mills Game Management Area. In size it's probably the largest wooded area left in our district — still dense, still preserving, protecting and producing wildlife.

When it's gone, there'll be some changes made.

This is what we thought as the nose of the Bonanza turned homeward bound.

Duck Count Up

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, which sits in the driver's seat in establishing the duck season, has stated officially that the waterfowl population in the Mississippi Flyway was above the 10-year average.

At first the service reported that the population figures were below the 10-year average, but quickly retraced the report, explaining that an error was made.

This, however, should conclude the argument in behalf of the duck hunters of the South, proving that the drastic restrictions on duck hunting this past season were unfair.

Director L. D. Young, who took issue with the service after its first report, pointed out that Louisiana's waterfowl figures, although high, would have been even greater had it not been for the drouth.

While the service now admits that ducks in this area are on the increase, hunters should be aware of a reported move underfoot in Canada to close the season.

This is important, because already the duck hunter is wondering about what will happen this summer when the federal government gets around to setting the season.

Some hunters whom we have talked to believe that the season will be closed next year despite this year's increase.

About the only advise that we have for duck hunters is letter writing — to state officials, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and to the Congress.

The pulse of the people is important in any issue and it certainly will be considered before the season for next year is set.

Quail Season Ends

Monday is the last day of the quail season.

And of course this means that only the turkey season remains between now and the opening of the dove season next September, which is too far off for sportsmen.

This has been a tough quail season in general. Even the good bird hunters have complained about having trouble finding the birds.

But we don't expect the conditions to change any, so bird hunters will have to adjust to the circumstances or quit hunting quail.

Meantime, the turkey season will be Louisiana's longest — from April 6 to April 21. Turkeys are on the increase, especially in the Delta swamps and in parts of Morehouse and Union.

This is the most challenging of all hunts where skill is a bigger factor than luck. Turkey hunters would do well to get out before the season and locate the flocks.

Training Camp Briefs

Phillies Start

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies began spring baseball training Saturday with 21 pitchers and five catchers participating.

After a few wind sprints and some ball tossing, the players got in some batting practice.

Pfister Back

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Dan Pfister, a hard-luck pitcher in the 1962 season, has returned his signed contract to the Kansas City Athletics.

The Hollywood, Fla., right-hander, finished the season with a 4-14 record, but many of his losses were in tight games.

"The new strike zone could really help Pfister," General Manager Pat Friday said. "He has a fine fast ball. We believe that Pfister will have a winning season in 1963."

Reds Sign Two

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Second Baseman Don Blasingame and outfielder Jerry Lynch came to terms with the Cincinnati Reds Saturday, leaving only pitcher Jim Brosnan and catcher Jesse Gonder unsigned among the regulars.

No Changes

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., (AP) — The appearance of Del Crandall at first base in the Milwaukee Braves' workout Saturday raised speculation that a shift might be in order for the veteran catcher, but Manager Bobby Bragan said this was not the case.

"I don't have any plans for Del anywhere but behind the plate," Bragan said. "I know he can play first base, but I dont anticipate that he will."

Chance TV Hit

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Dean Chance was the hit of the Los Angeles Angels' closed circuit television show Saturday as he pitched batting practice with World Series fervor.

Although he's supposed to be sharpening the hitters' eyes, Chance hasn't been much help with the mid-season stuff he's throwing in camp.

Tigers Win

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — The Detroit Tigers pounded out 15 hits with Jake Wood collecting four and defeated Japan's Hanshin Tigers 7-2 Saturday.

Wood, only major league veteran playing on the Detroit squad consisting mainly of rookies and minor leaguers, slammed two singles, a double and a triple in a perfect day at bat.

Three Holdouts

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) —Three holdouts and three other athletes were missing Saturday as Johnny Keane, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, sent his batterymen through the first spring training workout at Al Lang field.

The three unsigned players are pitchers Bob Duliba, and Ed Auta and catcher Cark Sawatski.

Houk Warns Yanks

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla (AP) —Manager Ralph Houk delivered a stern warning to his world champion New York Yankees not to stand in front of the batting cage at spring training camp.

Houk was standing behind the cage Saturday and became engrossed in the efforts of a young pitcher. He leaned in front of the batting cage to get a better look.

A sharply hit foul ball hit him right on the bridge of the nose.

He suffered a small cut and embarrassment.

Skeleton Squad

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — A skeleton squad of 12 men reported to Manager Ed Lopat Saturday as spring training opened for the Kansas City Athletics batterymen.

Takes Pay Cut

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Outfielder Jim Landis agreed to terms Saturday, taking a slight pay cut for 1963 with the Chicago White Sox.

The club now has only two unsigned players, outfielder Floyd Robinson and pitcher Juan Pizarro.

Bunting Drill

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (AP)—Manager Alvin Dark showed his San Francisco Giant pitchers Saturday how to bunt while protecting their valuable pitching hands.

Obviously, the manager of the National League champions had in mind the 1962 World Series' game in which pitcher Juan Marichal was hit on his index finger while trying to bunt.

Go Home

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) —"We're going to have to learn to get past third base," Manager Casey Stengel told his New York Mets Saturday.

Stengel told the team's battery men, plus the early regulars, that he plans to work hard this spring on offense.

"It is only 90 feet between bases," the old manager said. "Last year, we played like it was 180 feet from third to home. We got to get more runs."

Stars Due In

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris, the Yankees two top money makers who are the only unsigned players on the team, are due early next week to talk contract, Yankee officials said Saturday.

There seems little doubt that they will come to terms.

Workout

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP)—Pitchers and catchers held an abbreviated 3-hour workout at the Pittsburgh Pirates training camp Saturday, then took the rest of the day off to rest sore muscles.

Veteran pitcher Bob Friend, who has been confined to bed with a slight case of flu, was at the park but did not work out.

Hiding Lesson

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Steve Barber got special instruction Saturday on throwing the curve and concealing his pitches at the third spring training session for Baltimore batterymen.

Ray Scarborough, one-time American League curve ball specialist and now an Oriole coach and minor league pitching instructor, tutored Barber.

FEB 23 546PES

Wynn Tongue Sharp

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Early Wynn, around the majors 26 seasons man and boy and now trying a pitching "comeback" at 43, had a typically tart comment Saturday on baseball's new expanded strike zone.

"If I make it this season," said Wynn, who has no Chicago White Sox contract, "I'll have to see whether those umpires know there is a new rule and will enforce it.

Bearcats Rally Catches Tulsa In Last Minutes

CINCINNATI (AP)—The top ranked Cincinnati Bearcats came from 11 points behind in the last 8 minutes Saturday night and beat Tulsa 55-54 in a Missouri Valley Conference game.

Coach Ed Jucker's strategy of using three guards in the closing minutes and alternating sophomores Ken Cunningham and Fritz Meyer did the trick.

Cunningham scored six of the Bearcats' last 18 points and tied the score with a 20-foot jump shot with 2:23 to go. George Wilson's free throw provided the winning edge 40 seconds later.

South African Leads Tourney In Singapore

SINGAPORE (AP) — Alan Brookes of South Africa moved past Tomoo Ishii of Japan, leader after each of the first two rounds to grab the top after 54 holes of the $11,300 Singapore Open Golf Tournament Saturday with a total of 212.

Brookes, who set a course record of 6-under par 67 Friday—erasing the new standard of 68 posted by Ishii Thursday—had a third round 2. Ishii slipped to 75, for a 213.

Brown Fights British Champ

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — Joe Brown, former world lightweight champion, renews his riweight champions, renews his rivalry with British champion Dave Charnley on Monday.

Brown of Baton Rouge, La., twice put his title on the line against Charnley and won both times. The 37-year-old "Old Bones" knocked out Charnley in the sixth round in Houston, Tex., Dec. 2, 1959, and then outpointed him in London over 15 rounds April 18, 1961.

Butts Resigns

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Wallace Butts, athletic director at the University of Georgia, stepped down Saturday after 24 years with the Georgia Bulldogs.

Stewart And Pott Tied In Golf Tourney

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (AP) — Earl Stewart and Johnny Pott each fired a 6-under-par 66 Saturday in the first round of the $7,000 Little Tournament of Champions to grab an early and strong lead.

Stewart, of Dallas, Tex., toured the 6,612-yard, par 72-72—144 Panama Country Club course in 33-33, closing out his round with an eagle to gain the tie. Pott's card read 34-32. He is from Shreveport, La.

Defending champion Dave Ragan got off to a stumbling start with a 4-33—73 to place him 12th in the field of 15.

Two Twin-Cities Teams Capture First In Meet

Two Twin-Cities teams won division championships in the district 2 Baptist basketball tourney played at the Benoit recreation center Saturday.

Harry Crowe scored 22 points to pace the First Baptist Church of Monroe to a 63-47 win over Emmanuel Baptist church of Alexandria in the men's division finals. Kenne has 13 for the losers.

In the 17-year old division, Trinity of West Monroe defeated College Place Baptist Church of Monroe 41-31 behind the 25-point scoring of Rogers. Howell scored 29 for the losers.

Columbia Heights won the 14-year old division by defeating First Baptist Church of West Monroe 34-20. Darden scored 12 for the winners and Adcock 12 for the losers.

Winners will advance to the state tournament in Pineville next week.

Ole Miss Ends First Week Of Grid Drills

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi's Southeastern Conference football champions closed their first week of spring training Saturday with heavy contact work.

The Rebel's first two units exhibited hard-nosed defensive ability in controlled scrimmage for more than half an hour.

Heyman Paces Duck To Win

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Art Heyman scored 40 points Saturday in leading Duke to a 106-93 basketball victory over arch rival North Carolina. It was the 15th straight victory for the second ranked Blue Devils.

The Blue Devils led the entire game as they racked up their 21st victory in 23 starts and finished their regular Atlantic Coast Conference season undefeated in 15 games.

Little Man's Corner

The little men were making news afield until winter dropped another snow on Northeast Louisiana.

And that development in the weather probably changed the fishing picture for the weekend. The fishing had been really good before Thursday's snow.

Bass were tearing up Lake ruin where the H&H baits were ot around the cypress trees. hite perch were biting just bout any spot — Bussey, Gassoay, Black Bayou, Bayou Dehard, Concordia and Old River. H. W. Armstrong and Jack Miler of Winnsboro, fishing with hiners, caught a string of 25 hite perch and a 6-pound bass t Bayou Louie.

Bill Sikes of Lake Providence got the limit of white perch in Grand Lake just across the Arkansas line from East Carroll.

Bird hunters were wrapping up the season. Bill Shirey and sons Billy and Mike had a pretty good hunt. And J. H. Gilfoil III has had some good luck with the bass in Lake Providence.

Meantime, outlaw hunting is being watched closely in the deer areas. Night hunters turn out in strong numbers just after the season.

But several arrests have been made lately.

Locally, the Pinehills Gun Club is warming up for its first shoot of the season — set for March 3rd at the Bancroft camp.

There'll be both trap and skeet shooting and a club spokesman says the grounds are in good condition. Members are urged to attend. Persons interested in joining can come as guests.

Beau Purple Winner Of Widener Run

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hobeau Farm's Beau Purple stumbled coming out of the gate, recovered quickly and went on to beat the covered class in the 26th running of the Widener Handicap Saturday at Hialeah Park.

Beau Purple, under 125 pounds with Bill Boland aboard, led all the way and ran the 1⅛ miles in 1 minutes 1:45 seconds over a fast track. He won by 2¼ lengths.

Kelso, owned by Mrs. Richard duPont of Wilmington, Del., and the 2-5 favorite with the crowd of 33,178, shouldered 131 pounds and became the seventh odds-on choice to fail in this gruelling test of the nation's best handicap horses.

Mrs. Mary Keim's lightly regarded Florida-bred Hereshesfla finished third, three lengths behind Kelso and four lengths in front of fourth place Fry Cash, owned by Mrs. Ada L. Rice of Chicago.

Kentucky Tops Auburn 78-59

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Kentucky jolted Auburn's NCAA tournament hopes Saturday night as the Wildcats defeated the Tigers 78-59 in a Southeastern Conference basketball game.

With Cotton Nash and Ted Deeken leading the way, Kentucky built a 36-25 halftime lead and never looked back as it coasted to an easy victory.

The loss left Auburn with a 9-3 SEC record and its tournament hopes in doubt. Auburn and Mississippi State led the conference going into the game, but Mississippi State is expected to decline a tournament bid.

Southern Nips Gents 71-69 On Late Foul Shots

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Southern Mississippi's Ron Dodson sank two foul shots in the final seconds Saturday to edge Centenary 71-69.

Southern moved to a 39-37 halftime advantage and pulled out in the second half. But Centenary caught up and went ahead several times.

With the score deadlocked at 69-69 and Southern stalling, Centenary fouled Dodson who iced the victory from the free throw line.

The leading scorer was Centenarys Cecil Upshaw with 20 points. Jackie Laird got 18 for Southern.

Centenary is now 11-12 while Southern is 11-14.

TWO RICE basketball stars, Dick Cramer (left) and Herb Steinkamp, were offered a bribe by a fellow student to win the game with Baylor here last Tuesday by less than 14 points. The student who offered the bribe has been dismissed from the university. (AP Wirephoto)

Rice Sophomore Expelled

HOUSTON (AP)—A Rice University sophomore has been expelled for offering two basetball players $1,000 to shave points in last Tuesday's game with Baylor.

Rice officials did not identify the student but Johnny Frankie, the basketball coach, quoted the sophomore as saying he had won $8,000 during the football season and had been gambling quite a bit.

"He said he'd bet $40,000 and give my two guards $500 apiece to slow down the Baylor game and win by less than 14 points," Frankie said.

The fix was contigent upon Rice's defeating Southern Methodist in Dallas last Saturday by 15 to 18 points but the Owls were defeated, 86-70. Rice retained its mathematical shot at the Southwest Conference title, however, but coming back to defeat Baylor, 74-70.

Herb Steinkamp, a junior guard from Vendy, Ill., and Dick Cramer a junior college transfer from suburban Bellaire, said the bribe was offered Feb. 14. They reported the offer later that day to Eddie Wojecki, the Rice trainer, and to Frankie on Feb. 15.

Frankie notified the FBI.

Robert Richtmeyer, FBI agent in charge, said he is investigating to determine if any federal statutes have been violated.

The Southwest Conference was jarred last year when a committee from the State Legislature investigated alleged game fixing by basketball officials. No charges were filed but two veteran officials were dropped by the conference.

The Rice bribery offer was made just three days after Jack Molinas, former Ivy Leaguer star, was sentenced to 10 to 15 years in prison in New York City for mastermining a $70,000 fix of college basketball games. Two other men also drew sentences as go-between in a ring that approached 47 players in 27 colleges.

Little Man's Corner

The little men were making ews afield until winter dropped nother snow on Northeast Louisiana.

And that development in the weather probably changed the fishing picture for the weekend. The fishing had been really good before Thursday's snow.

Bass were tearing up Lake ruin where the H&H baits were ot around the cypress trees. hite perch were biting just bout any spot — Bussey, Gassoay, Black Bayou, Bayou Deiard, Concordia and Old River. H. W. Armstrong and Jack Milr of Winnsboro, fishing with hiners, caught a string of 25 hite perch and a 6-pound bass t Bayou Louie.

Bill Sikes of Lake Providence got the limit of white perch in Grand Lake just across the Arkansas line from East Carroll.

Bird hunters were wrapping up the season. Bill Shirey and sons Billy and Mike had a pretty good hunt. And J. H. Gilfoil III has had some good luck with the bass in Lake Providence.

Meantime, outlaw hunting is being watched closely in the deer areas. Night hunters turn out in strong numbers just after the season.

But several arrests have been made lately.

Locally, the Pinehills Gun Club is warming up for its first shoot of the season — set for March 3rd at the Bancroft camp.

There'll be both trap and skeet shooting and a club spokesman says the grounds are in good condition. Members are urged to attend. Persons interested in joining can come as guests.

Beau Purple Winner Of Widener Run

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hobeau Farm's Beau Purple stumbled coming out of the gate, recovered quickly and went on to beat the favored elso in the 26th running of the Widener Handicap Saturday at Hialeah Park.

Beau Purple, under 125 pounds with Bill Boland aboard, led all the way and ran the 1¼ miles in two minutes 1 4-5 seconds over a fast track. He won by 2¼ lengths.

Kelso, owned by Mrs. Richard duPont of Wilmington, Del., and the 2-5 favorite with the crowd of 33,178, shouldered 131 pounds and became the seventh odds-on choice to fail in this gruelling test for the nation's best handicap horses.

Mrs. Mary Keim's lightly regarded Florida-bred Heroshogala finished third, three lengths behind Kelso and four lengths in front of fourth place Try Cash, owned by Mrs. Ada L. Rice of Chicago.

Kentucky Tops Auburn 78-59

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Kentucky jolted Auburn's NCAA tournament hopes Saturday night as the Wildcats defeated the Tigers 78-59 in a Southeastern Conference basketball game.

With Cotton Nash and Ted Deeken leading the way, Kentucky built a 36-25 halftime lead and never looked back as it coasted to an easy victory.

The loss left Auburn with a 9-3 SEC record and its tournament hopes in doubt. Auburn and Mississippi State led the conference going into the game, but Mississippi State is expected to decline a tournament bid.

GIRLS SEMI-FINALS

Doujuana Lewis scored 16, Marlene Cassels got 14 and Geraldine McVay netted 11 as Enterprise defeated Summerfield.

The Indian sextet rolled up a 12-5 opening quarter lead and were ahead 29-13 by halftime.

They only managed nine points in the third quarter and seven in the fourth but still increased their lead as Summerfield scored only two points in the third period and hit seven more in the last quarter.

Pat Sayers scored 10 points to lead Summerfield and Frances Murry chipped in eight.

Lewis scored nine points during the second quarter to carry the Indians to their biggest scoring period and Cassels netted eight in the opening period.

Marion's win was also a rout as Brasher hit 14 field goals and 10 free shots for her 38 point total. The fine marksman made good on all but two of her free throw attempts.

Gerti Wilson was high for Lisbon with 19 points. She hit six field goals and seven of 10 attempts at the charity line.

Marion led 15-9 after one quarter and was ahead 26-13 by halftime.

In the third, Marion continued its pace with 17 points. Lisbon managed eight and Marion led 43-21 going into the last quarter.

Alona Binford was behind Brasher with seven points for Marion. Ann Scriber followed Wilson with eight for Lisbon.

Rice Sophomore Expelled

HOUSTON (AP)—A Rice University sophomore has been expelled for offering two basetball players $1,000 to shave points in last Tuesday's game with Baylor.

Rice officials did not identify the student but Johnny Frankie, the basketball coach, quoted the sophomore as saying he had won $8,000 during the football season and had been gambling quite a bit.

"He said he'd bet $40,000 and give my two guards $500 apiece to slow down the Baylor game and win by less than 14 points," Frankie said.

Herb Steinkamp, a junior guard from Vendy, Ill., and Dick Cramer a junior college transfer from suburban Bellaire, said the bribe was offered Feb. 14. They reported the offer later that day to Eddie Wojecki, the Rice trainer, and to Frankie on Feb. 15.

Frankie notified the FBI.

Robert Richtmeyer, FBI agent in charge, said he is investigating to determine if any federal statutes have been violated.

The World For Women

February 24, 1963

At left: Philanthropic projects rank high in the organization. From left to right, Mrs. James Padgett, Mrs. James Rivers, Mrs. Don Newton and Mrs. Max Funderburk are pictured with miniature replicas depicting the projects which includes aid to Charity hospital, Crippled Children's Clinic and Cerebral Palsy.

Above: Educational projects are a special new field in the League's endeavors covering library story hours, aid to the Y.W.C.A. and aid to the school for Hard of Hearing in Monroe. Mrs. Ralph King Jr., at left and Mrs. Jerry L. McWilliams, examine representative miniatures in these fields.

Junior Charity League Provisionals

Twelve new provisionals of the Junior Charity League are pictured here as they inspect miniatures of community projects, representing the various phases of the organization's work, in preparation for a year's training and study before they become members.

Improvement in cultural, social, economic, civic and educational conditions is the aim of the League and provisionals will work in projects in each field. This year begins the 33rd year of the Junior Charity League. Its 85 active members will contribute over 6,000 volunteer hours to community service in 1963 in charitable, philanthropic and civic affairs.

At left: An annual custom is the coffee given by the outgoing president and the incoming president to introduce provisionals to active members of the League. Pictured from left to right at the event held Tuesday morning in the John O. Clay home, on Pargoud Blvd., are Mrs. Ronald Davis Jr., co-hostess with Mrs. Clay, the president; Mrs. Harold Mouk, Mrs. Diehlman Bernhardt, Mrs. James A. Neill, provisional chairman; Mrs. Clay and Mrs. Jesse D. McDonald.

A regular part of the provisional year of from left to right, Mrs. Don Caldwell, Mrs. Pierre Lauve and Mrs. Edel F. Blanks, will be spent in the Thrift Shop, where the League partially finances some of its community projects such as the milk fund for needy children.

Presented this morning are members of the 1963 Provisional group of the Junior Charity League. These young women begin next month a course of intensive training in community service. For over thirty years League members have contributed uncounted hours and dollars in a wide variety of services to Ouachita parish.

Tuesday morning provisionals were introduced to the membership at the traditional president's coffee, held in the home of PEGGY CLAY, outgoing president. NANCY DAVIS, who will head the group during the club year beginning March 1, was co-hostess. Spring flowers decorated the house for the party. In the living room, daffodils were used with yellow and white chrysanthemums.

The dining room table was centered with a footed brass container filled with yellow gladioli, daisies, ivy, and candytuft. Coffee was served from one end of the table, with a copper urn filled with ice holding bottled soft drinks at the opposite end. League board members assisted with serving. Goodies included cucumber sandwiches, pecan sugar cookies, shrimp sandwiches, tiny hot biscuits to be filled with bacon or jam, lemon squares, and cheese straws.

Provisionals wore name - tags tied with pink ribbons. Those honored were SOPHIA BLANKS, DEEDEE BUFFINGTON, JOAN CALDWELL, PAT ANN FUNDERBURK, MARY LEE KING, SALLY LAUVE, SANCY MADISON, BARBARA MWILLIAMS, AGNES NEWTON, ANN PADGETT, BARBARA RIVERS, SALLIE SHAFTO.

Monroeans love to entertain for out of town guests, and never more so than when the visitors are "our own" -- former residents back home for a visit. Last weekend MARY GRAY, here from New Orleans as guest of CRARY SMITH, was honored at several small, delightful parties. On Thursday LILY HARRINGTON was hostess at a bridge luncheon in her home. The table, beautifully appointed with silver serving pieces and silver goblets, was centered with a spring arrangement of blue daisies and pink sweet peas. An all-Southern menu was highlighted by chicken croquettes, hot biscuits, and charlotte russe. Ten guests included LELA STEPHENS, here from Greenwich, Connecticut for the winter. Eight players took part in bridge games after lunch.

On Saturday, RUTH MADISON invited six friends for luncheon with Mary at Bayou DeSiard country club. Valentine flowers, red carnations with white stock, decorated the table in the bay window for the party.

Sunday afternoon buffet was the compliment of Crary for her house-guest, MAMIE DAVIS was co-hostess for this party at Crary's home. Spring flowers were used on the buffet table, where the delicacies included oysters Rockefeller, crab meat in patty shells, roast beef, ham, marinated mushrooms, and sliced cake and miniature pralines. Twenty-four guests were invited for the late afternoon hours.

Here from Franklin was LILLY GLENN (Mrs. Merle) LICHTENFELS, guest of her mother, MABEL GLENN, and brother-in-law and sister, the WAYMON SAWYERS, on North Second street. A bridge-luncheon at home was given by Katie Sawyer for her sister.

Other affairs honoring Lilly included a dinner party given by LYNDA and BOBBY NUGENT and luncheon planned by ANN MICKEL . . . . Lilly, incidentally, was shopping for draperies, carpets, and furnishings for the new home she and Merle are building on Bayou Teche. They plan a two-story red brick Dutch colonial-style house, to be called "Duel Oaks," in reference to six moss-laden live oaks on the lot.

Another visitor in town this week was ADRIENNE GASTON SMITH, here from Little Rock, Arkansas, with her parents, the NATE GASTONS. On Wednesday morning, a small seated coffee in the Gaston home afforded Adrienne an opportunity to visit with old friends.

Other parties planned in Adrienne's honor included luncheon in the home of BOBBIE BUIE on Tuesday; and at the home of FRANCES TROUSDALE on Wednesday. On Thursday, WAVA FRAZER and MARY ALICE HUSTED invited eight for luncheon at the Paragon. Yellow ranunculas were a spring-time note on the table. JIBBY FOX's compliment to Adrienne was luncheon at home on Friday.

Most unusual centerpiece seen in quite a spell was that used on the refreshment table when NANCY STAAB and DOT REX were hostesses at a morning coffee last Saturday morning. 'Twas a Valentine tree, created of a bare white branch hung with rosebuds and frilly red hearts. Red painted egg-shells hanging in the branches were miniature shadow boxes, each holding a different romantic Valentine scene. Honor guests at this party were Nancy's mother, MRS. HARRY E. WRIGHT of Springfield, Illinois, and Dot's mother, MRS. ALLEN DEW of Hamburg, Arkansas.

A Valentine theme, echoing "Our hearts are breaking," was used by HELEN and ROY LEDBETTER when they entertained at a dinner party last Thursday evening honoring PAT and JACK MADDEN, soon to move to New York. The honoree looked like a Valentine herself in a red wool dress with a corsage of red carnations attached to a tiny white fan decorated with hearts.

On the white - covered dining table were red carnations with red hearts affixed to red satin streamers. The menu for thirty guests included barbecued roast, new potatoes in sour cream, marinated beans, and heart-shaped cherry tarts. Following dinner, the honorees received a cart decorated with Confederate flags and filled with amusing gifts. Most hilarious was the "Yankee Survival Kit" containing a vial of bayou water, a lump of Pargoud dirt, moss, hominy, okra, and magnolia leaves.

Some twenty members of the nursery school set were invited to a farewell party for WALTON WAKEFIELD, soon to move with his parents to Hammond, Indiana. Young Miss CLAIRE SEYMOUR was hostess at her home. Young guests were treated to rides in a pony cart before going inside for movies. Refreshments included ice cream and chocolate cake, and favors were balloons, jumping beans, and tiny cars.

Walton's mother, CINDY WAKEFIELD, was honored at a dessert bridge last Thursday in the home of FRANCES BROWN with MARGE MULLENS co-hostess. Twin cupid epergnes held Valentine arrangements of red carnations and eucalyptus in the entrance, while red roses decorated the living room. Salmon gladioli were used in the library. Baked Alaska was the dessert served to five tables of players. After the games, prizes were awarded to FRANCES ADCOCK, high; CHARLOTTIE DENT, travelling prize; and MARIE LOUISE SNELLINGS, consolation.

On his ninth birthday last Sunday, ISAAC LUFFEY, JR., was honored at a skating party. Hearts and cupids cutout decorated the rink for the occasion. Favors were party loot bags filled with conversation hearts candy.

Doughnuts and soft drinks were refreshments served to sixty-six children.

Celebrating their sixth birthdays, MELANIE MILLSAPS, JACKIE RATLIFF, and NANCY ROOT planned a day in the country for little friends in the kindergarten class. The party was held in the outdoor kitchen-playroom at the home of Melanie's grandmother, MRS. W. A. CALLOWAY, in Bosco. George Washington's birthday decorations were used, with flags and bunting. Luncheon of hamburgers, hot dogs, ice cream and cake was served to some thirty children. DAVID RIDDLE and MARY SUE M'CARTY were winners in games which were played after lunch. All the children received balloons and gum as favors, with cars for boys and hair clips for girls.

Our poem today is Ralph Waldo Emerson's "Forbearance:"

Hast thou named all the birds without a gun?
Loved the wood-rose and left it on its stalk?
At rich men's tables eaten bread and pulse?
Unarmed, faced danger with a heart of trust?
And loved so well a high behavior,
In man or maid, that thou from speech refrained,
Nobility more nobly to repay?
O, be my friend, and teach me to be thine!

MISS DOLORES FAE EVERRITT, daughter of Mrs. Fae Smelser Everritt, Arkansas Road, and William V. Everritt, West Monroe, will become the bride of Joel D'Lane Smith Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Smith, West Monroe, on Friday, March 8. The ceremony will take place at 7 p.m. in Ridge Avenue Baptist Church with Rev. A. T. Mitchell officiating.

There are 14 societies in Louisiana with over 600 members. Between 150 and 200 delegates are expected to attend the two - day conference here.

MISS NYLEEN ELIZABETH BARNETT

Nyleen Barnett Engaged To Wilton Orren Bell Jr.

Engagement of Miss Nyleen Elizabeth Barnett, daughter of Mrs. Shelby Miles Barnett of Corinth, Mississippi, and the late Mr. Barnett to Wilton Orren Bell Jr. of Monroe is announced today by her mother. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilton Orrren Bell of Kilgore, Texas.

The wedding will take place on Saturday, March 16 in the First Presbyterian Church, Jackson, Miss., at 2 p.m.

Miss Barnett is a graduate of Ripley high school, Ripley, Miss., and received her bachelor of arts degree in Bible and history from Belhaven College in Jackson, Miss. She was a member of Kappa Delta Epsilon, national educational sorority.

The bride - elect has served as Director of Christian Education in the First Presbyterian Church of Biloxi, the Chelsea Avenue Presbyterian Church of Memphis, Tenn., and the Covenant Presbyterian Church of Monroe. She is presently director of youth work at the First Presbyterian church in Jackson.

Mr. Bell attended Ouachita Parish high school in Monroe and was graduated from Kilgore high school, Kilgore, Texas. He attended Kilgore Junior college and received his bachelor of science degree in chemical engineering from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, Ruston. He is presently director of Process Development for Commercial Solvents Corporation, Dixie Division, Sterlington.

The couple plans to establish a home in Monroe following their marriage.

AVALON STUDIO

223 GRAMMONT MONROE

Sharon Claire Ary Weds William Taylor King Jr.

Grace Episcopal Church was the setting Saturday, February 23 for the wedding of Miss Sharon Claire Ary and William Taylor King Jr. The double ring ceremony was solemnized at 3 p.m. with the Rev. W. Bradley Trimble officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nolan W. Ary of Guthrie, Oklahoma, formerly of Rayne, La., and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor King Sr., of this city.

White stock and white tulips in gold vases were used to decorate the two altars of the church. The floral arrangements were flanked by tall cathedral tapers in gold candlesticks. White silk cord marked family pews.

An organ prelude was presented by Allison Salley. Selections included "Poor Light Upon Us" from Three Liturgical Improvisations, by George Oldroyd, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring", by J. S. Bach, "The Lord's My Shepherd" by Garth Edmundson, and other selections. Mr. Salley played Henry Purcell's "Trumpet Voluntary in D Major" as the processional, and for the recessional, "Bell Symphony."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of satin faced brocaded peau satin taut bodice and three-quarter length sleeves. Seed pearls and bugle beads embellished the sculptured scoop neckline and the natural waistline was emphasized by a self material bow in front dropping gracefully in the back with the full skirt ending in a sweeping chapel - length train. Her tiered veil of illusion fell from a large cabbage rose of peau with seed pearls extending down each side. She carried a spray bouquet of white glamelias with rose foliage.

Miss Glyn Dale Gary, of Rayne, was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Miss Sheilah Raymond, Miss Jeanette Richard, Miss Kathleen Cunningham, Miss Billy Joyce Dominque, all of Rayne, and Miss Donna Jean King, Monroe, sister of the bridegroom.

Their identical short skirted dresses were of ming blue velvet designed with scoop decolletages, elbow length sleeves and bubble skirts; the waistline of each dress was adorned at the back with a dainty satin bow. Their headdresses were veils of ming blue illusion with halo hats of matching color and they wore white short gloves. They carried cascade bouquets of white glamelias and rose foliage.

Deborah Ann Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Young, served as flower girl and she wore an identical model to that of the other attendants. She carried a miniature bouquet of white glamelias.

Attending the bridegroom as best man was his cousin, William Kenneth Renwick. Groomsmen were J. L. Furlow, Howard Lee Hobson, Joseph Francis Thompson of West Monroe; James Arville Beard of Crowley and James Louis Caldwell of Bastrop.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Ary chose a royal blue crepe model with matching accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid. The bridegroom's mother wore a moss green silk shantung dress with complementary hat and shoes and a white orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Paragon Club.

Guests were welcomed at the entrance to the ballroom by Miss Janet Hyman. Receiving with the bride and bridegroom were their mothers and members of the bridal party.

A memory candle in a crystal globe was used as the focal point where Miss Ginger Donald registered the guests.

The bride's table, overlaid with a white satin cloth and covered with white tulle, was centered with a cherub epergne with an arrangement of white stock flanked by white tapers. Crystal punch bowls were placed at either end.

Garlands of smilax encircled the cake table which was covered by a white linen cloth. On either side of the three tiered wedding confection were rice trees which held tiny rice bags in aqua and white nylon net tied with white satin ribbons. Presiding at the cake service was Mrs. Nell R. Williams.

Throughout the room were large urns holding specimen branches of mangolia foliage. Garlands of magnolia leaves were used around the railing of the ballroom.

Tea girls assisting in the serving courtesies were Miss Dianne Entrican, Miss Chubby Richardson, Mrs. Ray Hawkins, Miss Jennie Loftin and Miss Hazel Hoben. All wore corsages of white camellias.

Grandparents of the bride and bridegroom attending the receptions were Mr. and Mrs. John Routh, of Guthrie, Oklahoma, Mr. William Ary, of Drumright, Oklahoma; Mrs. W. C. Renwick, of this city, and Mrs. D. L. King, of Hazelhurst, Mississippi. Mrs. Routh, Mrs. Renwick and Mrs. King all wore orchid corsages.

Presented this morning are members of the 1963 Provisional group of the Junior Charity League. These young women begin next month a course of intensive training in community service. For over thirty years League members have contributed uncounted hours and dollars in a wide variety of services to Ouachita parish.

Tuesday morning provisionals were introduced to the membership at the traditional president's coffee, held in the home of PEGGY CLAY, outgoing president. NANCY DAVIS, who will head the group during the club year beginning March 1, was co-hostess. Spring flowers decorated the house for the party. In the living room, daffodils were used with yellow and white chrysanthemums.

The dining room table was centered with a footed brass container filled with yellow gladioli, daisies, ivy, and candytuft. Coffee was served from one end of the table, with a copper urn filled with ice holding bottled soft drinks at the opposite end. League board members assisted with serving. Goodies included cucumber sandwiches, pecan sugar cookies, shrimp sandwiches, tiny hot biscuits to be filled with bacon or jam, lemon squares, and cheese straws.

Provisionals wore name - tags tied with pink ribbons. Those honored were SOPHIA BLANKS, DEEDEE BUFFINGTON, JOAN CALDWELL, PAT ANN FUNDERBURK, MARY LEE KING, SALLY LAUVE, SANCY MADISON, BARBARA M'WILLIAMS, AGNES NEWTON, ANN PADGETT, BARBARA RIVERS, SALLIE SHAFTO.

Monroyans love to entertain for out of town guests, and never more so than when the visitors are "our own" — former residents back home for a visit. Last weekend MARY GRAY, here from New Orleans as guest of CRARY SMITH, was honored at several small, delightful parties. On Thursday LILY HARRINGTON was hostess at a bridge - luncheon in her home. The table, beautifully appointed with silver serving pieces and silver goblets, was centered with a spring arrangement of blue daisies and pink sweet peas. An all-Southern menu was highlighted by chicken croquettes, hot biscuits, and charlotte russe. Ten guests included LELA STEPHENS, here from Greenwich, Connecticut for the winter. Eight players took part in bridge games after lunch.

On Saturday, RUTH MADISON invited six friends for luncheon with Mary at Bayou DeSiard country club. Valentine flowers, red carnations with white stock, decorated the table in the bay window for the party.

Sunday afternoon buffet was the compliment of Crary for her house-guest. MAMIE DAVIS was co-hostess for this party at Crary's home. Spring flowers were used on the buffet table, where the delicacies included oysters Rockefeller, crab meat in patty shells, roast beef, ham, marinated mushrooms, and sliced cake and miniature pralines. Twenty-four guests were invited for the late afternoon hours.

Here from Franklin was LILLY GLENN (Mrs. Merle) LICHTENFELS, guest of her mother, MABEL GLENN, and brother-in-law and sister, the WAYMON SAWYERS, on North Second street. A bridge-luncheon at home was given by Katie Sawyer for her sister.

Other affairs honoring Lilly included a dinner party given by LYNDA and BOBBY NUGENT and luncheon planned by ANN MICKEL . . . . Lilly, incidentally, was shopping for draperies, carpets, and furnishings for the new home she and Merle are building on Bayou Teche. They plan a two-story red brick Dutch colonial-style house, to be called "Duel Oaks," in reference to six moss-laden live oaks on the lot.

Another visitor in town this week was ADRIENNE GASTON SMITH, here from Little Rock, Arkansas, with her parents, the NATE GASTONS. On Wednesday morning, a small seated coffee in the Gaston home afforded Adrienne an opportunity to visit with old friends.

Other parties planned in Adrienne's honor included luncheon in the home of BOBBIE BUIE on Tuesday; and at the home of FRANCES TROUSDALE on Wednesday. On Thursday, WAVA FRAZER and MARY ALICE HUSTED invited eight for luncheon at the Paragon. Yellow ranunculas were a spring-time note on the table. JIBBY FOX's compliment to Adrienne was luncheon at home on Friday.

Most unusual centerpiece seen in quite a spell was that used on the refreshment table when NANCY STAAB and DOT ROREX were hostesses at a morning coffee last Saturday morning. 'Twas a Valentine tree, created of a bare white branch hung with rosebuds and frilly red hearts. Red painted egg-shells hanging in the branches were miniature shadow boxes, each holding a different romantic Valentine scene. Honor guests at this party were Nancy's mother, MRS. HARRY E. WRIGHT of Springfield, Illinois, and Dot's mother, MRS. ALLEN DEW of Hamburg, Arkansas.

A Valentine theme, echoing "Our hearts are breaking," was used by HELEN and ROY LEDBETTER when they entertained at a dinner party last Thursday evening honoring PAT and JACK MADDEN, soon to move to New York. The honoree looked like a Valentine herself in a red wool dress with a corsage of red carnations attached to a tiny white fan decorated with hearts.

On the white - covered dining table were red carnations with red hearts affixed to red satin streamers. The menu for thirty guests included barbecued roast, new potatoes in sour cream, marinated beans, and heart-shaped cherry tarts. Following dinner, the honorees received a cart decorated with Confederate flags and filled with amusing gifts. Most hilarious was the "Yankee Survival Kit" containing a vial of bayou water, a lump of Pargoud dirt, moss, hominy, okra, and magnolia leaves.

Some twenty members of the nursery school set were invited to a farewell party for WALTON WAKEFIELD, soon to move with his parents to Hammond, Indiana. Young Miss CLAIRE SEYMOUR was hostess at her home. Young guests were treated to rides in a pony cart before going inside for movies. Refreshments included ice cream and chocolate cake, and favors were balloons, jumping beans, and tiny cars.

Walton's mother, CINDY WAKEFIELD, was honored at a dessert bridge last Thursday in the home of FRANCES BROWN with MARGE MULLENS co-hostess. Twin cupid epergnes held Valentine arrangements of red carnations and eucalyptus in the entrance, while red roses decorated the living room. Salmon gladioli were used in the library. Baked Alaska was the dessert served to five tables of players. After the games, prizes were awarded to FRANCES ADCOCK, high; CHARLOTTIE DENT, travelling prize; and MARIE LOUISE SNELLINGS, consolation.

On his ninth birthday last Sunday, ISAAC LUFFEY, JR., was honored at a skating party. Hearts and cupids cutout decorated the rink for the occasion. Favors were party loot bags filled with conversation hearts candy.

Doughnuts and soft drinks were refreshments served to sixty-six children.

Celebrating their sixth birthdays, MELANIE MILLSAPS, JACKIE RATLIFF, and NANCY ROOT planned a day in the country for little friends in the kindergarten class. The party was held in the outdoor kitchen-playroom at the home of Melanie's grandmother, MRS. W. A. CALLOWAY, in Bosco. George Washington's birthday decorations were used, with flags and bunting. Luncheon of hamburgers, hot dogs, ice cream and cake was served to some thirty children. DAVID RIDDLE and MARY SUE M'CARTY were winners in games which were played after lunch. All the children received balloons and gum as favors, with cars for boys and hair clips for girls.

Our poem today is Ralph Waldo Emerson's "Forbearance:"

Hast thou named all the birds without a gun?
Loved the wood-rose and left it on its stalk?
At rich men's tables eaten bread and pulse?
Unarmed, faced danger with a heart of trust?
And loved so well a high behavior,
In man or maid, that thou from speech refrained,
Nobility more nobly to repay?
O, be my friend, and teach me to be thine!

AVALON STUDIO

223 GRAMMONT MONROE

Sharon Claire Ary Weds William Taylor King Jr.

Grace Episcopal Church was the setting Saturday, February 23 for the wedding of Miss Sharon Claire Ary and William Taylor King Jr. The double ring ceremony was solemnized at 3 p.m. with the Rev. W. Bradley Trimble officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nolan W. Ary of Guthrie, Oklahoma, formerly of Rayne, La., and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor King Sr., of this city.

White stock and white tulips in gold vases were used to decorate the two altars of the church. The floral arrangements were flanked by tall cathedral tapers in gold candlesticks. White silk cord marked family pews.

An organ prelude was presented by Allison Salley. Selections included "Poor Light Upon Us" from Three Liturgical Improvisations, by George Oldroyd, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring", by J. S. Bach, "The Lord's My Shepherd" by Garth Edmundson, and other selections. Mr. Salley played Henry Purcell's "Trumpet Voluntary in D Major" as the processional, and for the recessional, "Bell Symphony."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of satin faced brocaded peau satin taut bodice and three-quarter length sleeves. Seed pearls and bugle beads embellished the sculptured scoop neckline and the natural waistline was emphasized by a self material bow in front dropping gracefully in the back with the full skirt ending in a sweeping chapel - length train. Her tiered veil of illusion fell from a large cabbage rose of peau with seed pearls extending down each side. She carried a spray bouquet of white glamelias with rose foliage.

Miss Glyn Dale Gary, of Rayne, was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Miss Sheilah Raymond, Miss Jeanette Richard, Miss Kathleen Cunningham, Miss Billy Joyce Dominque, all of Rayne, and Miss Donna Jean King, Monroe, sister of the bridegroom.

Their identical short skirted dresses were of ming blue velvet designed with scoop decolletages, elbow length sleeves and bubble skirts; the waistline of each dress was adorned at the back with a dainty satin bow. Their headdresses were veils of ming blue illusion with halo hats of matching color and they wore white short gloves. They carried cascade bouquets of white glamelias and rose foliage.

Deborah Ann Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Young, served as flower girl and she wore an identical model to that of the other attendants. She carried a miniature bouquet of white glamelias.

Attending the bridegroom as best man was his cousin, William Kenneth Renwick. Groomsmen were J. L. Furlow, Howard Lee Hobson, Joseph Francis Thompson of West Monroe; James Arville Beard of Crowley and James Louis Caldwell of Bastrop.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Ary chose a royal blue crepe model with matching accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid. The bridegroom's mother wore a moss green silk shantung dress with complementary hat and shoes and a white orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Paragon Club.

Guests were welcomed at the entrance to the ballroom by Miss Janet Hyman. Receiving with the bride and bridegroom were their mothers and members of the bridal party.

Fashion Wraps Up Spring Moods

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) —Fickle, fitful spring is so like a woman that nobody really understands her, but the coatmakers at least have learned to live with her.

Without trying to perceive the whys and wherefores of her vacillations, they accept them as a part of her never - dull personality and profit by preparing for them.

Resulting is a greater variety of styles, fabrics and colors than at any other time of the year, for it is not a one - coat season.

Recently the New York Coat and Suit Association aptly demonstrated this with a sampling of spring coat collections as diverse as females themselves.

There are all kinds of silhouettes because there are all types of shapes to the spring dresses and suits that coats are made to cover. Some are eased over flowing, fitted or plumb lines. Others are straight from shoulders to hem with underpinning in front. Some have cascading back fullness like a choir boy's surplice. Some swagger into belted trench types.

Tissue light coats do little more than shield bare arms from too much air conditioning, while warmer but lightweight suedes have shaggy fox collars to burrow into a change in the weather.

Inspiration reaches from the bathroom where a shower robe is the basis for a casual coat design to the exotic spots where the rajah coat and the matador's jacket are captured in feeling.

Powder blue and pink are the supreme colors in spring coat fashion. Other consistently used hues are red, white and blue, alone or patriotically together.

Fabrics are sleek and silken, or crisp and linenlike. Or they are texturally interesting because of twists, bubbles, loops, boucles, souffles, nubs and puffs.

There are all moods of coats, for all moods of woman, and all moods of spring.

Historical Novel Discussed For Review Club

The James Brown home on Auburn was the scene of the bi-monthly meeting of the Review Club when Mrs. Brown served as hostess on Monday. A three-tiered compote held arrangements of yellow fruit and variegated foliage.

Mrs. Claude Smith, president, led the members in reciting the club collect and welcomed Mrs. Calvin Folds as a guest. A bulletin from the Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs was read.

Mrs. George Walker then introduced Mrs. N. R. Spencer who reviewed Elizabeth Jenkins historical novel, "Elizabeth and Leicester." Her narrative review gave the fascinating and enigmatic story of two great people who had grave responsibilities, revealed in a lively yet wholly authentic account of the encounters of these brilliant minds.

At conclusion of the program Mrs. Brown served spiced tea and a dessert course to the guest and members present including Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Spencer, Mrs. Walker, Mrs. James Aycock, Mrs. W. E. Bennett Jr., Mrs. E. P. Cudd, Mrs. Thomas Dansby, Mrs. W. Tom Davis, Mrs. Herschel Gentry Jr., Mrs. Ralph King Jr., Mrs. Robert Lewis, Mrs. J. C. Loftin, Mrs. Craig Morgan and Mrs. Sam Smith.

BABY TREE

As a centerpiece for a baby shower, select a small tree branch, paint it white, blue or pink. Stick it in a crepe paper-covered flower pot. Fill branches with tiny doll objects such as hot water bottles, rattlers, baby doll booties, etc. Tie ends of branches with pink and blue ribbons.

Hemerocallis Club Officers Are Installed

Officers for the ensuing year were installed at the monthly meeting of the Twin City Hemerocallis Club Saturday night in the Agricultural Building in West Monroe.

MRS. DAVID N. BARKER

Miss Joyce Ann Brodie Weds David N. Barker

Central Baptist Church was scene of the ceremony which united in marriage Miss Joyce Ann Brodie and David N. Barker, both of this city, on Saturday, February 16 at 5 p.m. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Brodie of England, Ark., and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Barker, 3211 Gordon Avenue, Monroe.

An arch covered with greenery and white carnations, flanked by baskets of white gladioli and four branched candelabra holding white tapers formed a setting for the double ring ceremony which was performed by Rev. Charles Littleton.

Traditional nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Ronnie Stevens, organist and Ronnie Stevens, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a winter white brocade dress with matching brocade shoes and small veiled hat. She carried a white orchid, encircled with stephanotis and streamers, atop a white Bible.

Mrs. E. R. Lawrence, matron of honor, wore a beige brocade suit with matching accessories and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Mr. Barker attended his son as best man and usher was Jackie Norton.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a navy blue silk linen suit with matching accessories and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Barker, mother of the bridegroom, wore a blue wool suit with accessories to match and orchid corsage.

A reception followed in the social room of the church where the bride's table held a centerpiece of pink carnations and greenery. Miss Ann Andrews presided at the silver punch bowl and Mrs. Sue Brodie, sister-in-law of the bride, served the tiered wedding cake. A white memory candle encircled with greenery graced the table which held the bride's book, attended by Mrs. Doug Williams. Tea girls were Misses Connie Green and Sandra Johnson. Rice bags were distributed by Elizabeth Ann and Tracy Brodie, nieces of the bride. Others assisting with courtesies were Mrs. Anna Lou Norton and Mrs. C. O. Price.

The couple has established a home at 800 McGuire and will continue studies at Northeast Louisiana State College where both are students. The bride is a member of Phi Mu social sorority and Kappa Epsilon pharmaceutical fraternity. Mr. Barker is a member of Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity.

Interior Designer Speaks At Welcome Garden Club

A Washington's birthday theme was carried out by hostesses at the February meeting of the Welcome Garden Club held Monday afternoon in the Westminster Recreation Center.

Hostesses were Mrs. W. R. Laing, Mrs. W. V. Clack, Mrs. Wesley Walters, Mrs. Harry Hipp, Mrs. R. W. Bandy and Mrs. W. T. Ellis.

Mrs. Oscar Harrell presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. V. S. Garnett, and the meeting opened with the Garden Club collect in unison.

Mrs. Harrell introduced Harvey Paige, interior designer, who talked on decorating with color, using a wallpaper or fabric print for the basic color, making several demonstrations matching walls, draperies and carpets in the right tones and harmony.

An arrangement of white carnations interspersed with red hatchets was the focal point for the table from which refreshments were served by the hostesses at conclusion of the afternoon. The bouquet was later taken to Mrs. Garnett, who is convalescing at her home from a serious accident.

Members present in addition to the hostesses were Mrs. Harrell, Mrs. A. K. Christensen, Mrs. J. L. Whipkey, Mrs. Mable Ford, Mrs. W. A. Whitfield Jr., Mrs. K. R. Young, Mrs. S. U. Raby, Mrs. M. W. Montgomery, Mrs. Charles Byrd, Mrs. Jerry Robinson, Mrs. Ed Hislop Jr., Mrs. Luther Branch, Mrs. Lela K. Breard and Mrs. C. C. Lucky.

SHAPE OF SPRING

Softness and slender shaping are bywords of dress, suit and coat collections for Spring. There are overblouses of all lengths riding the midriff, extending into long tunics. There are nautical looks, boy looks, jumpers. Evening wear runs the gamut from the short dinner suit to the long columnar gown, most elegant in silk crepe. The waistline wanders sometimes high and Empire, sometimes natural, sometimes low slung, sometimes not there at all.

MISS JUDITH ANN JONES

Engagement Of Bastrop Couple Revealed At Tea

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Judith Ann Jones to Winifred O'Neal Day Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Winifred Day of Bastrop is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herschell Jones, also of Bastrop.

The wedding will be solemnized April 12 at 6 p.m. in Cherry Ridge Baptist Church with the Rev. Robert White officiating.

The engagement was revealed at an announcement tea given Saturday, February 23 from 3 until 5 p.m. at International House in Bastrop. Hostesses for the event were Mrs. Jay Moore, Mrs. M. P. Weatherly, Mrs. James Meeks, Mrs. Luther Freeland, Mrs. T. W. Leonard, Mrs. George Couch and Mrs. Howard Johnston.

Receiving with the honoree, her mother and the mother of the future bridegroom, were Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Weatherly, Mrs. J. E. Black, grandmother of the bride - elect; Mrs. J. W. Westbrook and Mrs. Luther Day Sr., grandmothers of the prospective bridegroom.

A line arrangement of white Fuji chrysanthemums was placed in the foyer and the guest book table held a white memory candle, based with ivy and white chrysanthemums. Focal point for the tea table was a mass arrangement of white gladioli, chrysanthemums and roses, with white tapers in a silver candelabra.

Mrs. Cecil Lilly and Mrs. Luther Day Jr., presided at the tea and coffee services for the first hour and Mrs. Earl Bennett and Mrs. Jack Gunter poured the second hour. Tea girls were Miss Dianne Day, Miss Cathy Lilly, Mrs. Bruce Hill, Mrs. Whitney Broussard, Mrs. Ed Blankenship, Miss Dianne Jones, Miss Sharon Bennett and Miss Linda Eubanks. Mrs. Homer Burgess and Mrs. Jeptha Butler alternated at the guest book.

Announcement of the forthcoming marriage was made by a tiny cherub within a pink satin heart, proclaiming the wedding date of April 12. Pink streamers from the cherub were attached to an engagement ring. Completing the setting was a nosegay of white roses, symbolizing the wedding bouquet.

Miss Jones is a graduate of Bastrop high school and graduated in January from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in Ruston. Mr. Day graduated from Bastrop high school and attended Louisiana Tech and Northeast Louisiana State College, Monroe. He is presently employed with International Paper Co., in Bastrop, where the couple will establish a home.

MR. AND MRS. BILLY WAYNE FUTCH

Christian Church Scene Of Roach-Smith Nuptials

Twin arrangements of white gladioli decorated the altar of the First Christian church Saturday, February 16 when Miss Alice Louise Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Smith, 300 Pargoud Drive, became the bride of Billy Frank Roach, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Roach of Sterlington.

Rev. John O. Stewart performed the double ring ceremony at 7 p.m. following an organ prelude by Mrs. Harold Shepherd, who also accompanied Mrs. R. R. Wroten, aunt of the bride, as she sang "The Lord's Prayer," and the bridegroom's brother, Jimmy Roach, who sang "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a street-length dress of white brocade, styled with long sleeves and round neckline. Her shoulder length veil was attached to a crown of pearls and she carried a nosegay bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. Robert E. Smith, sister-in-law of the bride, served as matron of honor and wore an emerald green brocade dress. Completing her ensemble was a pillbox of emerald green with pouf of net and a nosegay of large white chrysanthemums.

Clarence Moen of New Orleans, was best man and ushers included Sammy Camp of New Orleans; John Roach, brother of the bridegroom and Robert Smith, brother of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Smith wore a pink silk linen sheath with pearl pink accessories and a white orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a sheath of lilac silk linen with matching accessories and a white orchid.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in Fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table held an arrangement of white stock and carnations in the center of a silver candelabra, with ivy and white roses forming garlands at corners of the table. Mrs. Warren Thomas assisted by Miss Kathy Wroten, cousins of the bride, attended the wedding book. Presiding at the tables were Mrs. M. W. Montgomery, Mrs. R. O. Ware, Mrs. Billie Harrell, Mrs. S. W. Raby and Mrs. A. C. Thurman. Tea girls were Misses Martha Lynn Wroten, Becky Wroten and Linda Kay Willard.

MRS. THOMAS ALBERT FREEMAN

Freeman-Bivens Nuptials Solemnized February 22

The wedding of Miss Emile Jane Bivens and Thomas Albert Freeman, both of Minden, was solemnized Friday, February 22 in the Union Grove Baptist Church at Lillie with Rev. James S. Phillips officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Ione Bivens of Bernice and Chester L. Bivens of Lillie. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Guy Freeman of El Dorado, Ark.

White candles with greenery and baskets of white gladioli decorated the church. Hurricane lamps holding tiny candles lined the pews which were also marked with white satin bows and clusters of wedding bells.

Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. C. L. Nelson, Junction City, Ark., pianist and Mrs. George Travis, Minden, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a white peau de soie sheath gown with detachable train. Medallions of Alencon lace encrusted with seed pearls and iridescent sequins, cascaded down front of the skirt and encircled the train. She carried a white orchid, encircled with cascades of stephanotis.

Mrs. Jackie Greene of Lillie, matron of honor, wore a sheath of American Beauty rose silk linen, with matching pillbox and nosetip veil. She carried a single long - stemmed American Beauty rose. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Susan Brooks, Minden; Miss Margaret Fletcher of Jena, who also lighted the candles, and Miss Laurine Strother, Minden. MISS JUDITH ANN JONES

Engagement Of Bastrop Couple Revealed At Tea

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Judith Ann Jones to Winifred O'Neal Day Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Winifred Day of Bastrop is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herschell Jones, also of Bastrop.

The wedding will be solemnized April 12 at 6 p.m. in Cherry Ridge Baptist Church with the Rev. Robert White officiating.

The engagement was revealed at an announcement tea. given Saturday, February 23 from 3 until 5 p.m. at International House in Bastrop. Hostesses for the event were Mrs. Jay Moore, Mrs. M. P. Weatherly, Mrs. James Meeks, Mrs. Luther Freeland, Mrs. T. W. Leonard, Mrs. George Couch and Mrs. Howard Johnston.

Receiving with the honoree, her mother and the mother of the future bridegroom, were Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Weatherly, Mrs. J. E. Black, grandmother of the bride - elect; Mrs. J. W. Westbrook and Mrs. Luther Day Sr., grandmothers of the prospective bridegroom.

A line arrangement of white Fuji chrysanthemums was placed in the foyer and the guest book table held a white memory candle, based with ivy and white chrysanthemums. Focal point for the tea table was a mass arrangement of white gladioli, chrysanthemums and roses, with white tapers in a silver candelabra.

Mrs. Cecil Lilly and Mrs. Luther Day Jr., presided at the tea and coffee services for the first hour and Mrs. Earl Bennett and Mrs. Jack Gunter poured the second hour. Tea girls were Miss Dianne Day, Miss Cathy Lilly, Mrs. Bruce Hill, Mrs. Whitney Broussard, Mrs. Ed Blankenship, Miss Dianne Jones, Miss Sharon Bennett and Miss Linda Eubanks. Mrs. Homer Burgess and Mrs. Jeptha Butler alternated at the guest book.

Announcement of the forthcoming marriage was made by a tiny cherub within a pink satin heart, proclaiming the wedding date of April 12. Pink streamers from the cherub were attached to an engagement ring. Completing the setting was a nosegay of white roses, symbolizing the wedding bouquet.

Miss Jones is a graduate of Bastrop high school and graduated in January from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in Ruston. Mr. Day graduated from Bastrop high school and attended Louisiana Tech and Northeast Louisiana State College, Monroe. He is presently employed with International Paper Co., in Bastrop, where the couple will establish a home.

Christian Church Scene Of Roach-Smith Nuptials

Twin arrangements of white gladioli decorated the altar of the First Christian church Saturday, February 16 when Miss Alice Louise Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Smith, 300 Pargoud Drive, became the bride of Billy Frank Roach, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Roach of Sterlington.

Rev. John O. Stewart performed the double ring ceremony at 7 p.m. following an organ prelude by Mrs. Harold Shepherd, who also accompanied Mrs. R. R. Wroten, aunt of the bride, as she sang "The Lord's Prayer," and the bridegroom's brother, Jimmy Roach, who sang "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a street-length dress of white brocade, styled with long sleeves and round neckline. Her shoulder length veil was attached to a crown of pearls and she carried a nosegay bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. Robert E. Smith, sister-in-law of the bride, served as matron of honor and wore an emerald green brocade dress. Completing her ensemble was a pillbox of emerald green with pouf of net and a nosegay of large white chrysanthemums.

Clarence Moen of New Orleans, was best man and ushers included Sammy Camp of New Orleans; John Roach, brother of the bridegroom and Robert Smith, brother of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Smith wore a pink silk linen sheath with pearl pink accessories and a white orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a sheath of lilac silk linen with matching accessories and a white orchid.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in Fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table held an arrangement of white stock and carnations in the center of a silver candelabra, with ivy and white roses forming garlands at corners of the table. Mrs. Warren Thomas assisted by Miss Kathy Wroten, cousins of the bride, attended the wedding book. Presiding at the tables were Mrs. M. W. Montgomery, Mrs. R. O. Ware, Mrs. Billie Harrell, Mrs. S. W. Raby and Mrs. A. C. Thurman. Tea girls were Misses Martha Lynn Wroten, Becky Wroten and Linda Kay Willard.

Embroideries Sweeten Spring

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

So important are embroidery trim for spring that the Schiffli Award established a new one for millinery this year. Vincent Harmik won it, and their hats certainly are lavished with Schiffli trims.

Many a dress, blouse or hat has French embroidered ribbons for its only trim. Eyelet sleeves in white spark black crepe cocktail dresses. Lace yokes on lingerie are re-embroidered.

The embroidery revival is part of the ladylike look whose principle is "less is more." Trim other has to be a single bold accent like the jeweled pin, or it has to be delicate and positively snobbish with quality.

Embroidery answers the second need. Even leather has it, especially supple suede skimmer dresses, bound with embroidered ribbon.

White Permissible For Re-Marriage; Omit Veil

By CELESTINE SIBLEY
Women's News Service

Well, one way or another it looks like it's going to be a bright year for what we, in the country, call widder women. Some newspapers are printing a new series on how to get a man after you're 40 — and a new bridal consultant has just set up shop in Allentown, Pa., for the express purpose of instructing the girls how to get him to the altar in the most approved style after he's hooked.

After I rallied from the impact of a little brochure which landed on my desk reading "So You're Planning to Remarry ..." I read with interest a note from Miss Yvonne Burbage about this new service for predatory — I mean prospective second- time brides.

It's the world's first bridal fashion counselling service for widows and divorcees planning to remarry. Miss Burbage burbled — a "daring and revolutionary new idea" conceived by an Allentown merchant who apparently has a heart full of sympathy for the uncertain, insecure females who have been intimidated into thinking that a second marriage ceremony has to be a stark, if not sneaky thing.

On the contrary, say these new consultants, the second-time bride can have a wedding as merry (you'll pardon me) a marriage bell, if they but knew it.

You can wear white. It doesn't signify maidenly purity, as most of us supposed, but is a custom descended from the early Saxon days when the poorer bride dressed for the ceremony in a plain white robe to denote that she brought nothing with her to her marriage and hence her husband was in no way responsible for her debts. (If you don't have debts maybe you want to reconsider about the marriage, huh?)

You might want to examine your own conscience about "something blue," which symbolizes purity, fidelity and love but you better leave off the veil, symbolizing virginity and maidenly modesty.

Otherwise, according to Miss Burbage's little booklet, you can have most of the trappings that you had the first time, including rings, music, attendants, reception and honeymoon.

Of course I wish these altruists well in their new endeavor to instruct and encourage widows but I really can't imagine that the need is great for such supportive action.

A lady who has traveled this path before isn't going to be terribly concerned about these little rites and ceremonies. Her mind is already leaping ahead to major matters, like how to keep peace in his family and hers and enjoy having a man in the house again without sacrificing her new - found freedom and independence.

Now a book or a bureau on THAT subject would really be worthwhile.

Chatham Man Claims Bride In Alabama

The wedding of Miss Helanne Rose Pearsall, Huntsville, Alabama, to Wayne Dee Jordan of Chatham was solemnized February 16 at 10 a.m. in Visitation Church at Huntsville. Father John Igoe performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester J. Pearsall of Huntsville and Mr. Jordan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin D. Jordan, Chatham.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of silk - faced peau de soie, trimmed with hand-clipped Chantilly lace embroidered with seed pearls and sequins. The fitted bodice featured a Sabrina neckline and three-quarter sleeves and the skirt, with deep tucked tiers, shadowed with lace, extended into a chapel train. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a Swedish crown frosted with sequins and pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses, phalaenopsis orchids and freesia.

Mrs. Ralph C. Pearsall, of Huntsville, matron of honor, wore a gold satin brocade model with short matching veil attached to a gold satin headband and carried a bouquet of talisman roses.

Dan Woolverton of Tennessee Colony, Texas, served as best man and ushers were Ray Maddy, Raymondville, Tex., and Dan Buchanan of Big Stone Gap, Va.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception at Huntsville Country Club. After a wedding trip to points in the South the couple will be at home in Huntsville. For travel the bride wore an olive green linen ensemble with beige and orange accessories. Mr. Jordan is with the Army Missile Command

MISS KATHLEEN BLOOMER'S engagement and approaching marriage to Roy Lee Duffey, son of F. D. Duffey and the late Mrs. Duffey of Monroe, is announced by her mother, Mrs. Maxine Bloomer, also of this city. The wedding will take place March 15 at 7:30 p. m. in the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. A. R. Gilliland, with Rev. James T. Horton officiating.

Embroideries Sweeten Spring

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

So important are embroidery trims for spring that the Schiffli Awards established a new one for millinery this year. Vincent-Harmik won it, and their hats certainly are lavished with Schiffli trims.

Many a dress, blouse or hat has French embroidered ribbons for its only trim. Eyelet sleeves in white spark black crepe cocktail dresses. Lace yokes on lingerie are re - embroidered.

The embroidery revival is part of the ladylike look whose principle is "less is more." Trim either has to be a single bold accent, like the jeweled pin, or it has to be delicate and positively snobbish with quality.

Embroidery answers the second need. Even leather has it, especially supple suede skimmer dresses, bound with embroidered ribbon.

White Permissible For Re-Marriage; Omit Veil

By CELESTINE SIBLEY
Women's News Service

Well, one way or another it looks like it's going to be a bright year for what we, in the country, call widder women. Some newspapers are printing a new series on how to get a man after you're 40 — and a new bridal consultant has just set up shop in Allentown, Pa., for the express purpose of instructing the girls how to get him to the altar in the most approved style after he's hooked.

After I rallied from the impact of a little brochure which landed on my desk reading, "So You're Planning to Remarry . . ." I read with interest a note from Miss Yvonne Burbage about this new service for predatory —I mean prospective second- time brides.

It's the world's first bridal fashion counselling service for widows and divorcees planning to remarry. Miss Burbage burbled — a "daring and revolutionary new idea" conceived by an Allentown merchant who apparently has a heart full of sympathy for the uncertain, insecure females who have been intimidated into thinking that a second marriage ceremony has to be a stark, if not sneaky thing.

On the contrary, say these new consultants, the second-time bride can have a wedding as merry (you'll pardon me) a marriage bell, if they but knew it.

You can wear white. It doesn't signify maidenly purity, as most of us supposed, but is a custom descended from the early Saxon days when the poorer bride dressed for the ceremony in a plain white robe to denote that she brought nothing with her to her marriage and hence her husband was in no way responsible for her debts. (If you don't have debts maybe you want to reconsider about the marriage, huh?)

You might want to examine your own conscience about "something blue," which symbolizes purity, fidelity and love but you better leave off the veil, symbolizing virginity and maidenly modesty.

Otherwise, according to Miss Burbage's little booklet, you can have most of the trappings that you had the first time, including rings, music, attendants, reception and honeymoon.

Of course I wish these altruists well in their new endeavor to instruct and encourage widows but I really can't imagine that the need is great for such supportive action.

A lady who has traveled this path before isn't going to be terribly concerned about these little rites and ceremonies. Her mind is already leaping ahead to major matters, like how to keep peace in his family and hers and enjoy having a man in the house again without sacrificing her new - found freedom and independence.

Now a book or a bureau on THAT subject would really be worthwhile.

Headaches Strike Large Percent Of Population

By SHIRLEY HENIN

NEW YORK, (WNS) — As many as 65 per cent of all Americans may be suffering from headaches at any one time, according to "Patterns of Disease," a professional publication for physicians.

Doctors estimate the number of headache victims who suffer in unison is somewhere between 8 and 65 per cent of the population, Patterns researchers found.

Asked whether the figure of 65 per cent seemed extravagant, one doctor replied:

"Stop and think. Did your head hurt just a little bit today?"

The wide range of estimates, he pointed out, shows that the whole matter of headaches is subjective. When does a pain in the head become a headache? The question isn't always easy to answer.

Patterns' findings are based to a large extent on questionnaires completed by 3,980 physicians.

Most of these doctors believe headache is not related to occupation. Almost four out of five reported that headache occurs more frequently among women than men, and 85 per cent said tension, or nervous, headache is the type most frequently encountered in their practice.

The migraine headache, to which an estimated 5 to 10 per cent of the population is subject, was ranked No. 2 among head pains. Fewer than 1 per cent of headaches about which patients complain to doctors stem from illnesss which can be considered life - threatening.

Tension headaches are related to emotional conflict, according to Patterns, and 40 per cent of the time are accompanied by feelings of depression or symptoms suggestiong depression. These headaches rarely last less than an hour; they may persist for weeks.

Migraine headaches were found to occur two to three times more frequently among women than men. Doctors described their migraine patients as "intense, driving, perfectionistic and compulsive," and said they "tend to be overly conscientious and meticulous and have difficulty expressing their aggressive feelings." Heredity was found to be a factor in more than 60 per cent of cases.

Of the nearly 4,000 doctors surveyed, 3,034 believe there is a "migraine personality" with these traits: sensitive to criticism, prone to fears and doubts, fastidious, inflexible and ambitious.

Migraine attacks, physicians agreed, follow a three - phase pattern. During the first phase, bright flashes of light before the eyes, blurred vision, drowsiness, nervousness, vertigo and sensitivity to light may warn of the headache to come.

In the second stage, head pain is felt on one side of the head, then perhaps on both sides, there is loss of appetite, nausea, vomiting and sensitivity to light.

In the final stage, some tension and pain remain in the neck and head muscles, and patient is exhausted and drowsy.

Patterns cites one study in which, of 1,296 headache patients, 43 per cent were found to have elevated blood pressure. However, the study found, factors other than high blood pressure probably influence the onset of headache in these patients.

The researchers found that headaches brought on by release of histamine are more severely painful than tension and migraine headaches. They strike on one side of the head, generally the right, and involve the eye, surrounding skull area, temple, upper jawbone and occasionally the shoulder. On the affected side the eye tears and becomes congested, and there is nasal stuffiness.

Migraine headaches attack more women than men, generally between the ages of 15 and 30. Histamine headaches attack more men, generally between 25 and 50. Tension headaches attack men and women impartially.

Resort Season Favors White

No matter what the weather, all forecasts point to a white cotton resort season, reports the National Cotton Council.

White cottons cover the fashion front with designers featuring these fabrics in such diversified clothes are sportswear, coats and evening wear.

Pure white tones from bleached to ivory as well as white with color are high - lighted. Whitened pastels that look chalky and prints on white backgrounds indicate the wide scope of this color favorite.

Cotton pique in deep waffle or sculptured novely weaves, petit point pique, cotton moire and embroidered cotton with the look of matelasse are outstanding in solid white. These show up in full - skirted dance dresses, slender tunic ensembles, dressy raincoats and elegant at-home outfits.

For the sporting set there are cotton duck, sailcloth, terry, poplin, and knits all showing up to advantage in sparkling white. Sports separates in these include all types of pants from bell bottom slacks to the newly important short shorts, sailing parkas, golf jackets, beachcoats, skirts and tops.

In prints the favorite combination is white and black. Huge paisleys, line drawn florals and abstract designs add drama to the fashion picture.

Color Choice Unlimited For Modern Room Decor

There is no limit to the choice of colors for a modern room color scheme, says the Home Furnishings Industry Committee. Some combinations of colors create a more modern effect than others. Certain colors are associated more closely with furniture styles. Deep red velvet seems to belong to Victorian.

Moderns tend to choose sharp, vivid contrast for room schemes, commented Virginia Pegram, director of the Committee. But even the most ardent devotees of abstract paintings apparently have taken a cue from some recent art collections where soft greys and pastels predominate, accented by a vivid spash, she said.

White is still a popular color for walls of modern rooms, it is contrasted with dark - bright tones in upholstery. This may be practical. But it creates a pleasing contrast.

Light tones for walls also help to make a room seem larger. Against them moderns seem to like rich shades which create a warm feeling.

Most modern room color schemes involve fewer colors and those in large areas, than is often true for traditional style rooms. One such room recently seen in California, employed pale greyish green walls, lemon yellow for all upholstered furniture, white, splashed with gold for curtains, olive green for floor covering. The natural rich brown of the wood furniture accented the entire scheme.

Culottes Fit Mood Of Sportswear

The secret of success in casual sportswear this spring lies in easy uncluttered simplicity. If there's any pronounced silhouette it's one that shapes an easy flare or a hint of the shift, with emphasis on fabrics and casual styling.

Culottes, for example, fit this mood, and there are many variations to be seen. Girls everywhere like the comfort and more figure-flattering ways of the culotte look, in contrast to figure-hugging bermuda shorts seen in seasons past. Culottes can be work for the most active sports, and still look feminine, and flattering to the wearer. Most popular is the pleated culotte skirt cut in a just-above-the-knee length.

Elsewhere, there's a feeling of Early Americana, a look of the country in other casual fashions. A cobbler's work apron, for example, provides inspiration for the return of the jumper. Bobbie Brooks designs one in a denim-looking Arnel blended fabric, with an A-line gored skirt, brass buttons and handy pockets. And, there are flared wrap shirts that are worn with tablecloth plaid shirts.

Fabrics for these casual fashions are in keeping with a relaxed mood, for they're designed in wash-and-wear miracle fibers of Arnel, Dacron and Vycron, combined with cotton, produced in a whole new range of blended textures.

Sandbox Set In High Style

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Helen Lee, the high fashion designer for the sandbox set, has gone all out for simple comfort. Her spring collections, both under her own name, and for Alyssa, uses four shapes: high-waisted jumper, suit-jumper with jacket, a coat-front dress, and the bouffant skirt for dress-up.

Except for party dresses, all shapes fall straight and loose, with no waistline fit or belting. No petticoats go beneath. The look is almost smock-like, but inverted pleats keep the line crisp.

The look is one of rich - little - girl simplicity, and it is done in rich - little- girl linen. Colors include curry, bright blue, crimson and pink, or prints are boldly red on white.

There is an almost complete absence of trims, even on the party dresses, which are touched only with floral ribbon. Most high-fashion look is the unfitted over-blouse over a box-pleated skirt.

Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

I think it is amazing what modern women accomplish and the grace with which they do it. The woman in the home needs to be a psychologist, a diplomat, a nutritionist, a hostess, a social secretary, a cook, a tireless worker and a mannequin, all rolled into one.

It is usually she who writes the thank you note and the letter of condolence. It is she who writes regularly to the grown children, who visits the sick, who reads the bed-time story, who bandages the cut toe, and who sees to the welfare, health and happiness of her family in a hundred different ways.

It is true that she has many conveniences and mechanical devices which her feminine forbears did not have but she has also accepted many obligations outside her home which were not required of a woman before. She is active in the civic life of her community. And, she is less apt to have help with her housework than women before her.

In the future they may be machines which answer the telephone, get up the laundry, do the mending, plan the meals, do the marketing and cope with the many small crises which constantly develop in a home and within a family, but there are no such machines today.

On top of all her work, a woman is supposed to be lovely looking and well groomed. She often puts in a day which would slay the average man but if she is to perform her most important duty she must remain good humored and tolerant, charming and calm. It is her privilege and most important function to smoothe the waters of life for her family.

I have always thought that the woman in the home sets the atmos here of the home, more than any other member of the family. Of course, there are exceptions, but as a general rule I believe this to be true. When the lady of the house goes haywire, so does everyone and everything else.

The children cry, her husband becomes either depressed or irritable, the cake falls and the dog fights with the cat.

My thought is that a woman needs to get away from it all once in a while. No matter how much she loves her job and her home, she and her family will profit if she has short periodic breaks. Many women never have a vacation even when on a so-called vacation.

If you would like to have my leaflet, "The Married Woman," which gives you some hints about household organization, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 62 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

They strike on one side of the head, generally the right, and involve the eye, surrounding skull area, temple, upper jawbone and occasionally the shoulder. On the affected side the eye tears and becomes congested, and there is nasal stuffiness.

Migraine headaches attack more women than men, generally between the ages of 15 and 30. Histamine headaches attack more men, generally between 25 and 50. Tension headaches attack men and women impartially.

Resort Season Favors White

No matter what the weather, all forecasts point to a white cotton resort season, reports the National Cotton Council.

White cottons cover the fashion front with designers featuring these fabrics in such diversified clothes are sportswear, coats and evening wear.

Pure white tones from bleached to ivory as well as white with color are high - lighted. Whitened pastels that look chalky and prints on white backgrounds indicate the wide scope of this color favorite.

Cotton pique in deep waffle or sculptured novely weaves, petit point pique, cotton moire and embroidered cotton with the look of matelasse are outstanding in solid white. These show up in full - skirted dance dresses, slender tunic ensembles, dressy raincoats and elegant at-home outfits.

For the sporting set there are cotton duck, sailcloth, terry, poplin, and knits all showing up to advantage in sparkling white. Sports separates in these include all types of pants from bell bottom slacks to the newly important short shorts, sailing parkas, golf jackets, beachcoats, skirts and tops.

In prints the favorite combination is white and black. Huge paisleys, line drawn florals and abstract designs add drama to the fashion picture.

Color Choice Unlimited For Modern Room Decor

There is no limit to the choice of colors for a modern room color scheme, says the Home Furnishings Industry Committee. Some combinations of colors create a more modern effect than others. Certain colors are associated more closely with furniture styles. Deep red velvet seems to belong to Victorian.

Moderns tend to choose sharp, vivid contrast for room schemes, commented Virginia Pegram, director of the Committee. But even the most ardent devotees of abstract paintings apparently have taken a cue from some recent art collections where soft greys and pastels predominate, accented by a vivid spash, she said.

White is still a popular color for walls of modern rooms, it is contrasted with dark - bright tones in upholstery. This may be practical. But it creates a pleasing contrast.

Light tones for walls also help to make a room seem larger. Against them moderns seem to like rich shades which create a warm feeling.

Most modern room color schemes involve fewer colors and those in large areas, than is often true for traditional style rooms. One such room recently seen in California, employed pale greyish green walls, lemon yellow for all upholstered furniture, white, splashed with gold for curtains, olive green for floor covering. The natural rich brown of the wood furniture accented the entire scheme.

Culottes Fit Mood Of Sportswear

The secret of success in casual sportswear this spring lies in easy uncluttered simplicity. If there's any pronounced silhouette it's one that shapes an easy flare or a hint of the shift, with emphasis on fabrics and casual styling.

Culottes, for example, fit this mood, and there are many variations to be seen. Girls everywhere like the comfort and more figure-flattering ways of the culotte look, in contrast to figure-hugging bermuda shorts seen in seasons past. Culottes can be work for the most active sports, and still look feminine, and flattering to the wearer. Most popular is the pleated culotte skirt cut in a just-above-the-knee length.

Elsewhere, there's a feeling of Early Americana, a look of the country in other casual fashions. A cobbler's work apron, for example provides inspiration for the return of the jumper. Bobbie Brooks designs one in a denim-looking Arnel blended fabric, with an A-line gored skirt, brass buttons and handy pockets. And, there are flared wrap shirts that are worn with tablecloth plaid shirts.

Fabrics for these casual fashions are in keeping with a relaxed mood, for they're designed in wash-and-wear miracle fibers of Arnel, Dacron and Vycron, combined with cotton, produced in a whole new range of blended textures.

Sandbox Set In High Style

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Helen Lee, the high fashion designer for the sandbox set, has gone all out for simple comfort. Her spring collections, both under her own name, and for Alyssa, uses four shapes: high-waisted jumper, suit-jumper with jacket, a coat-front dress, and the bouffant skirt for dress-up.

Except for party dresses, all shapes fall straight and loose, with no waistline fit or belting. No petticoats go beneath. The look is almost smock-like, but inverted pleats keep the line crisp.

The look is one of rich - little - girl simplicity, and it is done in rich - little- girl linen. Colors include curry, bright blue, crimson and pink, or prints are boldly red on white.

There is an almost complete absence of trims, even on the party dresses, which are touched only with floral ribbon. Most high-fashion look is the unfitted overblouse over a box-pleated skirt.

Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

I think it is amazing what modern women accomplish and the grace with which they do it. The woman in the home needs to be a psychologist, a diplomat, a nutritionist, a hostess, a social secretary, a cook, a tireless worker and a mannequin, all rolled into one.

It is usually she who writes the thank you note and the letter of condolence. It is she who writes regularly to the grown children, who visits the sick, who reads the bed-time story, who bandages the cut toe, and who sees to the welfare, health and happiness of her family in a hundred different ways.

It is true that she has many conveniences and mechanical devices which her feminine forbears did not have but she has also accepted many obligations outside her home which were not required of a woman before. She is active in the civic life of her community. And, she is less apt to have help with her housework than women before her.

In the future they may be machines which answer the telephone, get up the laundry, do the mending, plan the meals, do the marketing and cope with the many small crises which constantly develop in a home and within a family, but there are no such machines today.

On top of all her work, a woman is supposed to be lovely looking and well groomed. She often puts in a day which would slay the average man but if she is to perform her most important duty she must remain good humored and tolerant, charming and calm. It is her privilege and most important function to smoothe the waters of life for her family.

I have always thought that the woman in the home sets the atmosphere of the home, more than any other member of the family. Of course, there are exceptions, but as a general rule I believe this to be true. When the lady of the house goes haywire, so does everyone and everything else.

The children cry, her husband becomes either depressed or irritable, the cake falls and the dog fights with the cat.

My thought is that a woman needs to get away from it all once in a while. No matter how much she loves her job and her home, she and her family will profit if she has short periodic breaks. Many women never have a vacation even when on a so-called vacation.

If you would like to have my leaflet, "The Married Woman," which gives you some hints about household organization, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 62 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Flower Show Is Colorful

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Dr. John Wright, professor of horticulture at Louisiana Tech, Ruston, brought a wonderful program on flower arranging to the T.V. audience and the Garden Center last Wednesday.

Two ladies were very helpful in making this show a colorful success — they furnished the flowers and, I might add, flowers that are hard to find at present, camellias.

Mrs. W. L. Moseley and Mrs. Woodrow Hathorn were so wonderful to share their prized, scarce blossoms with all of us. Dr. Wright used them in such a clever and artistic manner that each blossom had its place of importance in the eight designs displayed on the show. By using driftwood, a few florist glads, pussy willow, and budding branches for line materials, the camellias were used as the focal flower.

For filler in the designs Dr. Wright used the small yellow daffodils that are the early blooming type. These are just starting to bloom. Mrs. Moseley gave these from her yard. Mrs. Mildred Swift brought some from her yard. So, you see, regardless of the extreme cold, we always find flowers from our friends. Hope you enjoyed seeing them. These arrangements were so inspiring, a real promise of spring, too.

FLOWER HOLDER

Dr. Wright displayed a fascinating flower holder made by P. W. Parker. This holder is made of solid brass wire. Each curled wire holds a test tube as a water container for each stem. The stems branch off from a small tripod stand. The stand could be used in a large bowl where flowers are to be arranged, as a holder for short - stemmed flowers giving height. This would be ideal for camellias, roses, gardenias and many other short stemmed flowers. This holder would be very attractive used alone as a container for these lovely specimen blooms that we would like to show off, perhaps on the coffee table or the dining room table or buffet. There are three sizes that are on display at the garden center now. Come by to see them.

While you read this article I would like to remind you of the camellia show that is being held at Ruston by the Men's Camellia Society there. It started Saturday to go through Sunday. The show is being held at the Baptist Student Center at Tech. It may not be too late for you to attend. From one of Dr. John Wright's articles, "There is Beauty in Line, Form and Pattern."

"Only the color blind and the most insensitive can fail to appreciate the beauty in the color and texture of a flower petal, but many of us need guidance in developing our appreciation for line, form and pattern in plant material.

"There is positive beauty in bare branches and trunks when plants are without leaves or flowers. This beauty may be in lines that form curves or angles or the beauty may be in their relationship to each other as they form patterns against a bright sky. The beauty may be in the shape or outline of the entire plant.

NOT LIMITED

"Beauty of line, form and pattern is not limited to deciduous trees and shrubs, but may also be observed in evergreens as well. Many of the conifers have lovely lines in their branches and form beautiful silhouettes against the sky to reveal quieting symmetrical forms.

Contemporary landscape designers prize the pecan, the crape myrtle, old pfitzer junipers, large wax leaf ligustrum and many other plants for line and pattern interest in their trunks and branches.

"No one would suggest that we give up color and texture or that we minimize their use in any way . . . we would only encourage the broadening of our appreciation to include these also worthy elements of design, line, form and pattern. Have you planted your magnolia soulangeana yet?

Next Wednesday watch for another garden club program on T.V. and at the Garden Center. The Highland Park Garden Club of Monroe will have the program. Mrs. P. L. Pace is president of the club.

Here's the Answer

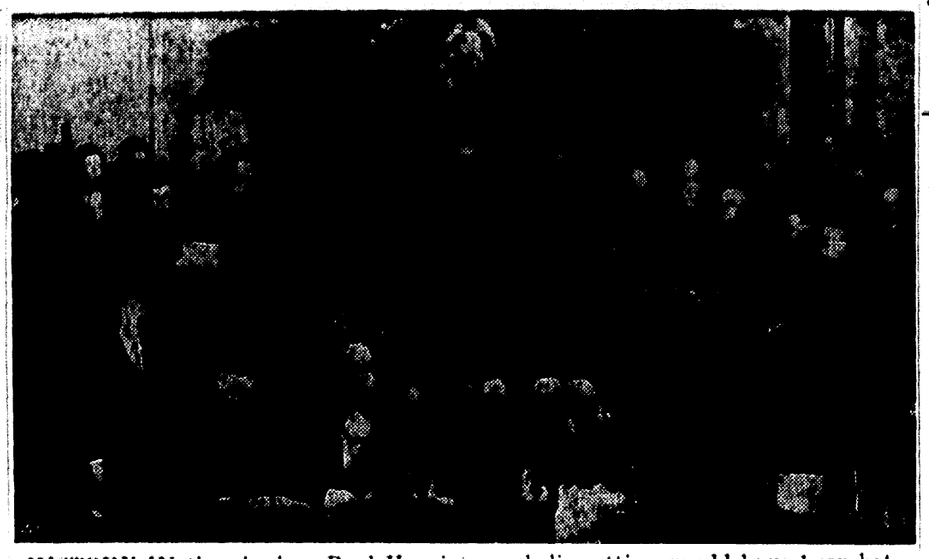
By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

QUESTION: I bought some exterior house paint recently. I intend to get to work on painting the outside of my house in early spring. The cans of paint have the words "self-cleaning" on them. Can you tell me what they mean?

ANSWER: We'll have to express some surprise at hearing that you didn't find out what this meant before buying the paint. Self-cleaning paints go through a chalking process in the months or years after application. The rate of chalfing is determined by the mixture of ingredients. Dirt on the surface of the house is washed away with the chalk, renewing the fresh look of the paint.

There are some cases, however, where self-cleaning paint is not always ideal; as, for instance, where the mixture of rain and chalk sliding down the outside walls of the house might discolor metalwork or other finishes. This would occur where the chalking of the exterior paint has become excessive, generally a sign that the time for repainting is close at hand.

Incidentally, many persons make the mistake of using self-cleaning exterior house paint on wooden furniture that is kept outdoors. The result: after a period of time, when chalking begins, persons sitting on chairs or benches find white smudges on their clothing.



HISTORY IN the signing. Paul Henri Spaak, Belgium's prime minister, places the first signature on the North Atlantic Treaty, April 4, 1949, in Washington, D.C. A simpler, dignified symbolic setting would have been better than this background clutter of fronds and flowers. Historic events could use a qualified photo director.

Tree Types To Plant Discussed

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

As we head toward spring, and thoughts turn toward tree planting, give serious consideration to selections that will best suit your needs.

When we faced such a project, we decided on mixed growth. Of course your climate and the size of your lot must influence your choices. You will want flowering varities, evergreens, hardwoods and some that will grow more rapidly than others.

The larger trees, such as maple, oak, spruce or pine generally should be planted in the more spacious rear areas. Flowering types such as crab apples, dogwood, redbud, golden rain and English hawthorne should adorn fruit areas where you and passerby may enjoy the color.

Many species of trees are available in dwarf and semi-dwarf size that are more advantageous for small lots.

Remember that if you plant too many trees or shurbs in a small area you will have a thinning job later.

GUIDE

Scientists have banded together to prepare a weather information guide for gardeners in various areas, based on probabilities.

The chart tells gardeners the chances of killing trosts at specific dates in specific locations.

Many gardeners have their own safe - planting theories. Some rely on the influence of the moon. Others are guided by fixed holidays. They plant peas on St. Patrick's Day and tomatoes on Memorial Day. Others rely on their own experiences over the years.

Representatives of 13 agricultural experiment stations, the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Weather Bureau served on the technical committee that made the new study of low - temperature probabilities. Contact your state agricultural experiment station to determine whether the information is available for your area.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Fourteen years ago, I wrote a column which said:

"Congress, please pass another law! Make it mandatory that a qualified director of photography be consulted whenever an historic event is to be photographed. An amendment of such law shall order said director to abolish all fronds, flowers and frippery from the background of aforementioned historic event."

What bothered me at the time was a photograph of the signing of the North Atlantic Pact in Washington, D.C. It was a historic occasion, certain to be viewed around the world and to find a place in the archives. But the profusion of fronds, flowers and flower pots behind the signers and the important representatives of various countries was distracting and disturbing.

"The event symbolized the unity of the 12 signatory countries," I pointed out. "How important then that the photo have at least pictorial unity."

LESSON NEEDED

"The picture showed that some official planner needed a lesson in simplicity. It's the same lesson that all camera beginners should learn once they know which button to press. Backgrounds and accessories are subordinate to the center of interest, so they should be kept as simple as possible — or even nonexistant."

Historic events can be seen by the world's millions only through pictures taken at those events. To make those pictures forceful and effective, the setting should be simple, dignified and symbolic. Anything else in the picture area that is extraneous or distracting should be eliminated.

Through the years, that thought has popped up in various ways. The subject comes up for discussion again in the current March issue of U.S. Camera in an article on "Photography in the White House."

PROPOSAL

Ed Hannigan of U.S. Camera proposed that an assistant press secretary for photography be appointed on the presidential staff with the responsibility of handling all White House photographic problems.

The suggestion sounded useful to Pierre Salinger, President Kennedy's press secretary, but he added that there are no funds available for such a post at this time.

Surely a small sum spent to insure better photographic coverage of our president's official actions could be a worthwhile investment for posterity's sake. But at least the idea is still alive and getting some attention and perhaps we're getting closer to the day when there will be an official Secretary for Photography. Cast my vote for the motion.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Wild Onions Are Problem

By WILLIAN LANIER HUNT

There is nothing that defaces a lawn or garden more than wild onions. The tufts of silvery green begin to show up in late winter and get bigger and bigger as the warm weather comes on.

As we have noted before in the column, the main difficulty in trying to eliminate wild onions by digging the bulbs out by hand, clump by clump, lies in the fact that the onions may well "out-smart" you.

In each clump, there are very tiny bulblets that lie flat against the round bulbs. These bulblets have no roots and are encased in a hard covering. When you remove the clump of bulbs, unless you take it up with dirt all around it, the bulblets will fall off right in the hole from which the clump was dug.

CONTROL DIFFICULT

You cannot kill onions by merely cutting or pulling the tops off because a new set of leaves will soon emerge to replace the ones you removed. Even mowing a lawn in winter seems to merely subdue but not to destroy onions. Since, in each clump there are some bulbs which will grow in spring and others which will not grow until fall, you are doomed to have two big crops of onions each year until you eliminate them.

The only reliable way to get rid of wild onions is with weed-killers. Several of the commercial brands will do this effectively. Get at it before other plants begin to emerge. Where onions are growing in your flower beds, it is best to spray each clump separately so that you will not kill valuable perennials in the same bed. Ask your seed store for one of the weed killers made specifically to kill wild onions or garlic.

NEED FORETHOUGHT

Most of us do not think about weed killing until warm weather comes around, and that is probably the reason why we let onions and chickweed, another winter weed, get ahead of us. There is nothing more tedious than pulling out chickweed from a bed of precious plants. Your columnist uses bone meal as a top dressing for beds of tiny bulbs.

Almost any fertilizer that is even slightly on the sweet side or neutral in reaction seems to encourage chickweed. Consequently, this pest has to be eliminated every year.

It will delight you to see how easily chickweed is eliminated with weed killer. If you have had the experience of digging, digging, digging down with your fingers to get every vestige of the tough little central thread that feeds each rosette of chickweed, you will reach for the weed killer in February. In cool weather weed killers take a little longer to do the job, but they will kill chickweed in about a week.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

If the existing finish on a wooden floor is in poor condition, only a complete resurfacing job can prepare it for a new finish. It's the kind of home project you can undertake yourself. But don't expect it to be one of those fast, get-rid-of-it tasks you can accomplish in a couple of hours. It's going to take, at the very least, two days — and more often than not, several days, especially if one of the slower drying finishes is used.

You'll need two sanding machines. The large, drum-type sander will handle the bulk of the floor. A small edger will handle areas next to the walls where the larger sander will not reach. These can be rented by the day. There's no use renting them and then letting them remain idle a day or two while you complete the necessary preparations. Make arrangements ahead of time for the renting, but specify that you do not want the machines until such-and-such a time.

PREPARATIONS

The preparations start with the moving of as much furniture out of the room as possible; preferably all of it. After that comes a close inspection of the floor for defects. Especially look for protruding nail heads. Drive those below the surface with a hammer and punch and fill the holes with wood putty or plastic wood. Be sure to put enough putty into the holes so that a tiny bit of it is higher than the surrounding surface. The putty often shrinks while drying and, besides, the sanding machine will smooth down the excess.

Where there is any squeaking or buckling, drive in two-inch finishing nails, about an inch and a half apart and slanted toward each other at the tips. Threaded nails have extra holding power.

STARTER

In using the machine, start with a coarse sandpaper, then a medium and then a fine. Always be sure the machine is in motion before the drum is lowered to the floor. And always raise the drum before stopping the machine. The sander should never be kept in one spot while the motor is on.

The edger will sand most areas which the large machine can not reach, but sometimes even the edger will not get properly into corners. In that case, it will be necessary to take off the old finish in corners with a varnish remover and a putty knife. Follow directions on how long to allow the remover to stand before scraping.

You can use any one of many floor finishes, depending on what kind of appearance is sought. If you like a gloss, the choice usually is between varnish and shellac.

Stamp News

George Washington — who appeared on the first U. S. postage stamp and many other issues since 1847 — is now being replaced on the new regular 1 - cent postage stamp by Andrew Jackson. This was announced by Postmaster General J. Edward Day. The Jackson stamp in sheet form will first be issued on March 22, in New York City during the International Philatelic Exhibition.

The stamp in coil form will have a first day of issue May 31, in Chicago to coincide with a meeting of the Combined Philatelic Exhibitions of Chicagoland.

The 1 - cent Jackson stamp

is based on a medal struck by the U. S. Mint as part of the presidential series in 1829.

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations may send addressed envelopes together with remittance to cover cost of stamps to the Postmaster in the appropriate city as follows: 1 - cent Jackson sheets, New York, March 22; 1 - cent Jackson coil, Chicago, May 31.

Collectors are reminded that since the postage rate is 5 cents that the first day-covers for each will contain 5 stamps. The outside envelope to the postmaster should be marked "First Day Cover."

Cyprus has issued 3 stamps in its "Europa 1962" commemorative issue, reports the Crown Agents representative in Washington D. C. The design common to all three values is the same as that used by other member states of the Council of Europe, a tree with 19 leaves. The 10 mils is blue, the 40 mils is red and the 150 mils is green.

The three Greek islands of Oxia, Arcoudi and Dragonera also have a Europa issue coinciding with the Cyprus Europa.

West Germany has issued a commemorative stamp dedicated to "Misereor, 1963," reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. Misereor, which means "I have Compassion" is a fast by German Catholics against hunger and disease in the world. The new stamp illustrates the meaning of the fast — a globe, a cross, seeds and three shafts of wheat. The value of the new issue is 20 pfennigs.

Sweden has announced a new set of stamps honoring the World Ice Hockey Championships to be held in that country this year. The two new stamps will feature hockey themes.

To the many readers of this stamp column who would like to obtain foreign stamps mentioned here I would like to reiterate that they are available at your local stamp dealer or stamp department. Since first - day covers are difficult to get directly from foreign post offices, your local stamp dealer will, in many cases, have first day covers, too.

Data Given About Steel Frame Houses

NEW YORK (AP) — Steel-frame houses are reported in "Steel Facts," a publication of the American Iron and Steel Institute, as able to be put up faster and maintained cheaper than conventional homes.

One model recently shown has exterior steel wall panels which interlock and a coated steel roof that reflects sunshine for lower air conditioning loads.

In another recent home building project, a composite steel and wood beam uses a piece of light gauge steel with regular 2 by 10 - inch lumber to double the load-bearing capacity.

EXTENSION NOTES

Camellias Need Mulch

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

If you, Mrs. Gardener, have added some camellias to your landscape, be sure to apply a mulch. You may use pine needles, granulated peat, weathered sawdust or oak leaves. Apply it two to three inches deep.

Mulching conserves the soil moisture in the hot summer months and helps to prevent weeds and grass from growing. Your camellias, that you have planted this season, may need a light fertilizing the first growing season. Apply fertilizer when the plants are beginning growth. If you have plants already established and the plant makes six to eight inches of new growth a year, no fertilizer is needed after the first growing season.

Organic matter usually furnishes enough nutrient for the plants. Overfertilizing is a common practice for most of us. It promotes loose, open growth that spoils the compact habit of the plant and also increases the susceptibility of the plants to winter injury.

If you plan to fertilize, broadcast cottonseed meal over the root area at a rate of about one-half to one pound per plant. Or use a fertilizer formulated especially for camellias. Do not use lawn fertilizer on camellias as these are often alkaline.

MEETING

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, have a daughter who is to be walking down the aisle to become Mrs. then you will want to attend the meeting, Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. at the Agricultural Building in West Monroe. Mrs. Lillie Mae Carroll will give some excellent information on preparation for the wedding.

Another meeting on the 28th will be artificial flower arrangements for the home. The time is 9:30 a.m. at the Agricultural Building. Mrs. Bessie Robinson will give the demonstration. If you desire to make your own arrangement, bring your container and flowers and she will help you arrange them.

MARCH SCHEDULE

The schedule for your Home Demonstration Agent for March is:

The demonstration for the Home Demonstration Club meetings is "Taking a New Look at Bedspreads."

FASHION NEWS

Shoes are more opened up and more lower heels are appearing. Shoes and stockings are inseparable, coordinate so that they disappear into one another.

The hat picture shows turbans in every material, bigger berets, roller brims, cartwheels and flowers in many colors.

Jewelry is underplayed with a delicate feeling for spring. Bracelets are more important. Look for longer necklaces, many in colored glass and the nature look in pins, fish, birds, and flowers.

WATCHING WEIGHT

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, are watching your weight these days but just have to have midmorning and afternoon and TV snacks, try a glass of buttermilk or orange juice. Keep plenty of good fruit in the refrigerator and use it whenever you must make a raid for a snack. In many cases this is all that is really needed and you can go to bed content with zero or no more than 20 calories and no fat for your snack treats during the day and night snacks.

PLANTS OF the new F-1 hybrid Sprite snapdragons range from 12 to 14 inches in height, with flower spikes of ample length to be cut for display in vases.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Flower Show Is Colorful

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Dr. John Wright, professor of horticulture at Louisiana Tech, Ruston, brought a wonderful program on flower arranging to the T.V. audience and the Garden Center last Wednesday.

Two ladies were very helpful in making this show a colorful success. — they furnished the flowers and, I might add, flowers that are hard to find at present, camellias.

Mrs. W. L. Moseley and Mrs. Woodrow Hathorn were so wonderful to share their prized, scarce blossoms with all of us. Dr. Wright used them in such a clever and artistic manner that each blossom had its place of importance in the eight designs displayed on the show. By using driftwood, a few florist glads, pussy willow, and budding branches for line materials, the camellias were used as the focal flower.

For filler in the designs Dr. Wright used the small yellow daffodils that are the early blooming type. These are just starting to bloom. Mrs. Moseley gave these from her yard. Mrs. Mildred Swift brought some from her yard. So, you see, regardless of the extreme cold, we always find flowers from our friends. Hope you enjoyed seeing them. These arrangements were so inspiring, a real promise of spring, too.

FLOWER HOLDER

Dr. Wright displayed a fascinating flower holder made by P. W. Parker. This holder is made of solid brass wire. Each curled wire holds a test tube as a water container for each stem. The stems branch off from a small tripod stand. The stand could be used in a large bowl where flowers are to be arranged, as a holder for short - stemmed flowers giving height. This would be ideal for camellias, roses, gardenias and many other short stemmed flowers. This holder would be very attractive used alone as a container for these lovely specimen blooms that we would like to show off, perhaps on the coffee table or the dining room table or buffet. There are three sizes that are on display at the garden center now. Come by to see them.

While you read this article I would like to remind you of the camellia show that is being held at Ruston by the Men's Camellia Society there. It started Saturday to go through Sunday. The show is being held at the Baptist Student Center at Tech. It may not be too late for you to attend. From one of Dr. John Wright's articles, "There is Beauty in Line, Form and Pattern."

"Only the color blind and the most insensitive can fail to appreciate the beauty in the color and texture of a flower petal, but many of us need guidance in developing our appreciation for line, form and pattern in plant material.

"There is positive beauty in bare branches and trunks when plants are without leaves or flowers. This beauty may be in lines that form curves or angles or the beauty may be in their relationship to each other as they form patterns against a bright sky. The beauty may be in the shape or outline of the entire plant.

NOT LIMITED

"Beauty of line, form and pattern is not limited to deciduous trees and shrubs, but may also be observed in evergreens as well. Many of the conifers have lovely lines in their branches and form beautiful silhouettes against the sky to reveal quieting symmetrical forms.

Contemporary landscape designers prize the pecan, the crape myrtle, old pfitzer junipers, large wax leaf ligustrum and many other plants for line and pattern interest in their trunks and branches.

"No one would suggest that we give up color and texture or that we minimize their use in any way . . . we would only encourage the broadening of our appreciation to include these also worthy elements of design, line, form and pattern. Have you planted your magnolia soulangeana yet?

Next Wednesday watch for another garden club program on T.V. and at the Garden Center. The Highland Park Garden Club of Monroe will have the program. Mrs. P. L. Pace is president of the club.

Here's the Answer

QUESTION: I bought some exterior house paint recently. I intend to get to work on painting the outside of my house in early spring. The cans of paint have the words "self-cleaning" on them. Can you tell me what they mean?

ANSWER: We'll have to express some surprise at hearing that you didn't find out what this meant before buying the paint. Self-cleaning paints go through a chalking process in the months or years after application. The rate of chalking is determined by the mixture of ingredients. Dirt on the surface of the house is washed away with the chalk, renewing the fresh look of the paint.

There are some cases, however, where self-cleaning paint is not always ideal; as, for instance, where the mixture of rain and chalk sliding down the outside walls of the house might discolor metalwork or other finishes. This would occur where the chalking of the exterior paint has become excessive, generally a sign that the time for repainting is close at hand.

Incidentally, many persons make the mistake of using self-cleaning exterior house paint on wooden furniture that is kept outdoors. The result: after a period of time, when chalking begins, persons sitting on chairs or benches find white smudges on their clothing.

Tree Types To Plant Discussed

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

As we head toward spring, and thoughts turn toward tree planting, give serious consideration to selections that will best suit your needs.

When we faced such a project, we decided on mixed growth. Of course your climate and the size of your lot must influence your choices. You will want flowering varities, evergreens, hardwoods and some that will grow more rapidly than others.

The larger trees, such as maple, oak, spruce or pine generally should be planted in the more spacious rear areas. Flowering types such as crab apples, dogwood, redbud, golden rain and English hawthorne should adorn fruit areas where you and passerby may enjoy the color.

Many species of trees are available in dwarf and semidwarf size that are more advantageous for small lots.

Remember that if you plant too many trees or shurbs in a small area you will have a thinning job later.

GUIDE

Scientists have banded together to prepare a weather information guide for gardeners in various areas, based on probabilities.

The chart tells gardeners the chances of killing frosts at specific dates in specific locations.

Many gardeners have their own safe - planting theories. Some rely on the influence of the moon. Others are guided by fixed holidays. They plant peas on St. Patrick's Day and tomatoes on Memorial Day. Others rely on their own experiences over the years.

Representatives of 13 agricultural experiment stations, the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Weather Bureau served on the technical committee that made the new study of low - temperature probabilities. Contact your state agricultural experiment station to determine whether the information is available for your area.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Fourteen years ago, I wrote a column which said:

"Congress, please pass another law! Make it mandatory that a qualified director of photography be consulted whenever an historic event is to be photographed. An amendment of such law shall order said director to abolish all fronds, flowers and frippery from the background of aforementioned historic event."

What bothered me at the time was a photograph of the signing of the North Atlantic Pact in Washington, D.C. It was a historic occasion, certain to be viewed around the world and to find a place in the archives. But the profusion of fronds, flowers and flower pots behind the signers and the important representatives of various countries was distracting and disturbing.

"The event symbolized the unity of the 12 signatory countries," I pointed out. "How important then that the photo have at least pictorial unity."

LESSON NEEDED

"The picture showed that some official planner needed a lesson in simplicity. It's the same lesson that all camera beginners should learn once they know which button to press. Backgrounds and accessories are subordinate to the center of interest, so they should be kept as simple as possible — or even nonexistant."

Historic events can be seen by the world's millions only through pictures taken at those events. To make those pictures forceful and effective, the setting should be simple, dignified and symbolic. Anything else in the picture area that is extraneous or distracting should be eliminated.

Through the years, that thought has popped up in various ways. The subject comes up for discussion again in the current March issue of U.S. Camera in an article on "Photography in the White House."

PROPOSAL

Ed Hannigan of U.S. Camera proposed that an assistant press secretary for photography be appointed on the presidential staff with the responsibility of handling all White House photographic problems.

The suggestion sounded useful to Pierre Salinger, President Kennedy's press secretary, but he added that there are no funds available for such a post at this time.

Surely a small sum spent to insure better photographic coverage of our president's official actions could be a worthwhile investment for posterity's sake. But at least the idea is still alive and getting some attention and perhaps we're getting closer to the day when there will be an official Secretary for Photography. Cast my vote for the motion.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Wild Onions Are Problem

By WILLIAN LANIER HUNT

There is nothing that defaces a lawn or garden more than wild onions. The tufts of silvery green begin to show up in late winter and get bigger and bigger as the warm weather comes on.

As we have noted before in the column, the main difficulty in trying to eliminate wild onions by digging the bulbs out by hand, clump by clump, lies in the fact that the onions may well "out-smart" you.

In each clump, there are very tiny bulblets that lie flat against the round bulbs. These bulblets have no roots and are encased in a hard covering. When you remove the clump of bulbs, unless you take it up with dirt all around it, the bulblets will fall off right in the hole from which the clump was dug.

CONTROL DIFFICULT

You cannot kill onions by merely cutting or pulling the tops off because a new set of leaves will soon emerge to replace the ones you removed. Even mowing a lawn in winter seems to merely subdue but not to destroy onions. Since, in each clump there are some bulbs which will grow in spring and others which will not grow until fall, you are doomed to have two big crops of onions each year until you eliminate them.

The only reliable way to get rid of wild onions is with weed-killers. Several of the commercial brands will do this effectively. Get at it before other plants begin to emerge. Where onions are growing in your flower beds, it is best to spray each clump separately so that you will not kill valuable perennials in the same bed. Ask your seed store for one of the weed killers made specifically to kill wild onions or garlic.

NEED FORETHOUGHT

Most of us do not think about weed killing until warm weather comes around, and that is probably the reason why we let onions and chickweed, another winter weed, get ahead of us. There is nothing more tedious than pulling out chickweed from a bed of precious plants. Your columnist uses bone meal as a top dressing for beds of tiny bulbs.

Almost any fertilizer that is even slightly on the sweet side or neutral in reaction seems to encourage chickweed. Consequently, this pest has to be eliminated every year.

It will delight you to see how easily chickweed is eliminated with weed killer. If you have had the experience of digging, digging, digging down with your fingers to get every vestige of the tough little central thread that feeds each rosette of chickweed, you will reach for the weed killer in February. In cool weather weed killers take a little longer to do the job, but they will kill chickweed in about a week.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

If the existing finish on a wooden floor is in poor condition, only a complete resurfacing job can prepare it for a new finish. It's the kind of home project you can undertake yourself. But don't expect it to be one of those fast, get-rid-of-it tasks you can accomplish in a couple of hours. It's going to take, at the very least, two days — and more often than not, several days, especially if one of the slower drying finishes is used.

You'll need two sanding machines. The large, drum-type sander will handle the bulk of the floor. A small edger will handle areas next to the walls where the larger sander will not reach. These can be rented by the day. There's no use renting them and then letting them remain idle a day or two while you complete the necessary preparations. Make arrangements ahead of time for the renting, but specify that you do not want the machines until such-and-such a time.

PREPARATIONS

The preparations start with the moving of as much furniture out of the room as possible; preferably all of it. After that comes a close inspection of the floor for defects. Especially look for protruding nail heads. Drive those below the surface with a hammer and punch and fill the holes with wood putty or plastic wood. Be sure to put enough putty into the holes so that a tiny bit of it is higher than the surrounding surface. The putty often shrinks while drying and, besides, the sanding machine will smooth down the excess.

Where there is any squeaking or buckling, drive in two-inch finishing nails, about an inch and a half apart and slanted toward each other at the tips. Threaded nails have extra holding power.

STARTER

In using the machine, start with a coarse sandpaper, then a medium and then a fine. Always be sure the machine is in motion before the drum is lowered to the floor. And always raise the drum before stopping the machine. The sander should never be kept in one spot while the motor is on.

The edger will sand most areas which the large machine can not reach, but sometimes even the edger will not get properly into corners. In that case, it will be necessary to take off the old finish in corners with a varnish remover and a putty knife. Follow directions on how long to allow the remover to stand before scraping.

You can use any one of many floor finishes, depending on what kind of appearance is sought. If you like a gloss, the choice usually is between varnish and shellac.

Stamp News

George Washington — who appeared on the first U. S. postage stamp and many other issues since 1847 — is now being replaced on the new regular 1 - cent postage stamp by Andrew Jackson. This was announced by Postmaster General J. Edward Day. The Jackson stamp in sheet form will first be issued on March 22, in New York City during the International Philatelic Exhibition.

The stamp in coil form will have a first day of issue May 31, in Chicago to coincide with a meeting of the Combined Philatelic Exhibitions of Chicagoland.

The 1 - cent Jackson stamp

is based on a medal struck by the U. S. Mint as part of the presidential series in 1829.

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations may send addressed envelopes together with remittance to cover cost of stamps to the Postmaster in the appropriate city as follows: 1 - cent Jackson sheets, New York, March 22; 1 - cent Jackson coil, Chicago, May 31.

Collectors are reminded that since the postage rate is 5 cents that the first day-covers for each will contain 5 stamps. The outside envelope to the postmaster should be marked "First Day Cover."

Cyprus has issued 3 stamps in its "Europa 1962" commemorative issue, reports the Crown Agents representative in Washington D. C. The design common to all three values is the same as that used by other member states of the Council of Europe, a tree with 19 leaves. The 10 mils. is blue, the 40 mils. is red and the 150 mils is green.

The three Greek islands of Oxia, Arcoudi and Dragonera also have a Europa issue coinciding with the Cyprus Europa.

West Germany has issued a commemorative stamp dedicated to "Misereor, 1963," reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. Misereor, which means "I have Compassion" is a fast by German Catholics against hunger and disease in the world. The new stamp illustrates the meaning of the fast — a globe, a cross, seeds and three shafts of wheat. The value of the new issue is 20 pfennigs.

Sweden has announced a new set of stamps honoring the World Ice Hockey Championships to be held in that country this year. The two new stamps will feature hockey themes.

To the many readers of this stamp column who would like to obtain foreign stamps mentioned here I would like to reiterate that they are available at your local stamp dealer or stamp department. Since first - day covers are difficult to get directly from foreign post offices, your local stamp dealer will, in many cases, have first day covers, too.

Data Given About Steel Frame Houses

NEW YORK (AP) — Steel-frame houses are reported in "Steel Facts," a publication of the American Iron and Steel Institute, as able to be put up faster and maintained cheaper than conventional homes.

One model recently shown has exterior steel wall panels which interlock and a coated steel roof that reflects sunshine for lower air conditioning loads.

In another recent home building project, a composite steel and wood beam uses a piece of light gauge steel with regular 2 by 10 - inch lumber to double the load-bearing capacity.

EXTENSION NOTES

Camellias Need Mulch

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

If you, Mrs. Gardener, have added some camellias to your landscape, be sure to apply a mulch. You may use pine needles, granulated peat, weathered sawdust or oak leaves. Apply it two to three inches deep.

Mulching conserves the soil moisture in the hot summer months and helps to prevent weeds and grass from growing. Your camellias, that you have planted this season, may need a light fertilizing the first growing season. Apply fertilizer when the plants are beginning growth. If you have plants already established and the plant makes six to eight inches of new growth a year, no fertilizer is needed after the first growing season.

Organic matter usually furnishes enough nutrient for the plants. Overfertilizing is a common practice for most of us. It promotes loose, open growth that spoils the compact habit of the plant and also increases the susceptibility of the plants to winter injury.

If you plan to fertilize, broadcast cottonseed meal over the root area at a rate of about one-half to one pound per plant. Or use a fertilizer formulated especially for camellias. Do not use lawn fertilizer on camellias as these are often alkaline.

MEETING

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, have a daughter who is to be walking down the aisle to become Mrs. then you will want to attend the meeting, Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. at the Agricultural Building in West Monroe. Mrs. Lillie Mae Carroll will give some excellent information on preparation for the wedding.

Another meeting on the 28th will be artificial flower arrangements for the home. The time is 9:30 a.m. at the Agricultural Building. Mrs. Bessie Robinson will give the demonstration. If you desire to make your own arrangement, bring your container and flowers and she will help you arrange them.

MARCH SCHEDULE

The schedule for your Home Demonstration Agent for March is:

March 1, 9:30 a.m., Swartz, with Mrs. George Speir; 2 p.m., Woodlawn, with Mrs. E. M. Frith; 5th — 9:30 a. m. Progressive, with Mrs. Emma May; 1 p.m., Lakeshore, with Mrs. L. J. The demonstration for the Home Demonstration Club meetings is "Taking a New Look at Bedspreads."

FASHION NEWS

Shoes are more opened up and more lower heels are appearing. Shoes and stockings are inseparable, coordinate so that they disappear into one another.

The hat picture shows turbans in every material, bigger berets, roller brims, cartwheels and flowers in many colors.

Jewelry is underplayed with a delicate feeling for spring. Bracelets are more important. Look for longer necklaces, many in colored glass and the nature look in pins, fish, birds, and flowers.

WATCHING WEIGHT

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, are watching your weight these days but just have to have midmorning and afternoon and TV snacks, try a glass of buttermilk or orange juice. Keep plenty of good fruit in the refrigerator and use it whenever you must make a raid for a snack. In many cases this is all that is really needed and you can go to bed content with zero or no more than 20 calories and no fat for your snack treats during the day and night snacks.

A THOUGHT

If at first you succeed, the chances are you probably haven't accomplished much.

MULCH

If you use sawdust as a mulch apply extra nitorgen. A sign that nitrogen is lacking is yellowing of plants.

PETER FINCH, as the prosecutor, puts Susan Hayward on trial for a "mercy killing", in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's drama "I Thank A Fool." Diane Cilento and Cyril Cusack co-star in the production in color and CinemaScope, which is now showing at the Jim Theatre.

Curtain Call

Try - outs for the next Little Theatre production, "The Best Man," will be held this Wednesday and Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Strauss Playhouse. Masculine roles predominate in this biting political drama by Gore Vidal. Executive director Richard M. Clark is hoping for a large enough turn - out both nights to permit a good balance of new and experienced talent in selecting the cast.

The male leads are an ex-president of the United States and two rival candidates for his support at a national convention. Strong female parts are the candidates' wives and a party committeewoman. There are a dozen lesser roles of varying length. The play itself was a tremendous hit on Broadway.

Audiences at the first three showings of "Annie Get Your Gun" acclaimed Jimmy Craft for his portrayal of the leading man, but on Monday the popular KNOE TV director was laid low with a high fever that thwarted his valiant efforts to continue in the part. After six weeks of rehearsal and a great opening, what a bad break.

'MUST GO ON'

While cast and crew sent flowers to wish Jimmy a speedy recovery, choreographer Bob Beard observed the tradition of "the show must go on" by taking over the part on short notice and delighting audiences for the remainder of the run. It reminds us of the time Peggy Caskey stepped into the lead in "The Boy Friend" when laryngitis overcame Marcia Williams.

Technical director Raymond Lucero replaced Bob in the dance trio in the Brevoort ballroom, while Buddy Smith became Jeanie Taylor's partner in the lovely dream adagio. Even though Jimmy's illness created a serious emergency, we were fortunate in having the resources to overcome without losing a beat.

The Order of the Arrow members whose appearance in full regalia added so much to the Indian ceremony were John Beasley, Ronny Dana and David Stanhope. They were really impressive.

V. P. Dalrymple's role in "Annie" admitted him to the select circle of actors who have taken 10 or more parts on our stage. His remarkable range of talent has encompassed serious drama, character portrayals and song—and - dance roles, but his main interest, of course, is his teaching to which he brings great ability and dedication.

IN FOOTSTEPS

Libby Shipman, Judy Swayze and young Horace Gentry followed in the footsteps of one or both of their parents in making their debuts in "Annie," but Walter Kotz, after many a turn behind the scenes, reversed matters when he joined daughter Sissy on stage.

Opening night was exciting for the cast in more ways than one. Bob Beard surprised his dancers with a souvenir of the show for each of them. Betty Bandy, our leading lady, was overwhelmed with floral tributes. Musical director Eloy Fominaya found himself the recipient of a Green Room tile honoring him and his fine orchestra. Other tiles that appeared during the run were for Rachael Ober, Rande Herrell, Libby Shipman, Bob Beard, Kenneth Garrison, Henry Haas and Craig Seligman.

Miss Lallage Feazel cheered the hospitality committee with the presentation of a new cloth that extends the full length of the two tables used for the entr'acte coffee service. The committee distinguished itself by providing supper for cast, crew and orchestra between the Sunday matinee and evening performances, in the course of which 130 hamburgers were downed by our ravenous thespians.

Bob Beard leaves us to return to New York, the possessor of a host of new friends and compliments galore on both his choreographic contribution to the show and his unexpected appearance as Frank Butler. In addition to original and imaginative dance routines, Bob was the lead dancer in the Indian ceremony and nightly made our audiences gasp as he swung onto the stage with a lighted torch. He was a tower of strength in our show and we hope to see him back with us again.

'Girl Named Tamiko' Soon At Paramount

Laurence Harvey, France Nuyen and Martha Hyer head the cast of "A Girl Named Tamiko," Hal Wallis' production in Technicolor and Panavision, which opens Wednesday at the Jim Theatre. Co - starred in top supporting roles are Gary Merrill, Michael Wilding and Miyoshi Umeki.

A bold and provocative love story set in modern Japan, the film offers some of the most spectacular views of that country ever photographed for the screen.

The story recounts the dramatic events in the life of a photographer, played by Harvey, who is obsessed with the determination to emigrate to the United States from Japan. The action takes place during the few months which elapse between his application for a visa and final approval of it. To obtain that approval he ruthlessly uses everything and everybody, in particular the women who love him.

FIRST HIT

Lovely France Nuyen, who scored her first big film hit as Liat in "South Pacific," will be seen as Tamiko, the Nipponese aristocrat whose love for Harvey causes her to break with her family and its adherence to centuries - old traditions. It will be remembered that Miss Nuyen also achieved great success in the Broadway stage hit, "The World of Suzie Wong."

WINE AND ROSES

Lemmon, Remick Co-Star In Film

Etching a daringly different love story, "Days of Wine and Roses," starring Jack Lemmon and Lee Remick, is now showing at the Paramount Theatre. The romantic drama probes the terrifying, tangled triangle of a handsome young married couple and their bout with the bottle.

Heretofore renowned for his brilliant comedy performances, Lemmon portrays a go - getting public relations man who suddenly discovers he and his lovely wife have unwittingly become alcoholics, plunging headlong toward self - destruction.

Miss Remick plays the wholesome young girl who disintegrates into a drink - sodden wife with him.

Blake Edwards directed the Martin Manulis - Jalem Production for Warner Bros. release.

TITLE SOURCE

Scripter JP Miller took his title from the gentle words of poet Ernest Dowson: "They are not long, the days of wine and roses, out of a misty dream our path emerges for a while, then closes within a dream."

Against the exciting backdrop of San Francisco today, the tale of tangled love emerges. Easy-going, fast - talking Lemmon sweeps a young, country - bred secretary off her feet. When he discovers the wholesome beauty does not drink he cajoles her into trying brandy alexanders.

After a whirlwind courtship they are married and as if to ward off the pressures of their life both become increasingly dependent on liquor.

RESEARCHED

Both Lemmon and Miss Remick thoroughly researched their characterizations — visiting Los Angeles skid row and the alcoholic wards of the city's hospitals. And both stars suffered a wide variety of cuts and bruises playing the violent, drunken scenes that are an integral part of their Academy Award - calibre performances.

Charles Bickford and Jack Klugman are co - starred in the hard - hitting drama which also features Alan Hewitt, Tom Palmer, Debbie Megowan, Maxine Stuart, Jack Albertson and Ken Lynch.

Academy Award winner Henry Mancini composed the motion pictures poignant score and collaborated on the film's hit title tune.

Ross To Vary Play Offerings

NEW YORK (AP) — Ibsen and Chekhov are going to have to share time with other authors hereafter in the production activities of David Ross.

The off - Broadway impresario, who for several seasons has concentrated on revivals of works by the two 19th Century authors, is embarked on a new programming format for his Theater Four. He intends to conduct a series of six - week engagements of varied drama including a modern work, a Greek drama, an Ibsen and possibly a Shakespeare play each season.

Curtain Call

Try - outs for the next Little Theatre production, "The Best Man," will be held this Wednesday and Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Strauss Playhouse. Masculine roles predominate in this biting political drama by Gore Vidal. Executive director Richard M. Clark is hoping for a large enough turn -out both nights to permit a good balance of new and experienced talent in selecting the cast.

The male leads are an ex-president of the United States and two rival candidates for his support at a national convention. Strong female parts are the candidates' wives and a party committeewoman. There are a dozen lesser roles of varying length. The play itself was a tremendous hit on Broadway.

Audiences at the first three showings of "Annie Get Your Gun" acclaimed Jimmy Craft for his portrayal of the leading man, but on Monday the popular KNOE TV director was laid low with a high fever that thwarted his valiant efforts to continue in the part. After six weeks of rehearsal and a great opening, what a bad break.

'MUST GO ON'

While cast and crew sent flowers to wish Jimmy a speedy recovery, choreographer Bob Beard observed the tradition of "the show must go on" by taking over the part on short notice and delighting audiences for the remainder of the run. It reminds us of the time Peggy Caskey stepped into the lead in "The Boy Friend" when laryngitis overcame Marsha Williams.

Technical director Raymond Lucero replaced Bob in the dance trio in the Brevoort ballroom, while Buddy Smith became Jeanie Taylor's partner in the lovely dream adagio. Even though Jimmy's illness created a serious emergency, we were fortunate in having the resources to overcome it without losing a beat.

The Order of the Arrow members whose appearance in full regalia added so much to the Indian ceremony were John Beasley, Ronny Dana and David Stanhope. They were really impressive.

V. P. Dalrymple's role in "Annie" admitted him to the select circle of actors who have taken 50 or more parts on our stage. His remarkable range of talent has encompassed serious drama, character portrayals and song—and - dance roles, but his main interest, of course, is his teaching to which he brings great ability and dedication.

IN FOOTSTEPS

Libby Shipman, Judy Swayze and young Horace Gentry followed in the footsteps of one or both of their parents in making their debuts in "Annie," but Walter Kotz, after many a turn behind the scenes, reversed matters when he joined daughter Sissy on stage.

Opening night was exciting for the cast in more ways than one. Bob Beard surprised his dancers with a souvenir of the show for each of them. Betty Bandy, our leading lady, was overwhelmed with floral tributes. Musical director Eloy Fominaya found himself the recipient of a Green Room tile honoring him and his fine orchestra. Other tiles that appeared during the run were for Rachael Ober, Rande Herrell, Libby Shipman, Bob Beard, Kenneth Garrison, Henry Haas and Craig Seligman.

Miss Lallage Feazel cheered the hospitality committee with the presentation of a new cloth that extends the full length of the two tables used for the entr'acte coffee service. The committee distinguished itself by providing supper for cast, crew and orchestra between the Sunday matinee and evening performances, in the course of which 180 hamburgers were downed by our ravenous thespians.

Bob Beard leaves us to return to New York, the possessor of a host of new friends and compliments galore on both his choreographic contribution to the show and his unexpected appearance as Frank Butler. In addition to original and imaginative dance routines, Bob was the lead dancer in the Indian ceremony and nightly made our audiences gasp as he swung onto the stage with a lighted torch. He was a tower of strength in our show and we hope to see him back with us again.

'Girl Named Tamiko' Soon At Paramount

Laurence Harvey, France Nuyen and Martha Hyer head the cast of "A Girl Named Tamiko," Hal Wallis' production in Technicolor and Panavision, which opens Wednesday at the Jim Theatre. Co - starred in top supporting roles are Gary Merrill, Michael Wilding and Miyoshi Umeki.

A bold and provocative love story set in modern Japan, the film offers some of the most spectacular views of that country ever photographed for the screen.

The story recounts the dramatic events in the life of a photographer, played by Harvey, who is obsessed with the determination to emigrate to the United States from Japan. The action takes place during the few months which elapse between his application for a visa and final approval of it. To obtain that approval he ruthlessly uses everything and everybody, in particular the women who love him.

FIRST HIT

Lovely France Nuyen, who scored her first big film hit as Liat in "South Pacific," will be seen as Tamiko, the Nipponese aristocrat whose love for Harvey causes her to break with her family and its adherence to centuries - old traditions. It will be remembered that Miss Nuyen also achieved great success in the Broadway stage hit, "The World of Suzie Wong."

Panamanians Don't Know What They Want

EDITOR'S NOTE — The United States and Panama are negotiating over the Canal Zone with the U.S. government ready to grant Panama more sovereignty in the 10-mile strip. Here is the background of the problem and some views of Panamanians on what exactly they want from Uncle Sam.

By MORRIS W. ROSENBERG

PANAMA CITY (AP) — When Panamanian President Roberto F. Chiari raised the Panamanian flag in front of the U.S. Canal Zone administration building Oct. 29, some shrill-toned American slipped a blindfold over the bust of President Theodore Roosevelt in the lobby of the building according to a popular story here.

In Panama over the Canal Zone there is nothing funny about the story.

THE FLAG

The question of the flag is a deadly serious one that has aroused strong feelings.

What does the flying of a national flag mean? Does it indicate sovereignty over the land where it flies? What kind of sovereignty?

These questions have stirred hot controversy here for years.

They led to bloody fighting in January 1964 during student flag demonstrations in which 21 persons died.

They led last year to a court suit charging that U.S. officials of the Army and the governor of the Canal Zone with violating U.S. laws by permitting the Panamanian flag to be flown in the zone.

They have led to bitter disputes among Panamanians and among U.S. citizens in the zone.

The controversy originates in Article 3 of the 1903 Canal Zone treaty between the United States and Panama.

Article 3 states, in part: "The Republic of Panama grants to the United States all the rights, power and authority within the zone ... which the United States would possess and exercise if it were the sovereign of the territory ... to the entire exclusion of the exercise by the Republic of Panama of any such sovereign rights, power or authority."

After the student riots of November 1959, President Eisenhower asserted: "For 50 years the United States has recognized the titular sovereignty of Panama over the zone.

"We should have some visual evidence that Panama does have titular sovereignty over the region."

On Sept. 21, two U.S. and Panamanian flag officials were raised side by side at a site on the extreme edge of the Canal Zone known as Shaler Triangle.

That day the U.S. Embassy in Panama announced that "the United States is not relinquishing its rights of administration over the territory but at the same time is paying respect to a long-standing policy which states that Panama retains titular sovereignty over the Canal Zone."

In June last year President Roberto F. Chiari of Panama took his case to President Kennedy in Washington. Kennedy agreed to "the flying of Panamanian flags in an appropriate way in the Canal Zone."

WAS RAISED

And so on Oct. 29, 1962 the Panamanian flag was raised alongside the U.S. flag in front of the administration building at Balboa Heights, center of Canal Zone affairs.

Zone Gov. Robert J. Fleming says there is now agreement that the Panamanian flag will be flown in the zone wherever the U.S. flag is officially flown.

Foreign Minister Galileo Solis of Panama says: "The flag is at least recognition of Panama's sovereignty over the zone.

"Now when ships pass through the canal they know they are passing through Panama."

A U.S. official, concerned about deteriorating relations between the United States and Panama in recent years because of the flag issue, says that as long as the U.S. maintains control over the administration and operation of the zone, "it makes no difference if a thousand Panamanian flags fly in the zone."

Gerald A. Doyle Jr., a U.S. citizen and chief of the architectural branch of the engineering division in the zone, calls the flying of the Panamanian flag "an obvious erosion of the rights of the United States."

Doyle, a native of Cleveland, Ohio, who has lived in the zone for 15 years, believes that the flying of the Panamanian flag in the zone is a violation of U.S. law and treaty. Many U.S. citizens in the zone strongly share Doyle's feelings.

Doyle filed suit in a U.S. court against Gov. Fleming and Secretary of the Army Cyrus Vance.

He sought an injunction restraining Fleming and Vance from "committing or omitting any act reasonably tending to relinquish or derogate the sovereignty of the United States."

It specifically asked that the defendants be prevented from flying Panamanian flags in the zone, using Panamanian postage stamps in the zone, and recognizing exequaturs issued by Panama to establish consular officers in the zone.

U.S. and Panamanian officials reportedly are close to agreement on the final two points mentioned: using Panamanian postage and recognizing Panamanian exequaturs in the zone.

Another furor was caused here recently with the inauguration of the $20-million bridge built by the United States across the canal at Balboa.

In 1942 the United States agreed to build a bridge or tunnel at Balboa in the zone when the World War II emergency ended.

The bridge was finally opened Oct. 12.

The Panamanian government decided to call the new bridge the "Bridge of the Americas" since it was the first permanent link between North and South America.

But in providing the money, the U.S. Congress voted to name the bridge "Thatcher Ferry Bridge."

This was in honor of Maurice H. Thatcher, a longtime Canal Zone official who, as a U.S. representative in Congress from Kentucky, introduced legislation which created a ferry service across the canal, later known as the Thatcher Ferry.

Thus now the U.S. government and the Canal Zone officially call the bridge the "Thatcher Ferry Bridge," while the Panamanian government, equally officially, refers to it only as "Bridge of the Americas."

Most Panamanians, however, simply call it "the bridge over the canal."

Panamanian views are mixed concerning the future of U.S.-Panamanian relations.

"Partnership is the answer," said President Chiari.

"Panama should collect toll from ships passing through the canal, using Panamanian territory. The Panamanian tolls can be less than those collected by the United States.

"This system would do away with the feeling in the United States that it is always being asked to contribute more to Panama."

In the opinion of Foreign Minister Solis, "There is no need for the Canal Zone."

"The United States should operate and defend the canal," he said, "but the territory of the zone—with the exception of a few required U.S. military bases—should be returned to Panama."

Some Panamanians have views bitterly reflecting the often heard charges of corruption in Panamanian governments.

A cab driver said: "The canal should never be turned over to Panama. This would mean simply that the rich would get richer and the poor would get poorer. Our governments promise much, but they rob us and take for themselves."

Vicente Petti Espinosa, a 68-year-old farmer, said: "I never got to the first grade, so I don't know too much.

"But this much I know: the Panamanian rich do not take of the poor. All they are interested in is their politics and their business."

Assemblywoman King says apparently the only way Panama can get a better government is through revolution.

For her, U.S. control of the zone is illegal. She says that a de facto Panamanian government, without a constitution, was in power when the Canal Zone treaty was signed in 1903, and that the treaty has never been ratified by the National Assembly.

Other changes sought by Panamanians include:

1. Mixed U.S. - Panamanian courts in the zone. At present only U.S. law applies and only U.S. courts and law enforcement officials operate in the zone. "A Panamanian can even be deported from his own land in the zone," complains a Panamanian newspaper editor.

2. The return of unused land in the zone to Panama.

3. Panamanian port facilities on the Pacific and Caribbean. At present the ports serving Panama on the Pacific and Colon on the Caribbean are within the zone and controlled by the United States however, long-standing customs and handling procedures move Panamanian imports and exports smoothly through the ports.

4. Termination of U.S. government-operated stores and factories in the Canal Zone in order to give greater opportunities to Panamanian commerce and industry.

A long-standing demand is that Panamanian employees in the zone receive job opportunity, pay and treatment equal to U.S. citizens.

"Where The Unusual Is Usual"

Panamanians Don't Know What They Want

EDITOR'S NOTE — The United States has done many things to ease Panamanian grievances over the Canal Zone which have been festering nearly 60 years. Its a difficult problem because the Panamanians themselves disagree on just exactly what they want from Uncle Sam.

By MORRIS W. ROSENBERG

PANAMA CITY (AP) — When Panamanian President Roberto F. Chiari raised the Panamanian flag in front of the U.S. Canal Zone administration building Oct. 29, some anguished American slipped a blindfold over the bust of President Theodore Roosevelt in the lobby of the building, according to a popular story here.

In Panama and the Canal Zone, there is nothing funny about the story.

THE FLAG

The question of the flag is a deadly serious one that has aroused strong feelings.

What does the flying of a national flag mean? Does it indicate sovereignty over the land where it flies? What kind of sovereignty?

These questions have stirred hot controversy here for years. They led to bloody fighting in student flag demonstrations in 1959.

They led last year to a court suit charging the U.S. secretary of the Army and the governor of the Canal Zone with violating U.S. laws by permitting the Panamanian flag to be flown in the zone.

They have led to bitter dispute among Panamanians and among U.S. citizens in the zone.

The controversy originates in Article 3 of the 1903 Canal Zone treaty between the United States and Panama.

Article 3 states, in part: "The Republic of Panama grants to the United States all the rights, power and authority within the zone . . . which the United States would possess and exercise if it were the sovereign of the territory within which said lands and waters are located to the entire exclusion of the exercise by the Republic of Panama of any such sovereign rights, power or authority."

After the student riots of November 1959, President Eisenhower asserted: "For 50 years the United States has recognized the titular sovereignty of Panama (over the zone).

"We should have some visual evidence that Panama does have titular sovereignty over the region."

On Sept. 21, 1960, the U.S. and Panamanian flag officially were raised side by side at a site on the extreme edge of the Canal Zone known as Shaler Triangle.

That day the U.S. Embassy in Panama announced that "the United States is not relinquishing its rights of administration over the territory but at the same time is paying respect to a long-standing policy which states that Panama retains titular sovereignty over the Canal Zone."

Foreign Minister Galileo Solis of Panama says: "The flag is at least recognition of Panama's sovereignty over the zone."

Alexis Torres, 19, an unemployed fisherman, says with pride: "Now when ships pass through the canal they know they are passing through Panama."

A U.S. official, concerned about deteriorating relations between the United States and Panama in recent years because of the flag issue, says that as long as the U.S. maintains control over the administration and operation of the zone, "it makes no difference if a thousand Panamanian flags fly in the zone."

"Where The Unusual Is Usual"

West Monroe Boys' Club Observes Anniversary

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

On Feb. 23, the West Monroe Boys' Club observed its first anniversary. In a year's time, that organization, according to its leaders, has grown "beyond all expectations."

The growth has been both a challenge and an opportunity. The club has kept the pace.

In a single year, the facility has doubled and redoubled the activities it makes available to West Monroe youngsters, moved into a clubhouse on North Violet Street, expanded that club to include a spacious gymnasium and provided a "home away from home" for 568 boys.

As well, it's been the hub for the formation of a Boys Club Area Council, yoked in the common good with clubs at Bastrop and Shreveport. That combination, under the auspices of the national organization, Boys Clubs of America, was formed at a meeting in Monroe last Nov. 27. West Monroe President John McCormick is its first chairman and will preside at the first semi-annual meeting in Shreveport in April.

The club's development hasn't been easy, according to its director Kenneth Taylor and President McCormick, and it hasn't been the work of just a few.

In the organizational stages for over a year and founded and run on a shoestring before affiliation as an agency of the parish United Givers' Fund, the Boys Club still relies in large part on outside support.

"We couldn't operate without the United Givers Fund, of course," explains Taylor. "But we owe so much to so many organizations and individuals around town, both for helping us to get started and for supplying us day to day needs and those little extras that mean so much to the boys and to the value of our program."

Taylor came to work in West Monroe from Camden, Ark., on Jan. 1, 1962. He is credited with responsibility for much of the club's success.

"And, naturally, much of our gratitude as we look back over our first year must go to the West Monroe American Legion, both for leasing us their post as a clubhouse and for adding the beautiful gym and shower area," the director adds.

The gym was started in July, dedicated in November and since has been the home court for three Boys Club basketball leagues and the proving ground for the team that will represent the club at a sectional tournament in Wichita Falls, Tex., Mar. 1-2.

A Boys Club team presently leads the West Monroe Recreational League, as well. Taylor's assistant, Roscoe Holcombe, coaches.

The past year evidently has been a busy one for the club's boy members, aged seven to 18. After an abbreviated program in the summer of 1961, put together piecemeal on several of the town's playgrounds and at a fishing camp near Columbia, things hit high gear with full-scale operation in February.

Most of the activities are attuned to the liking of the club's younger members, of which there are more numerically (ages 7-10—276; 11-13—162; 14-16—90; 17-18—20), though there's plenty for the big fellows to do, too.

This past summer, the boys could choose between softball, badminton and swimming, besides the special events such as a "tire rodeo," a fishing derby and the taking of physical fitness tests patterned along the lines of those recommended nationally by the President.

And as for the fishing derby, everybody was a winner, even though Glen Tidwell and Rickie Sims caught the biggest fish. Club Treasurer Harold Roberts had a whole trailer load of watermelons at pondside.

Swimming was almost as popular, with the two trips weekly by Boys Club bus to Swayze Natatorium in Monroe increased by the end of summer to daily runs.

Fall brought arts and crafts and weekly classes in woodwork, plaster of paris and leathercraft. Imaginations went wild and Taylor still points with pride to beautiful decorative and utilitarian pieces made from nothing more than bird feathers and popsicle sticks.

In athletics, the club's first winners in its basketball leagues were crowned recently. Among the older boys, it was the Bulldogs — Larry and Garry Bright, Benny Lawrence, Len Brister, Gary Williams and David Ashcraft — while among the younger the kingpins were the Rinky-Dinks — Johnny Copeland, Jackie Wilbanks, Andy Jones, Steve Williamson, Kenneth Lawrence and Ken Gallien.

Besides basketball among the organized sports, the kids had their pick from some pretty exotic sounding pastimes such as flag football (It's played with a flag in the back pocket which is snatched in lieu of a tackle) nok hockey and bop baseball. Pool, ping pong, chess and checkers were available at anytime.

Tournaments and individual competition were popular as always. For example, football throwing with an accent on accuracy and spotshot basketball shooting. The big men in those areas included, in football, Jerry Hattaway among the older boys, and Gerald Estes, Kenny Reeves and Nolan Baugh in descending age brackets. Eagle eyes with the basketball were Larry Bright and Bill Dorris, tied among the 13 years olds, and Kenneth Reeves, Jimmy York and Marvin Crane.

But, outside athletics, the boys made extensive use of the club's library where they found easy access to all types of books for pleasure reading, magazines and reference volumes.

Also stimulating the grey matter is a seven-week course at the club, open to any boy, entitled "Spacemen of the Future" and yielding a pretty close look at the solar system, space travel and the problems of exploration on other planets.

The class is held for one hour each Thursday, attended by 10 to 12 youngsters and taught by one of the boys, Bobby Nash. Running continuously, a new class starts at the close of the old. Included are field trips to Selman Field in Monroe, and young Nash has written to officials of the United States Mercury Project for additional information of interest to the class.

A great favorite of the boys and one of Taylor's particular prides is the club's bi-weekly newspaper, "The Banner." Started last summer, the sheet doesn't have an editor exactly but a livewire staff of regular contributors it does have — by name, Gerald Estes, Bobby Nash, Donnie Hicks, Danny Maynard and Jimmy Easterling.

A field trip to the News-Star—World is in prospect.

Besides news of club activities and developments, the more personal social notes always are read eagerly. Like "Jimmy York discovered a hair on his chest" and "Larry Scarbrough says there are too many girls wanting to date him."

In other areas, the Boys Club has been active in the affairs of the community. For example, they worked hand in glove with the West Monroe Ministerial Alliance in getting out advertising on Religion in American Life Week, and have distributed posters all over town to help in the drive for mass polio immunization.

About three months ago, the youngsters in the club area went together to form Boy Scout Troop 129, a troop of their own. Scoutmaster is N. B. Thurmond.

All of which makes for a varied program to say the least and one that's constantly on the upswing, always alert for things of interest to boys and, more importantly, of value in the molding of better citizens for the future.

Much has been done. Much remains to be done. Everybody's agreed on that. But, above all, what's been done has been a success and of service to the community. In the words of McCormick, who's city judge in West Monroe, "Once a boy has joined the club, he's never been in trouble with the law."

Gov. Barnett Will Address Joint Session

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Gov. Ross Barnett will address a joint session of the Legislature Monday as state lawmakers convene for their seventh session since 1960 to take up sheriff succession and reapportionment.

The reapportionment matter will be mostly a formality as the legislature is expected to place in the constitution a law recently approved by voters which would change seats in both houses for the first time since 1890.

The reapportionment, the result of two sessions and a popular vote, will set up a 52 member Senate and a 122-member House.

The present makeup is a 40-member Senate and a 140-member House.

Lawmakers now face details of the House organization for counties which would get more than one House seats. They must also decide whether candidates in these counties will run at large, from districts, or for seats designed by numbers.

The sheriff problem is for the legislature to work out details permitting sheriffs to succeed themselves in counties where they are stripped of tax collection duties.

The constitutional amendment which would permit sheriff succession was approved by voters last June, but cannot become effective until the legislature works out details.

The governor will speak to a joint session at 12:30 p.m. but most lawmakers feel he would merely submit the items and urge them to make their decisions speedily.

West Monroe Boys' Club Observes Anniversary

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

On Feb. 23, the West Monroe Boys' Club observed its first anniversary. In a year's time, that organization, according to its leaders, has grown "beyond all expectations."

The growth has been both a challenge and an opportunity. The club has kept the pace.

In a single year, the facility has doubled and redoubled the activities it makes available to West Monroe youngsters, moved into a clubhouse on North Violet Street, expanded that club to include a spacious gymnasium and provided a "home away from home" for 568 boys.

As well, it's been the hub for the formation of a Boys Club Area Council, yoked in the common good with clubs at Bastrop and Shreveport. That combination, under the auspices of the national organization, Boys Clubs of America, was formed at a meeting in Monroe last Nov. 27. West Monroe President John McCormick is its first chairman and will preside at the first semi-annual meeting in Shreveport in April.

The club's development hasn't been easy, according to its director Kenneth Taylor and President McCormick, and it hasn't been the work of just a few.

In the organizational stages for over a year and founded and run on a shoestring before affiliation as an agency of the parish United Givers' Fund, the Boys Club still relies in large part on outside support.

"We couldn't operate without the United Givers Fund, of course," explains Taylor. "But we owe so much to so many organizations and individuals around town, both for helping us to get started and for supplying day to day needs and those little extras that mean so much to the boys and to the value of our program."

Taylor came to work in West Monroe from Camden, Ark., on Jan. 1, 1962. He is credited with responsibility for much of the club's success.

"And, naturally, much of our gratitude as we look back over our first year must go to the West Monroe American Legion, both for leasing us their post as a clubhouse and for adding the beautiful gym and shower area," the director adds.

The gym was started in July, dedicated in November and since has been the home court for three Boys Club basketball leagues and the proving ground for the team that will represent the club at a sectional tournament in Wichita Falls, Tex., Mar. 1-2.

A Boys Club team presently leads the West Monroe Recreational League, as well. Taylor's assistant, Roscoe Holcombe, coaches.

The past year evidently has been a busy one for the club's boy members, aged seven to 18. After an abbreviated program in the summer of 1961, put together piecemeal on several of the town's playgrounds and at a fishing camp near Columbia, things hit high gear with full-scale operation in February.

Most of the activities are attuned to the liking of the club's younger members, of which there are more numerically (ages 7-10—276; 11-13—182; 14-16—90; 17-18—20), though there's plenty for the big fellows to do, too.

This past summer, the boys could choose between softball, badminton and swimming, besides the special events such as a "tire rodeo," a fishing derby and the taking of physical fitness tests patterned along the lines of those recommended nationally by the President.

And as for the fishing derby, everybody was a winner, even though Glen Tidwell and Rickie Sims caught the biggest fish. Club Treasurer Harold Roberts had a whole trailer load of watermelons at pondside.

Swimming was almost as popular, with the two trips weekly by Boys Club bus to Swayze Natatorium in Monroe increased by the end of summer to daily runs.

Fall brought arts and crafts and weekly classes in woodwork, plaster of paris and leathercraft. Imaginations went wild and Taylor still points with pride to beautiful decorative and utilitarian pieces made from nothing more than bird feathers and popsicle sticks.

In athletics, the club's first winners in its basketball leagues were crowned recently. Among the older boys, it was the Bulldogs — Larry and Garry Bright, Benny Lawrence, Len Brister, Gary Williams and David Ashcraft — while among the younger the kingpins were the Rinky-Dinks — Johnny Copeland, Jackie Wilbanks, Andy Jones, Steve Williamson, Kenneth Lawrence and Ken Gallien.

Besides basketball among the organized sports, the kids had their pick from some pretty exotic sounding pastimes such as flag football (It's played with a flag in the back pocket which is snatched in lieu of a tackle) nok hockey and bop baseball. Pool, ping pong, chess and checkers were available at anytime.

Tournaments and individual competition were popular as always. For example, football throwing with an accent on accuracy and spotshot basketball shooting. The big men in those areas included, in football, Jerry Hattaway among the older boys, and Gerald Estes, Kenny Reeves and Nolan Baugh in descending age brackets. Eagle eyes with the basketball were Larry Bright and Bill Dorris, tied among the 13 years olds, and Kenneth Reeves, Jimmy York and Marvin Crane.

But, outside athletics, the boys made extensive use of the club's library where they found easy access to all types of books for pleasure reading, magazines and reference volumes.

Also stimulating the grey matter is a seven-week course at the club, open to any boy, entitled "Spacemen of the Future" and yielding a pretty close look at the solar system, space travel and the problems of exploration on other planets.

The class is held for one hour each Thursday, attended by 10 to 12 youngsters and taught by one of the boys, Bobby Nash. Running continuously, a new class starts at the close of the old. Included are field trips to Selman Field in Monroe, and young Nash has written to officials of the United States Mercury Project for additional information of interest to the class.

A great favorite of the boys and one of Taylor's particular prides is the club's bi-weekly newspaper, "The Banner." Started last summer, the sheet doesn't have an editor exactly but a livewire staff of regular contributors it does have — by name, Gerald Estes, Bobby Nash, Donnie Hicks, Danny Maynard and Jimmy Easterling.

A field trip to the News-Star—World is in prospect.

Besides news of club activities and developments, the more personal social notes always are read eagerly. Like "Jimmy York discovered a hair on his chest" and "Larry Scarbrough says there are too many girls wanting to date him."

In other areas, the Boys Club has been active in the affairs of the community. For example, they worked hand in glove with the West Monroe Ministerial Alliance in getting out advertising on Religion in American Life Week, and have distributed posters all over town to help in the drive for mass polio immunization.

About three months ago, the youngsters in the club area went together to form Boy Scout Troop 129, a troop of their own. Scoutmaster is N. B. Thurmond.

All of which makes for a varied program to say the least and one that's constantly on the upswing, always alert for things of interest to boys and, more importantly, of value in the molding of better citizens for the future.

Much has been done. Much remains to be done. Everybody's agreed on that. But, above all, what's been done has been a success and of service to the community. In the words of McCormick, who's city judge in West Monroe, "Once a boy has joined the club, he's never been in trouble with the law."

Gov. Barnett Will Address Joint Session

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Gov. Ross Barnett will address a joint session of the Legislature Monday as state lawmakers convene for their seventh session since 1960 to take up sheriff succession and reapportionment.

The reapportionment matter will be mostly a formality as the legislature is expected to place in the constitution a law recently approved by voters which would change seats in both houses for the first time since 1890.

The reapportionment, the result of two sessions and a popular vote, will set up a 52 member Senate and a 122-member House.

The present makeup is a 40-member Senate and a 140-member House.

Lawmakers now face details of the House organization for counties which would get more than one House seats. They must also decide whether candidates in these counties will run at large, from districts, or for seats designed by numbers.

The sheriff problem is for the legislature to work out details permitting sheriffs to succeed themselves in counties where they are stripped of tax collection duties.

The constitutional amendment which would permit sheriff succession was approved by voters last June, but cannot become effective until the legislature works out details.

The governor will speak to a joint session at 12:30 p.m. but most lawmakers feel he would merely submit the items and urge them to make their decisions speedily.

Mart Shows First Decline In 10 Weeks

NEW YORK (AP) — Profit taking on the stock market's prolonged advance finally grew strong enough last week to produce the first overall market decline in 10 weeks.

The drop was a moderate one. The trading week was shortened to four days by the Washington's Birthday holiday. One session of vigorously rising prices could have produced a net gain instead of a loss for the week.

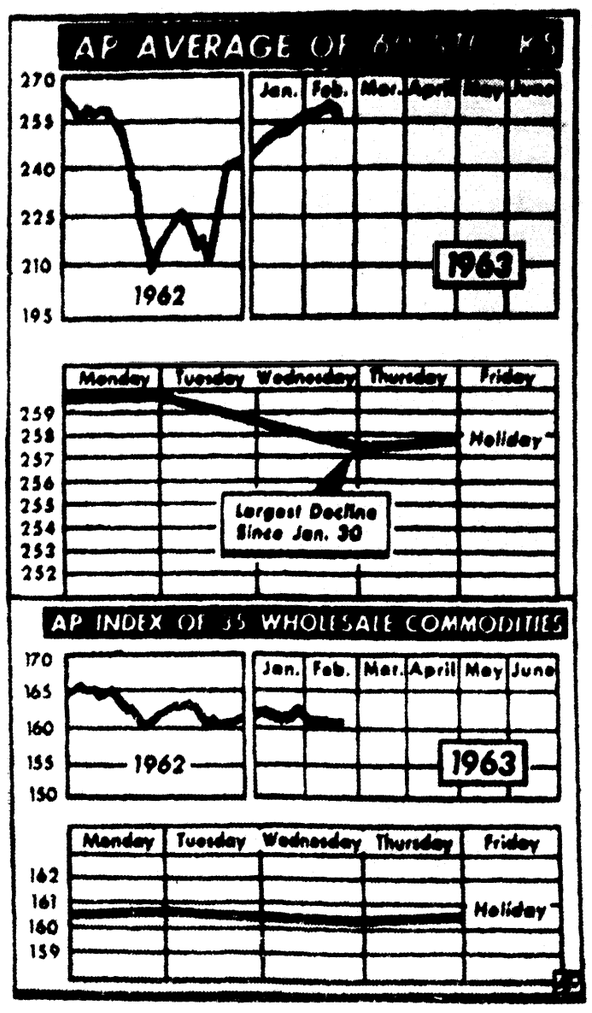
The market actually began the week by rising to a new recovery high on Monday—the highest level since last June's low. But the rise was marred by profit-taking, which began in mid session and carried to the close, although the averages ended the day with a slight advance.

The profit taking continued for two full sessions rather sharply. It was tapering off Thursday morning. Late improvement Thursday gave the list a slight gain on the eve of the three-day weekend.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which reached a recovery closing peak of 683.96 on Monday, ended the week at 681.64, for a net loss of 4.43.

Market Technicians said that the market seemed to be "bumping its head" Monday against overhead resistance in the form of stock for sale as it rose above 690 on an intra-day basis. The decline, at any rate, was ascribed chiefly to technical reasons rather than to any drastic change in the economic news.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks last week dropped 1.8 to 257.9.



THE ASSOCIATED press average of 60 stocks showed its first decline in 10 weeks, closing at 257.9 from 259.7 of a week earlier. The commodity index remained unchanged this week from the 160.5 of a week ago. Gains and loses in the commmodity index were evenly divided. (AP Wirephoto)

Business Briefs

SELLS INTEREST

James "Jake" Ussery has sold his interest in Ussery's Pharmacy so that he can devote all his time to the operation and management of Gibson's Prescription Pharmacy at 3000 Louisville Ave. in Monroe.

FIRM ELECTS

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — The election of three new directors and three new officers has been announced by Tri-State Mill Supply Company.

New directors elected are D. R. Kayser and A. F. Johnson, both of Crossett, and B. B. Reames, Fordyce. Kayser was also elected secretary. Johnson was elected treasurer. C. R. Wilson was elected assistant secretary and assistant treasurer.

CONSTRUCTION

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — Tri-State Mill Supply Company has announced plans to construct a new office building and warehouse at its headquarters here.

The building will include 20,000 square feet of floor space and cost an estimated $70,000, according to J. F. Stone, vice president of the company. Stone said that work has already started on clearing the site, and contracts for the construction will be awarded in the very near future. Plans call for completion of the building by early June.

HONOR CLUB

The Monroe district office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., managed by Jim Loker, has received congratulations from headquarters of the company for finishing 1962 in the top third in the southern region of the company.

Loker said "this is the best year that our district office has ever had and we are very proud of our Honor Club standing in 1962. The telegram to Loker said: "Congratulations to the Monroe District for Honor Club achievement in 1962. Your district finished in the top third in the Southern region. This qualification entitles the entire management team and qualified representatives to attend a Honor Club convention in June 1963. Our heartiest congratulations to all."

NEW CPA

Leonard Mark Webb, who has been a member of the staff of Garelick, Bradley and Heller of Monroe for the past seven years, has been notified that he was a successful candidate in the examination for Certified Public Accountants given at Shreveport. He has just received his certificate from the State Board of Certified Public Accountants of Louisiana and is now entitled to practice as a certified CPA.

Webb lives at 103 Swan Circle, West Monroe with his wife and two children. He is a member of the official board of the Southside Methodist Church in Monroe, and is a member of the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Market Comment

PRE-HOLIDAY TRADING LIGHT

The market closed a short week on Thursday losing ground for the first time in 1963. All stock exchanges were closed on Friday for Washington's Birthday with pre-holiday trading light. The DJIA closed at 681.64, down 4.43 for the week.

Volume over the 4 - day period averaged around 4 million shares contracting from 4½ to 5 million the week previous.

U. S. Smelting was the most active on the Big Board rising to a 1962-63 high of 33 on Tuesday as a proxy fight developed, but fell to 30 at the bell Thursday on a report of lower earnings.

Statistics indicated this week's strength was more selective as the number of advancing stocks did not approach the November and January levels and new highs failed to expand. Chief demand centered on the steel group as a further rise in the operating rate was reported and GM announced plans to stockpile an additional one million tons as a hedge against a possible summer steel strike. Most other groups were mixed although several electronics sank under pressure of selling.

In general, most high price earnings growth issues continued to lag recovery in the basic blue chip industrials. Some specialties which did well were Curtiss Wright, Collins Radio, Burroughs, United Carbon and Superior Oil.

American Can

This quality issue is considered an attractive conservative investment for a combination of income, relative safety and moderate long-term gains. At current levels, the stock is selling in line with its historic yield and price relative to earnings. Preliminary results for 1962 show a sales gain of 3.8 per cent to $1,181 million from $1,138 million in 1961. Earnings per share rose to $2.81 vs. $2.67 a year earlier. Earnings in the current year are tentatively estimated at or slightly above last year's level. The recent cold weather in many sections of the U.S. will probably affect packs in certain food lines, especially Florida citrus concentrates. Longer-range prospects for the company are enhanced by the anticipated further benefits of its modernization, expansion and diversification program and the emphasis on specialty packaging for convenience and display purpose.

• • •

Minn—Honeywell

The company has record sales of $596 million in 1962 compared with $470 million the year before. Reflecting increased earnings in most of the company's divisions indicated per share earnings approximated $3.72 vs. $3.48 in 1961. The most significant factors in the year's results were substantially higher military and space equipment sales and encouraging progress in the electronic data processing business. Military and space business accounted for 40 per cent of total sales volume, up from 32 per cent of the lower 1961 volume. Although losses on EDP are starting to decelerate, management has indicated that the breakeven point in computer operations is still some time away. Full year 1963 sales are expected to again reach record levels. Although EDP losses should be less of a drain on results than in recent years profit margins should continue under pressure. Therefore, we look for only a moderate earnings improvement over the $3.72 a share of 1962. The investment grade shares may be held for long range recovery.

Chrysler

Domestic retail sales of 14,784 passenger cars for the first 10 days of February represented 9.6 per cent of the market, compared to 13,375 units or 8.6 per cent of the cars sold in the first third of February, 1962. Some curtailment of the high production rate witnessed since late 1962 is a logical expectation with dealer inventories now relatively high and with slower winter demand in evidence. Stepped up sales efforts, plus the seasonal upswing in retail demand that normally starts toward spring, should help to keep factory output well above the depressed levels witnessed in the 1962 winter period. The wide advance of recent months has obviously increased shorter term risks, but the issue is reasonably evaluated at 12-13 times 1962 profits. With higher earnings attainable, the stock is regarded as affording appeal for further appreciation in time.

Court Adds New Chapter To Dispute

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Supreme Court has added another chapter to the controversy over federal control of interstate sales of natural gas.

The court ruled last Monday Kansas cannot require an interstate pipeline to spread its gas purchases equally among all the wells from which it buys in a single reservoir.

Kansas officials had argued the ratable take rule was vital to conservation and to the protection of correlative rights.

The court, by a 5-3 decision, said the rule invaded the Federal Power Commission's (FPC) exclusive jurisdiction over sale of gas transported in interstate commerce for resale.

The Supreme Court had set up the current controversy in 1954 by ruling the FPC must fix prices on gas sold to interstate lines.

Early industry reaction to Monday's decision was mild in comparison to the uproar of 1954.

The new ruling was described as "potentially tragic" decision that will create chaotic conditions. Some oilmen said the ruling adds urgency to the need for remedial legislation on the overall problem of federal regulation of interstate gas sales.

But there were some obvious signs of relief. There had been some fear the ruling might include a broad attack on a state's authority in the areas of production proration and conservation.

However, the ruling did not attack the theory behind ratable take. Instead, the court tossed out the method the Kansas corporation commission used in applying the theory.

The court indicated it would have no objection had the Kansas commission imposed its ratable take order on the producer instead of the interstate pipeliner.

Applying the order to a purchaser instead of a producer, the court said could seriously impair federal authority to regulate purchasers' cost structures and eventual costs to wholesale customers who sell to consumers in other states.

The majority opinion written by Justice William Joseph Brennan Jr. also indicated at one point the court concedes conservation authority to the states.

Brennan said the case did not involve the existence or scope of a state's power to conserve its natural resources.

He then added:

"The problem is only whether the constitution sanctions the particular means chosen by Kansas to exercise the conceded power if those means threaten effectuation of the federal regulatory scheme."

The Kansas case is very complicated. It involves the vast Hugoton gas field of Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas. It involves producer-pipeliner contracts dating back to the early 1930s.

The Northern Natural Gas Co. negotiated early gas purchase contracts affecting 144 wells. The contracts gave the wells a preferred right to supply the pipeline. Northern Natural later negotiated contracts affecting another 1,100 wells.

Phillips Production Project Is Underway

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Phillips Petroleum Co. was in the process Saturday of establishing oil production from the Ferry Lake anhydrite formation at its board of supervisors No. B-1, sec. 16-1n-4e, located in the Merit Field of Simpson County.

If commercial production is sustained, it will be the first time the formation has produced in the state. Testing from perforations at 12,877-940 feet, the zone has flowed by heads at the rate of 130 barrels of oil per day.

Operators are preparing to install pumping equipment in the well, a dual producer with the Sligo Zone at 13,688-708 feet flowing at the rate of 437 barrels of oil per day.

The well also established the first Sligo Zone production for the merit field with the zone being productive in other areas of the state.

In the 23-year-old Pickens Field of Yazoo and Madison counties Texaco Inc., has production casing in its Thomas No. 1, sec. 29-12n-3e to test commercial worth of oil shows found in the Selma chalk formation.

The well is on the Yazoo County side of the field and if productive will be the first production from the chalk for the field.

The well was drilled to 5,460 feet with production casing set at 4,534 feet. The current producing zone in the field is from the Eutaw sand zone at approximately 5,000 feet.

In the rapidly developing Summerland Field of Jones and Covington counties, two tests are drilling. Triad Oil and Gas Co. is below 6,500 feet in its Laird-Gambrell No.3, sec. 3-9n-14w and Miss-Tex oil and R. H. Boteler drilled below 10,100 feet in the Windham No. 1, sec. 3-9n-14w. Triad is running production tests at its Gambrell No. 5, sec. 34-10n-14w. Five other locations are taked in the field with all being on the Jones County side.

The second well in the recently found Wausau Field of Wayne County has been completed as a dual producer. The new producer is the Ora C. Collins No. 1, Fortenberry and Collins unit sec. 28-8n-9w. A Paluxy sand at 10,912-26 feet flowed at the rate of 259 barrels of oil daily and the Morringsport zone at 11,182-202 feet pumped at the rate of 101 barrels of oil per day. The new completion is a south offset to the discovery well. A third test is underway in the field with Chismor Co. below 12,266 feet in its Wausau No. 28-3, sec. 28-8n-9w.

In Amite County, one wildcat test is underway with George H. Jett drilling Co. below 9,900 feet in its Board of Supervisors No. 1, sec. 16-3n-4e, a scheduled 11,800 foot try.

Field drilling during the past week saw three new oilers completed.

In the Dexter Field on the Walthall County side, Austral Oil Co. finaled its Magee No. 1, sec. 3-1n-12e, flowing at the rate of 222 barrels of 36 gravity oil per day from a sand at 9717-32 feet.

In the Gilliard Lake field of Adams County, Griffin and Keary completed their McGee-Ford No. 4, sec. 30-5n-3w, flowing 225 barrels of oil daily from a sand at 6538-40 feet. Gravity of the oil was 40 degrees. At Summerland in Jones County, Larco Drlg. Corp., and Albert Stall finaled their Seals No. 1, sec. 2-9n-14w, pumping 372 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 9,496-9,502 feet.

In the Eucutta Field of Wayne County, Noel Clark and Dr. Charles Neil were in the process of completing their G. M. & O. No. 1, sec. 1-9n-9w, with the well testing at the rate of 218 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 8,083-89 feet.

3 Monroe Area UG Workers Are Honored

Three Monroe area employees of United Gas were recognized in the February issue of United Gas Log, employee publication, for service anniversaries totaling 90 years.

They are W. M. Roberts, meter and well attendant in the Monroe field, 35 years; Earl Crenshaw, chief clerk for the newly-created north Louisiana area, 30 years, and B. P. Williams, instrument man at Monroe, 25 years.

Roberts began his long career on Jan. 1, 1928, when he joined a United Gas predecessor company at Alto. He served as a meter and well attendant at Alto and later moved to Bastrop before transferring to Sterlington, where he has been located for many years.

Crenshaw joined United Gas on Jan. 12, 1933, as a member of the former Wichita Falls district accounting department. He was named district chief clerk in 1934 and served in that capacity for 14 years before transferring to Monroe in 1948 to [illegible]vise accounting work in the Monroe district. He was named to his present position when the new North Louisiana Area was set up with headquarters in Monroe.

Williams joined the company Jan. 5, 1938, at New Castle, Tex., and was transferred to the Monroe area in 1949, when he was promoted to meter inspector. He became an instrument man in July, 1962.

Strange Strike Continued By Milan Students

MILAN, Italy (AP)—Barricaded in their class rooms, the University of Milan's architecture students sat out Saturday night the 10th night of one of the strangest strikes in the curriculum of college capers.

They insist they won't let their professors in until courses are made harder and exams stiffer.

The professors are staying out, refusing to make the classwork tougher than it is.

"It looks like a stalemate," a spokesman for the 400 sit-in student strikers said. "We're not going to give in—and so far there have been no signs that the professors are going to, either."

Behind the strike is the shadow of evermounting student criticism of ancient Italy's modern educational system.

"School authorities," some of the students said, "are failing to keep up with the changing times. Even the past of Italy's glorious heritage of culture can become a burden if efforts are not made to rejuvenate it to fit the needs of the present."

Specifically, the students are demanding guest lectures by successful, practicing modern architects, harder courses, and tougher exams that will weed out the incompetent and fit the graduates for jobs in booming, modern Italy. They also want a consultative say with their faculty advisors on what the courses should include.

"We realize this will mean more work for us," a student spokesman said. "Harder courses—less spare time. And that's exactly what we want."

The faculty of the College of Architecture said it did not object so much to what the students wanted, as to how they were going about getting it. And they rejected taking the students into consultation on how the school should be run.

The strike has gradually settled down into an organized pattern.

At first girl friends and relatives slipped through the guarded doors bearing coffee, sandwiches and cigarettes. Now the embattled students have worked out shifts whereby 50 remain in the building at all times and the others can get out to sleep at home or eat in nearby restaurants.

U.S., Britain End Talks On NATO Force

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and Britain reportedly reached general agreement Saturday on steps that might be taken by the Allied powers to create a nuclear force command under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The State Department announced completion of talks between the two governments which started here a week ago. Results will now go before the North Atlantic Council in Paris.

The British government agreed at Nassau, Bahamas, Dec. 21 to assign a nuclear armed bomber force to NATO with the United States to put in a matching force. The British have now been told that the initial U.S. contribution will be in the form of Polaris submarines rather than bombers.

The Washington talks were conducted by Asst. Secretary of State William R. Tyler and by Denis Greenhill of the British Embassy.

It is understood that both the U.S. and British governments feel that the NATO nuclear forces should be placed under command of the supreme Allied commander in Europe, Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, a U.S. officer. It is expected that a deputy for nuclear forces will be designated under him.

The United States is putting three Polaris submarines into the Mediterranean at the end of the month. A fleet of the nuclear subs is already on duty in the Atlantic. Assignments to NATO could be made from both the Mediterranean and Atlantic forces.

A third element of the NATO force is now being negotiated in Europe by President Kennedy's special envoy, Ambassador Livingston T. Merchant. This element could be a multinational force armed with Polaris missiles based on surface ships and equipped with U.S.-supplied nuclear warheads.

Mrs. Greenwood Dies; Services Remain Pending

Mrs. Celia Greenwood, 74, died Saturday afternoon at the residence of her son, Joe Greenwood, 203 Lincoln Road in Monroe, following an illness of several months.

Funeral arrangements Saturday were incomplete but services will be held at Harrisburg, Ark., Baptist Church with burial at Tyer Cemetery in Cherry Valley, Ark.

Survivors in addition to the son living in Monroe, include another son, Guy David Greenwood, Hannibal, Mo.; one daughter, Mrs. Marie Jane Garner, East St. Louis, Ill., and 10 grandchildren.

She was a native of Pitsfield, Illinois and a member of the Harrisburg, Ark. Methodist Church.

Local arrangements are under the direction of Mulhearn Funeral Home.

U.S., Soviet Slipping Into Hostile Pattern

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union are sliding back into the hostile pattern of name calling, rocket rattling and cold war maneuvering which often leads to some severe crisis in East-West relations.

The strong conviction in official quarters here after the Cuban crisis last fall that profound improvements were almost inevitable in Moscow-Washington relations is ebbing.

NEWS ANALYSIS

Hopes for early agreement on a nuclear test ban treaty through negotiation at Geneva have all but vanished. The United States favors resuming talks with Russia on the Berlin problem, as the Soviet government suggested last month, but positive results from such a further exchange on this critical issues are not now expected.

State Department officials privately agree the Soviet attitude toward the United States is hardening but enter one major reservation. Premier Khrushchev has not committed himself to a new policy of belligerence. The Kremlin may still be reviewing its policy as it was in the immediate postcrisis period. There is some evidence it is still on a zig-zag course, but the swing now is unmistakably to a tougher line.

Saturday the top Soviet negotiator at the Geneva disarmament conference, Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily W. Kuznetsov, left for Moscow only hours before the U.S. disarmament chief, William F. Foster, was due back in Geneva from Washington.

Nuclear test ban talks have moved into a deadlock in the last two weeks and Kuznetsov's departure is apparently a snub to further efforts at agreement, as promised by Foster.

What is happening in the nuclear test field is only one of recent tension - creating incidents that tend to harden East-West policies with a potentially profound effect on Allied as well as cold war problems.

For example, if President Kennedy's relations with Khrushchev get worse — as they normally would in a period of cold war tension—his relations with French President Charles de Gaulle might get better.

Yet the tendency of the Western Allies as a group is to divide along different lines when the tensions are high as compared with the splits which appeared when Soviet pressures relax. So there might be more difficulties between Washington and London.

Also, if the cold war should really get rough again, the present effort to tighten the North Atlantic Treaty Organizations and promote unity within the Western world would probably be sidetracked; governments concentrate on what ever crisis is before them and let the long-range programs wait.

The most spectacular evidence of a toughening of Soviet policy may actually be the least significant at the moment. That was Friday's speech by the Soviet defense minister, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky, in which he boasted of Soviet nuclear might and warned the United States that any attack on Cuba would start World War III.

This tough and belligerent talk, in the presence of Khrushchev, made less impression than might have been expected at the White House and the State and Defense Department.

There are two reasons for this:

Intelligence experts expected the Soviets to try to rebuild some of the prestige they lost in Cuba. The speech was delivered on the Russian equivalent of Armed Forces Day and violent statements are characteristic of national military days on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

Yet there was a sharp contrast between the U.S. and Soviet government lines. While Malinovsky's threats were still fresh, Secretary of State Dean Rusk spoke in Cincinnati Friday night and made what amounted to an appeal for moderation in Soviet policies and continuing joint efforts to halt the nuclear arms race.

Rusk credited Kremlin chieftains with recognizing they have as much need as other governments to avoid nuclear war.

But this is not really the problem. The problem is to find ways of controlling issues which could build up into a nuclear conflict that everybody wanted to avoid. That is why so much importance has been attached to the Geneva disarmament negotiations.

After the Kennedy-Khrushchev confrontation over Cuba there was a great deal of optimistic talk about how the agreement to resolve a crisis in the Caribbean should lead into other agreements. Hopes for a nuclear test ban were boosted a little more than a month ago when the State Department released an exchange of correspondence between Kennedy and Khrushchev in which Khrushchev accepted anew the principle of on-site inspections on Soviet territory.

About the same time the two leaders were laying the groundwork for resuming nuclear talks—which have now really collapsed—relations between Khrushchev and the leaders of Red China were growing worse. This fed high-level speculation in Washington that Khrushchev was going through an internal policy crisis in which he needed some agreement with the West to show that he and not the more hostile Chinese Reds is correct—that peaceful coexistence could get results.

In the last week or so the Peking press has published Soviet policy statements on the row in the bloc and there has been considerably more emphasis on the need for unity in both Russia and Red China. Again the change of trend is not decisive but it could mean that the Reds intend to submerge their differences in an effort to take some advantage of the obvious splits in the Western camp.

Another point which some officials here suggest is that when the United States pushes measures to strengthen military power in Western Europe Moscow always reacts with agitation and threats of counteraction which may not even be closely related.

Thus within the last two months or so Khrushchev has both invited new informal discussions on the Berlin settlement and bitterly denounced any move by the West, which in his judgment, would give West Germany access to nuclear arms.

CONTRADICTIONS RIFE

Market Observers Watch In Confusion

By ROGER LANE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Contradictory readings on the direction of the economy and business confounded pulsetakers during the week.

For every plus there was a minus.

And if this added up to a muddy picture, there were few signs of haste among the economic doctors in Washington to clarify it by prescribing medicines urged by President Kennedy, notably income tax revision.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., Senate majority leader, chided his colleagues for wasting time on secondary matters, and urged them to buckle down to legislating. Mansfield said six weeks had been lost.

Perhaps the brightest development occurred in steel, but even a smart rise in production for the second straight week in this basic industry had its shadowy side.

The pickup in mill activity, amounting to nearly 10 per cent in the last two weeks, was spurred by stockpiling of big users as a hedge against possible labor - management conflict this summer.

Inventory building now thus may produce a corresponding slackening in demand later on when the inventories are consumed.

Typical of the cross-currents was a General Motors decision to pile up a one-million-ton reserve of steel by July 30, coupled with announcement of an economy-spurring program to lay out $1.3 billion for plants, equipment and special tools.

A round of price-cutting on stainless steel products touched off by U.S. Steel was another disquieting factor.

Another note of optimism injected by disclosure of record 1962 earnings by American Telephone & Telegraph Co. was offset somewhat by declines reported by U.S. Rubber Co. and other companies.

The stock market wobbled uncertainly, but gave ground most of the time.

Businessmen were heartened by some of the statistics gushing from federal government bureaus, disappointed by others.

In the encouraging category was a rise in new orders received by durable goods manufacturers in January, reversing a two-month downtrend. New orders reached an annual rate of $16.2 billion, seasonally adjusted.

Also, revised figures put the gross national product—output of goods and services—up to an annual rate of $563.5 billion for the fourth quarter of 1962, $1.5 billion above earlier estimates, and fourth-quarter inventory accumulation was reported at an annual rate of $1.2 billion, slightly above the preceding three months.

Personal income rose a bit to a rate of $452.4 billion a year in January, but only with the help of a $2-billion disbursement in GI life insurance dividends, a one-shot influence.

On the disappointing side was word that housing starts in January dropped 15 per cent from December to an annual rate of 1,242,000. Previously, retail sales and factory payrolls were reported down.

In other bad news, the government officially estimated last year's unfavorable balance of international payments at $2.2 billion, a good deal higher level than had been hoped for in early 1962.

And automobile production, a particularly buoying influence in the economy for more than a year, was slated during the week for the lowest level since last September during the 1963 model changeover.

Briefly around the business scene: P. Lorillard Co., reporting a dip in earnings in 1962, said it nevertheless moved into third place in tobacco industry sales, passing up Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. . .George Meany, AFL-CIO president, said after a meeting of labor leaders the administration wasn't doing enough to cut the unemployment rate which he said threatens to rise above six per cent. . .Oil refineries operated at a record pace for a second straight week as continued cold weather stepped up demand for heating fuel.

Mart Shows First Decline In 10 Weeks

NEW YORK (AP) — Profit-taking on the stock market's prolonged advance finally grew strong enough last week to produce the first over-all market decline in 10 weeks.

The drop was a moderate one. The trading week was shortened to four days by the Washington's Birthday holiday. One session of vigorously rising prices could have produced a net gain instead of a loss for the week.

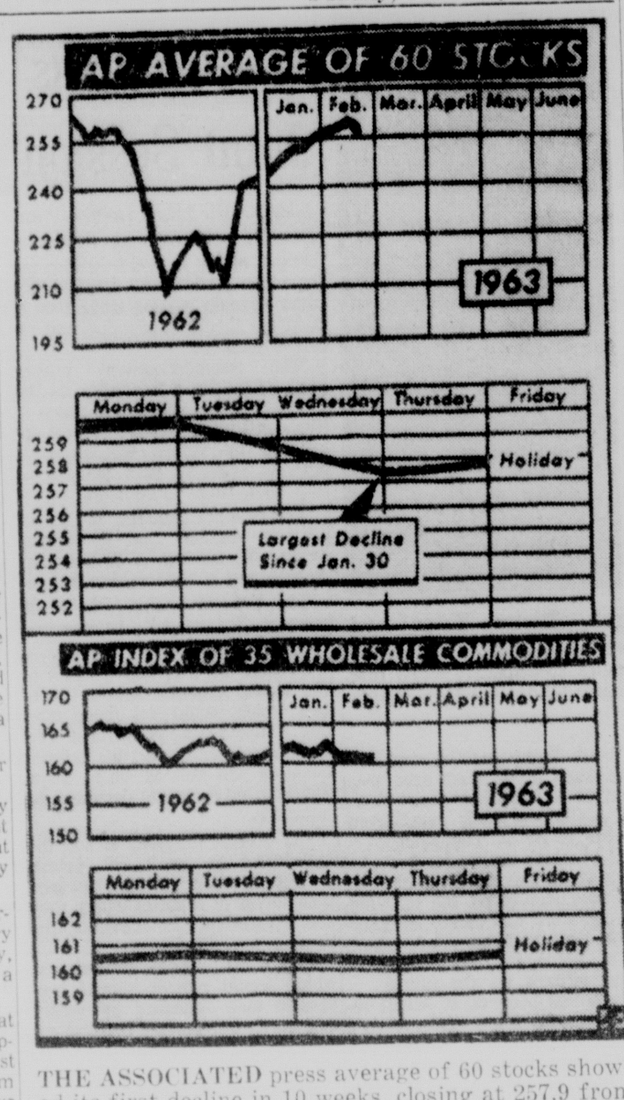
The market actually began the week by rising to a new recovery high on Monday—the highest level since last June's low. But the rise was marred by profit-taking, which began in mid session and carried to the close, although the averages ended the day with a slight advance.

The profit-taking continued for two full sessions rather sharply. It was tapering off Thursday morning. Late improvement Thursday gave the list a slight gain on the eve of the three-day weekend.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which reached a recovery closing peak of 688.96 on Monday, ended the week at 681.64, for a net loss of 4.43.

Market Technicians said that the market seemed to be "bumping its head" Monday against overhead resistance in the form of stock for sale as it rose above 690 on an intra-day basis. The decline, at any rate, was ascribed chiefly to technical reasons rather than to any drastic change in the economic news.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks last week dropped 1.8 to 257.9.



THE ASSOCIATED press average of 60 stocks showed its first decline in 10 weeks, closing at 257.9 from 259.7 of a week earlier. The commodity index remained unchanged this week from the 160.5 of a week ago. Gains and loses in the commmodity index were evenly divided. (AP Wirephoto)

James "Jake" Ussery has sold his interest in Ussery's Pharmacy so that he can devote all his time to the operation and management of Gibson's Prescription Pharmacy at 3000 Louisville Ave. in Monroe.

FIRM ELECTS

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — The election of three new directors and three new officers has been announced by Tri-State Mill Supply Company.

New directors elected are D. R. Kayser and A. F. Johnson, both of Crossett, and B. B. Reames, Fordyce. Kayser was also elected secretary, Johnson was elected treasurer. C. R. Wilson was elected assistant secretary and assistant treasurer.

CONSTRUCTION

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — Tri-State Mill Supply Company has announced plans to construct a new office building and warehouse at its headquarters here.

The building will include 20,000 square feet of floor space and cost an estimated $70,000, according to J. F. Stone, vice president of the company. Stone said that work has already started on clearing the site, and contracts for the construction will be awarded in the very near future. Plans call for completion of the buliding by early June.

HONOR CLUB

The Monroe district office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., managed by Jim Loker, has received congratulations from headquarters of the company for finishing 1962 in the top third in the southern region of the company.

Loker said "this is the best year that our district office has ever had and we are very proud of our Honor Club standing in 1962. The telegram to Loker said: "Congratulations to the Monroe District for Honor Club achievement in 1962. Your district finished in the top third in the Southern region. This qualification entitles the entire management team and qualified representatives to attend a Honor Club convention in June 1963. Our heartiest congratulations to all."

Webb lives at 103 Swan Circle, West Monroe with his wife and two children. He is a member of the official board of the Southside Methodist Church in Monroe, and is a member of the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Market Comment

PRE-HOLIDAY TRADING LIGHT

The market closed a short week on Thursday losing ground for the first time in 1963. All stock exchanges were closed on Friday for Washington's Birthday with pre-holiday trading light. The DJIA closed at 681.64, down 4.43 for the week. Volume over the 4 - day period averaged around 4 million shares contracting from 4½ to 5 million the week previous.

U.S. Smelting was the most active on the Big Board rising to a 1962-63 high of 88 on Tuesday as a proxy fight developed, but fell to 70 at the bell Thursday on a report of lower earnings.

Statistics indicated this week's strength was more selective as the number of advancing stocks did not approach the November and January levels and new highs failed to expand. Chief demand centered on the steel group as a further rise in the operating rate was reported and GM announced plans to stockpile an additional one million tons as a hedge against a possible summer steel strike. Most other groups were mixed although several electronics sank under pressure of selling.

In general, most high price earnings growth issues continued to lag recovery in the basic blue chip industrials. Some specialties which did well were Curtiss Wright, Collins Radio, Burroughs, United Carbon and Superior Oil.

American Can

This quality issue is considered an attractive conservative investment for a combination of income, relative safety and moderate long-term gains. At current levels, the stock is selling in line with its historic yield and price relative to earnings. Preliminary results for 1962 show a sales gain of 3.8 per cent to $1,181 million from $1,138 million in 1961. Earnings per share rose to $2.81 vs. $2.67 a year earlier. Earnings in the current year are tentatively estimated at or slightly above last year's level. The recent cold weather in many sections of the U.S. will probably affect packs in certain food lines, especially Florida citrus concentrates. Longer-range prospects for the company are enhanced by the anticipated further benefits of its modernization, expansion and diversification program and the emphasis on specialty packaging for convenience and display purpose.

Minn—Honeywell

The company has record sales of $596 million in 1962 compared with $470 million the year before. Reflecting increased earnings in most of the company's divisions indicated per share earnings approximated $3.72 vs. $3.48 in 1961. The most significant factors in the year's results were substantially higher military and space equipment sales and encouraging progress in the electronic data processing business. Military and space business accounted for 40 per cent of total sales volume, up from 32 per cent of the lower 1961 volume. Although losses on EDP are starting to decelerate, management has indicated that the breakeven point in computer operations is still some time away. Full year 1963 sales are expected to again reach record levels. Although EDP losses should be less of a drain on results than in recent years profit margins should continue under pressure. Therefore, we look for only a moderate earnings improvement over the $3.72 a share of 1962. The investment grade shares may be held for long range recovery.

Chrysler

Domestic retail sales of 14,784 passenger cars for the first 10 days of February represented 9.6 per cent of the market, compared to 13,375 units or 8.6 per cent of the cars sold in the first third of February, 1962. Some curtailment of the high production rate witnessed since late 1962 is a logical expectation with dealer inventories now relatively high and with slower winter demand in evidence. Stepped up sales efforts, plus the seasonal upswing in retail demand that normally starts toward spring, should help to keep factory output well above the depressed levels witnessed in the 1962 winter period. The wide advance of recent months has obviously increased shorter term risks, but the issue is reasonably evaluated at 12-13 times 1962 profits. With higher earnings attainable, the stock is regarded as affording appeal for further appreciation in time.

Court Adds New Chapter To Dispute

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Supreme Court has added another chapter to the controversy over federal control of interstate sales of natural gas.

The court ruled last Monday Kansas cannot require an interstate pipeline to spread its gas purchases equally among all the wells from which it buys in a single reservoir.

Kansas officials had argued the ratable take rule was vital to conservation and to the protection of correlative rights.

The court, by a 5-3 decision, said the rule invaded the Federal Power Commission's (FPC) exclusive jurisdiction over sale of gas transported in interstate commerce for resale.

The Supreme Court had set up the current controversy in 1954 by ruling the FPC must fix prices on gas sold to interstate lines.

Early industry reaction to Monday's decision was mild in comparison to the uproar of 1954.

The new ruling was described as "potentially tragic" decision that will create chaotic conditions. Some oilmen said the ruling adds urgency to the need for remedial legislation on the overall problem of federal regulation of interstate gas sales.

But there were some obvious signs of relief. There had been some fear the ruling might include a broad attack on a state's authority in the areas of production proration and conservation.

However, the ruling did not attack the theory behind ratable take. Instead, the court tossed out the method the Kansas corporation commission used in applying the theory.

The court indicated it would have no objection had the Kansas commission imposed its ratable take order on the producer instead of the interstate pipeliner.

Applying the order to a purchaser instead of a producer, the court said could seriously impair federal authority to regulate purchasers' cost structures and eventual costs to wholesale customers who sell to consumers in other states.

The majority opinion written by Justice William Joseph Brennan Jr. also indicated at one point the court concedes conservation authority to the states.

Brennan said the case did not involve the existence or scope of a state's power to conserve its natural resources.

He then added:

"The problem is only whether the constitution sanctions the particular means chosen by Kansas to exercise the conceded power if those means threaten effectuation of the federal regulatory scheme."

The Kansas case is very complicated. It involves the vast Hugoton gas field of Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas. It involves producer-pipeliner contracts dating back to the early 1930s.

The Northern Natural Gas Co. negotiated early gas purchase contracts affecting 144 wells. The contracts gave the wells a preferred right to supply the pipeline. Northern Natural later negotiated contracts affecting another 1,100 wells.

Phillips Production Project Is Underway

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Phillips Petroleum Co. was in the process Saturday of establishing oil production from the Ferry Lake anhydrite formation at its board of supervisors No. B-1, sec. 16-1n-4e, located in the Merit Field of Simpson County.

If commercial production is sustained, it will be the first time the formation has produced in the state. Testing from perforations at 12,877-940 feet, the zone has flowed by heads at the rate of 130 barrels of oil per day.

Operators are preparing to install pumping equipment in the well, a dual producer with the Sligo Zone at 13,688-708 feet flowing at the rate of 437 barrels of oil per day.

The well also established the first Sligo Zone production for the merit field with the zone being productive in other areas of the state.

In the 23-year-old Pickens Field of Yazoo and Madison counties Texaco Inc., has production casing in its Thomas No. 1, sec. 29-12n-3e to test commercial worth of oil shows found in the Selma chalk formation.

The well is on the Yazoo County side of the field and if productive will be the first production from the chalk for the field.

The well was drilled to 5,460 feet with production casing set at 4,534 feet. The current producing zone in the field is from the Eutaw sand zone at approximately 5,000 feet.

In the rapidly developing Summerland Field of Jones and Covington counties, two tests are drilling. Triad Oil and Gas Co. is below 6,500 feet in its Laird-Gambrell No.3, sec. 3-9n-14w and Miss-Tex oil and R. H. Boteler drilled below 10,100 feet in the Windham No. 1, sec. 3-9n-14w. Triad is running production tests at its Gambrell No. 5, sec. 34-10n-14w. Five other locations are taked in the field with all being on the Jones County side.

The second well in the recently found Wausau Field of Wayne County has been completed as a dual producer. The new producer is the Ora C. Collins No. 1, Fortenberry and Collins unit sec. 28-8n-9w. A Paluxy sand at 10,912-26 feet flowed at the rate of 259 barrels of oil daily and the Morringsport zone at 11,182-202 feet pumped at the rate of 101 barrels of oil per day. The new completion is a south offset to the discovery well. A third test is underway in the field with Chismor Co. below 12,266 feet in its Wausau No. 28-3, sec. 28-8n-9w.

In Amite County, one wildcat test is underway with George H. Jett drilling Co. below 9,900 feet in its Board of Supervisors No. 1, sec. 16-3n-4e, a scheduled 11,800 foot try.

Field drilling during the past week saw three new oilers completed.

In the Dexter Field on the Walthall County side, Austral Oil Co. finaled its Magee No. 1, sec. 3-1n-12e, flowing at the rate of 222 barrels of 36 gravity oil per day from a sand at 9717-32 feet.

In the Gilliard Lake field of Adams County, Griffin and Keary completed their McGee-Ford No. 4, sec. 30-5n-3w, flowing 225 barrels of oil daily from a sand at 6538-40 feet. Gravity of the oil was 40 degrees. At Summerland in Jones County, Larco Drlg. Corp., and Albert Stall finaled their Seals No. 1, sec. 2-9n-14w, pumping 372 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 9,496-9,502 feet.

In the Eucutta Field of Wayne County, Noel Clark and Dr. Charles Neil were in the process of completing their G. M. & O. No. 1, sec. 1-9n-9w, with the well testing at the rate of 218 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 8,083-89 feet.

3 Monroe Area UG Workers Are Honored

Three Monroe area employees of United Gas were recognized in the February issue of United Gas Log, employee publication, for service anniversaries totaling 90 years.

They are W. M. Roberts, meter and well attendant in the Monroe field, 35 years; Earl Crenshaw, chief clerk for the newly-created north Louisiana area, 30 years, and B. P. Williams, instrument man at Monroe, 25 years.

Roberts began his long career on Jan. 1, 1928, when he joined a United Gas predecessor company at Alto. He served as a meter and well attendant at Alto and later moved to Bastrop before transferring to Sterlington, where he has been located for many years.

Crenshaw joined United Gas on Jan. 12, 1933, as a member of the former Wichita Falls district accounting department. He was named district chief clerk in 1934 and served in that capacity for 14 years before transferring to Monroe in 1948 to supervise accounting work in the Monroe district. He was named to his present position when the new North Louisiana Area was set up with headquarters in Monroe.

Williams joined the company Jan. 5, 1938, at New Castle, Tex., and was transferred to the Monroe area in 1949, when he was promoted to meter inspector. He became an instrument man in July, 1962.

Strange Strike Continued By Milan Students

MILAN, Italy (AP)—Barricaded in their class rooms, the University of Milan's architecture students sat out Saturday night the 10th night of one of the strangest strikes in the curriculum of college capers.

They insist they won't let their professors in until courses are made harder and exams stiffer.

The professors are staying out, refusing to make the classwork tougher than it is.

"It looks like a stalemate," a spokesman for the 400 sit-in student strikers said. "We're not going to give in—and so far there have been no signs that the professors are going to, either."

Behind the strike is the shadow of evermounting student criticism of ancient Italy's modern educational system.

"School authorities," some of the students said, "are failing to keep up with the changing times. Even the past of Italy's glorious heritage of culture can become a burden if efforts are not made to rejuvenate it to fit the needs of the present."

Specifically, the students are demanding guest lectures by successful, practicing modern architects, harder courses, and tougher exams that will weed out the incompetent and fit the graduates for jobs in booming, modern Italy. They also want a consultative say with their faculty advisors on what the courses should include.

"We realize this will mean more work for us," a student spokesman said. "Harder courses—less spare time. And that's exactly what we want."

The faculty of the College of Architecture said it did not object so much to what the students wanted, as to how they were going about getting it. And they rejected taking the students into consultation on how the school should be run.

The strike has gradually settled down into an organized pattern.

At first girl friends and relatives slipped through the guarded doors bearing coffee, sandwiches and cigarettes. Now the embattled students have worked out shifts whereby 50 remain in the building at all times and the others can get out to sleep at home or eat in nearby restaurants.

U.S., Britain End Talks On NATO Force

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and Britain reportedly reached general agreement Saturday on steps that might be taken by the Allied powers to create a nuclear force command under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The State Department announced completion of talks between the two governments which started here a week ago. Results will now go before the North Atlantic Council in Paris.

The British government agreed at Nassau, Bahamas, Dec. 21 to assign a nuclear armed bomber force to NATO with the United States to put in a matching force. The British have now been told that the initial U.S. contribution will be in the form of Polaris submarines rather than bombers.

The Washington talks were conducted by Asst. Secretary of State William R. Tyler and by Denis Greenhill of the British Embassy.

It is understood that both the U.S. and British governments feel that the NATO nuclear forces should be placed under command of the supreme Allied commander in Europe, Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, a U.S. officer. It is expected that a deputy for nuclear forces will be designated under him.

The United States is putting three Polaris submarines into the Mediterranean at the end of the month. A fleet of the nuclear subs is already on duty in the Atlantic. Assignments to NATO could be made from both the Mediterranean and Atlantic forces.

A third element of the NATO force is now being negotiated in Europe by President Kennedy's special envoy, Ambassador Livingston T. Merchant. This element could be a multinational force armed with Polaris missiles based on surface ships and equipped with U.S.-supplied nuclear warheads.

U.S., Soviet Slipping Into Hostile Pattern

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union are sliding back into the hostile pattern of name calling, rocket rattling and cold war maneuvering which often leads to some severe crisis in East-West relations.

The strong conviction in official quarters here after the Cuban crisis last fall that profound improvements were almost inevitable in Moscow-Washington relations is ebbing.

NEWS ANALYSIS

Hopes for early agreement on a nuclear test ban treaty through negotiation at Geneva have all but vanished. The United States favors resuming talks with Russia on the Berlin problem, as the Soviet government suggested last month, but positive results from such a further exchange on this critical issues are not now expected.

State Department officials privately agree the Soviet attitude toward the United States is hardening but enter one major reservation. Premier Khrushchev has not committed himself to a new policy of belligerence. The Kremlin may still be reviewing its policy as it was in the immediate posterisis period. There is some evidence it is still on a zig-zag course, but the swing now is unmistakably to a tougher line.

Saturday the top Soviet negotiator at the Geneva disarmament conference, Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily W. Kuznetsov, left for Moscow only hours before the U.S. disarmament chief, William F. Foster, was due back in Geneva from Washington.

Nuclear test ban talks have moved into a deadlock in the last two weeks and Kuznetsov's departure is apparently a snub to further efforts at agreement, as promised by Foster.

What is happening in the nuclear test field is only one of recent tension-creating incidents that tend to harden East-West policies with a potentially profound effect on Allied as well as cold war problems.

For example, if President Kennedy's relations with Khrushchev get worse — as they normally would in a period of cold war tension—his relations with French President Charles de Gaulle might get better.

Yet the tendency of the Western Allies as a group is to divide along different lines when the tensions are high as compared with the splits which appeared when Soviet pressures relax. So there might be more difficulties between Washington and London.

Also, if the cold war should really get rough again, the present effort to tighten the North Atlantic Treaty Organizations and promote unity within the Western world would probably be sidetracked; governments concentrate on what ever crisis is before them and let the long-range programs wait.

The most spectacular evidence of a toughening of Soviet policy may actually be the least significant at the moment. That was Friday's speech by the Soviet defense minister, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky, in which he boasted of Soviet nuclear might and warned the United States that any attack on Cuba would start World War III.

This tough and belligerent talk in the presence of Khrushchev, made less impression than might have been expected at the White House and the State and Defense Department.

There are two reasons for this: Intelligence experts expected the Soviets to try to rebuild some of the prestige they lost in Cuba. The speech was delivered on the Russian equivalent of Armed Forces Day and violent statements are characteristic of national military days on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

Yet there was a sharp contrast between the U.S. and Soviet government lines. While Malinovsky's threats were still fresh, Secretary of State Dean Rusk spoke in Cincinnati Friday night and made what amounted to an appeal for moderation in Soviet policies and continuing joint efforts to halt the nuclear arms race.

Rusk credited Kremlin chieftains with recognizing they have as much need as other governments to avoid nuclear war.

But this is not really the problem. The problem is to find ways of controlling issues which could build up into a nuclear conflict that everybody wanted to avoid. That is why so much importance has been attached to the Geneva disarmament negotiations.

After the Kennedy-Khrushchev confrontation over Cuba there was a great deal of optimistic talk about how the agreement to resolve a crisis in the Caribbean should lead into other agreements. Hopes for a nuclear test ban were boosted a little more than a month ago when the State Department released an exchange of correspondence between Kennedy and Khrushchev in which Khrushchev accepted anew the principle of on-site inspections on Soviet territory.

About the same time the two leaders were laying the groundwork for resuming nuclear talks —which have now really collapsed — relations between Khrushchev and the leaders of Red China were growing worse. This fed high-level speculation in Washington that Khrushchev was going through an internal policy crisis in which he needed some agreement with the West to show that he and not the more hostile Chinese Reds is correct—that peaceful coexistence could get results.

In the last week or so the Peking press has published Soviet policy statements on the row in the bloc and there has been considerably more emphasis on the need for unity in both Russia and Red China. Again the change of trend is not decisive but it could mean that the Reds intend to submerge their differences in an effort to take some advantage of the obvious splits in the Western camp.

Another point which some officials here suggest is that when the United States pushes measures to strengthen military power in Western Europe Moscow always reacts with agitation anl threats of counteraction which may not even be closely related.

Thus within the last two months or so Khrushchev has both invited new informal discussions on the Berlin settlement and bitterly denounced any move by the West, which in his judgment, would give West Germany access to nuclear arms.

CONTRADICTIONS RIFE

Market Observers Watch In Confusion

By ROGER LANE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Contradictory readings on the direction of the economy and business confounded pulsetakers during the week.

For every plus there was a minus.

And if this added up to a muddy picture, there were few signs of haste among the economic doctors in Washington to clarify it by prescribing medicines urged by President Kennedy, notably income tax revision.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., Senate majority leader, chided his colleagues for wasting time on secondary matters, and urged them to buckle down to legislating. Mansfield said six weeks had been lost.

Perhaps the brightest development occurred in steel, but even a smart rise in production for the second straight week in this basic industry had its shadowy side.

The pickup in mill activity, amounting to nearly 10 per cent in the last two weeks, was spurred by stockpiling of big users as a hedge against possible labor-management conflict this summer.

Inventory building now thus may produce a corresponding slackening in demand later on when the inventories are consumed.

Typical of the cross-currents was a General Motors decision to pile up a one-million-ton reserve of steel by July 30, coupled with announcement of an economy-spurring program to lay out $1.3 billion for plants, equipment and special tools.

A round of price-cutting on stainless steel products touched off by U.S. Steel was another disquieting factor.

Another note of optimism injected by disclosure of record 1962 earnings by American Telephone & Telegraph Co. was offset somewhat by declines reported by U.S. Rubber Co. and other companies.

The stock market wobbled uncertainly, but gave ground most of the time.

Businessmen were heartened by some of the statistics gushing from federal government bureaus, disappointed by others.

In the encouraging category was a rise in new orders received by durable goods manufacturers in January, reversing a two-month downtrend. New orders reached an annual rate of $16.2 billion, seasonally adjusted.

Also, revised figures put the gross national product—output of goods and services—up to an annual rate of $563.5 billion for the fourth quarter of 1962, $1.5 billion above earlier estimates, and fourth-quarter inventory accumulation was reported at an annual rate of $1.2 billion, slightly above the preceding three months.

Personal income rose a bit to a rate of $452.4 billion a year in January, but only with the help of a $2-billion disbursement in GI life insurance dividends, a one-shot influence.

On the disappointing side was word that housing starts in January dropped 15 per cent from December to an annual rate of 1,242,000. Previously, retail sales and factory payrolls were reported down.

In other bad news, the government officially estimated last year's unfavorable balance of international payments at $2.2 billion, a good deal higher level than had been hoped for in early 1962.

And automobile production, a particularly buoying influence in the economy for more than a year, was slated during the week for the lowest level since last September during the 1963 model changeover.

Briefly around the business scene: P. Lorillard Co., reporting a dip in earnings in 1962, said it nevertheless moved into third place in tobacco industry sales, passing up Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. . .George Meany, AFL-CIO president, said after a meeting of labor leaders the administration wasn't doing enough to cut the unemployment rate which he said threatens to rise above six per cent. . .Oil refineries operated at a record pace for a second straight week as continued cold weather stepped up demand for heating fuel.

Escapee Pleads Innocent To Robbery Charge

MACON, Miss. (AP)—A jail escapee accused of bank robbery pleaded innocent in circuit court and told the judge "I don't give a — if you give me 199 years."

The statement from John Armstrong Jr., 35, of Sturgis, came Friday after Circuit Judge John D. Greene asked whether he would plead guilty or innocent.

Armstrong, one of four prisoners who escaped Thursday from the federal jail at Aberdeen but was captured within hours, was the only man to plead innocent.

The other escapees, Johnny Lee Borden, 28, of Tishomingo; and Joseph Carl Butzen, 17, and William H. Trotky, 19, both from Virginia, pleaded guilty to charges of grand larceny and breaking and entering.

The four men were arrested at Brooksville by county and state officers when Armstrong lingered for a haircut.

The court plans to call a jury, possibly next Tuesday, if Armstrong, who has 14 year jail experience, does not change his pleading, county officials said.

Escapee Pleads Innocent To Robbery Charge

MACON, Miss. (AP)—A jail escapee accused of bank robbery pleaded innocent in circuit court and told the judge "I don't give a — if you give me 199 years."

The statement from John Armstrong Jr., 35, of Sturgis, came Friday after Circuit Judge John D. Greene asked whether he would plead guilty or innocent.

Armstrong, one of four prisoners who escaped Thursday from the federal jail at Aberdeen but was captured within hours, was the only man to plead innocent.

The other escapees, Johnny Lee Borden, 28, of Tishomingo; and Joseph Carl Butzen, 17, and William H. Trotky, 19, both from Virginia, pleaded guilty to charges of grand larceny and breaking and entering.

The four men were arrested at Brooksville by county and state officers when Armstrong lingered for a haircut.

The court plans to call a jury, possibly next Tuesday, if Armstrong, who has 14 year jail experience, does not change his pleading, county officials said.

ISLAND DRIVE
4 BEDROOMS, 2½ BATHS

ALASKA size for the big family! Brick, long, low, and rambling! Everything about this house is spacious! A wealth of extras is being left by owner at no charge. There are 10 rooms packed into approximately 3000 sq. ft. of heated area and 700 sq. ft. of outside storage and carport. In the vernacular of the times, this is the house for the "emerging family" — one whose family size hasn't reached its full potential. Plenty of elbow room, plenty of space for entertaining, plenty of roaming room for youngsters. Closets galore — you won't believe it — custom made by Westbrook Manufacturing Co. of Jackson, Miss. ("Cissy's" Dad). Beautiful lot 100x-150, full of large trees. You'll like the river, bayou, and levee in front of this residence giving you wanted privacy. No traffic racing on this street makes it a most desirable area to live and raise your family! 14x28 carpeted living room, 12x16 separate dining room with exquisite custom made ceiling - to-floor walnut Formica cabinets, 2½ huge baths with walls full of big closets and big storage compartments, 4 bedrooms, 20x20, 12x14, 11x15, and 11x15, all with unusual closets and storage. Bedroom windows equipped with inside shutters. L-shaped 4 ft. hall and bath make a perfect "fallout shelter". Floor plan designed to take care of the flow of family traffic without confusion. 8x8 cedar room for out - of-season storage and keepsakes. 8x8 utility and deep freeze room, lots of storage. Includes all drapes, carpets. Floors are hardwood block, carpet, and quarry tile. Family room 12x44, all glass wall overlooking private back gardens, fireplace, and eating area. Located in a most exclusive Northside area. To see it is to want to own it! Call us now for appointment to see!

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

Any time I dry something nice in the dryer, such as my husband's coat, our good suits, or my nice dresses, I sprinkle several bath towels first and throw them in the dryer, let it run about two minutes . . . then put in the clothing. These bath towels keep our clothes from hitting on the dryer itself.

The bath towels seem to absorb the sharp "hits" on the side of the dryer, such as when a button or zipper "bangs."

I never allow the dryer to run more than five minutes. I have decided that if I remove the clothes from the dryer while they still contain a bit of moisture from the sprinkled bath towels, they can be put on a hanger, pulled a few times at the most important seams, and they look better than ever.

—Mrs. J. D.

BREAKFAST TREAT

DEAR HELOISE:

Here is a way to use the juice left from that expensive little bottle of cherries which housewives ordinarily buy once in a blue moon:

Next time you serve grapefruit, pour a teaspoon of the cherry juice around the top of the grapefruit. This will not only give the grapefruit a luscious pink color, but improve the taste as well.

VINEGAR WORKS

DEAR HELOISE:

Vinegar has done wonders at my house for icebox odors.

I place a small, open container with two or three ounces of vinegar in the back of the top shelf and just leave it there. The next day the refrigerator odors are definitely on the way out. I have kept a jar of vinegar in my refrigerator for two years. When the vinegar evaporates, refill the jar with more.

Another open jar of vinegar is kept beneath my sink; thereby eliminating damp, musty odors there also.

IRONING DAY

DEAR HELOISE:

The best ironing-board cover I have found is a big, old beach towel, with a restful and pretty pattern in pastels.

Terry cloth is a fine material for this purpose — springy and absorbent, perfect for ironing laces and embroidery.

Ironing seems to me to go faster on a terry cover. If one uses a bath or beach towel, she can be sure the colors will be safe.

TOY STORAGE

DEAR HELOISE:

If you have a lot of bottles, cosmetics, nail polish, etc. that you keep in a drawer . . . thumbtack elastic to the drawer side. You can then put the bottles in these little elastic pouches and they won't fall or spill when the drawer is opened.

PLASTER CAST TIP

DEAR HELOISE:

I have just found an interesting use for white shoe polish that might be handy.

A friend wrote to me that she used it to keep the cast on her broken arm clean and fresh-looking. A tip to those who want to be neat, no matter how it hurts!

Seriously, if someone in a cast wanted to get all dressed up . . . a clean white cast would look a lot better than the usual gray, grimy, messy one that has been around for weeks!

DEAR HELOISE:

I save time, effort and utilities by cooking a double batch of beans at one time. I use the leftovers by changing the recipe quite a bit.

I chop and boil some onions in a small saucepan, put the cooked onions into the leftover cold beans, adding the water in which you have boiled the onions.

If you like it, add a dash of chili powder and a can of tomatoes. I have also used chili sauce when I am out of tomatoes.

This sure beats plain, old, leftover beans. But the best part of it all is that I have saved anywhere from two to four hours.

Housewife

GALS:

This is great with the onions, tomatoes and chili powder on navy, butter or blackeyed beans.

DEAR HELOISE:

I don't know why manufacturers don't put embroidery thread on a spool so it won't get so tangled, but they don't! So, I have learned to make my own spools.

I take empty sewing thread spools, write the thread number on both the end and the main part of the spool, and wind the thread on these.

The number helps when I get ready to replace the embroidery thread. If I plan to use a particular thread for something, and I don't have enough, the number on the end tells me what color to buy without having to unwind the rest of it.

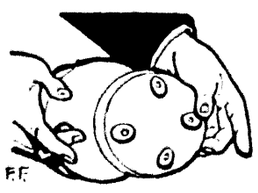
NEAT IDEA



DEAR HELOISE:

I put corn plasters on the bottom of vases, fruit bowls, ash trays, and figurines. This keeps the bric-a-brac from scratching. It really does the job.

POTATO RICERS

DEAR HELOISE:

For those who just cannot make mashed potatoes without lumps, I have the answer!

I bought a potato ricer at the dime store. After boiling my potatoes thoroughly, I pour off as much water as possible, put the potatoes into the ricer, and let them drain some more. After all of the water has drained, I close the ricer . . . perfect potatoes every time.

These are called riced potatoes. However, if you want to mash them, all you have to do is to add oleo, a little milk, and whip them with a fork!
